State Ag Preserve Board Authorizes $20 Million

BY EVERETT NEWSWANGER
Managing Editor

HARRISBURG—At the first meeting of the new Pennsylvania Agricultural Land Preservation Board here Wednesday, $20 million was authorized to purchase conservation easements during the first year of the program. To counties that have a preserve program in place or agree to initiate a program before August, 1989, $10 million is earmarked as grants to purchase rights on approved farms, and $10 million will go to match county funds that are put into the program.

To open the meeting and to introduce the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture's proposal to set the "purchase threshold" at the highest level allowed by Act 149, Boyd Wolff, state ag secretary, said that 485,000 acres have now been committed to ag security areas across the state. That's an 87 percent increase since November of 1987. And when you add the 90,000 acres in Lancaster County that is expected to join the state program, that makes a total of 576,000 acres.

By the law, signed by Gov. Robert Casey last December, PDA administers the program, the ag secretary chairs the board, and the board is a branch of PDA. To be eligible, a farmer in a local county who wants to preserve his land for farming must apply to his county board. When approved at the local level, the application will be forwarded to the state board. Farms that are approved will be appraised both for their value for farming and their value for development.

Steven Crawford, the new deputy secretary for market and economic development (appointed by Gov. Casey last week), said that

The Conebella Farm situated in the hills of the Welsh Mountains in northwestern Chester County was home to Conebella Rebel's Annette, the top seller in the National Ayrshire Sale. Annette, a junior two-year-old took the top bid of $4,400. The Charles Gable family owns and operates the farm which has been in the family since the early 1920s.

New Castle Youth Wins Top Honors At Little International

BY MARIANNE WALKER
Centre Co. Correspondent

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Out of 84 Penn State students, Bill Dean, a senior in animal production and a New Castle native, was named the overall champion of 72nd Little International Livestock Show. The reserve champion overall award went to Christa Rankin, a senior in horticulture from Abbottstown.

Competitors in the show, which was sponsored by the university's Block & Bridle Club last Saturday, vied for fitting and showmanship trophies in four species areas, beef, horse, swine, and sheep.

Participants in the fitting contests were judged primarily on their ability to clip and clean the animal within a given time period.

Plowing 25 Percent Done

Like many farmers this week, Nelson Wenger, Manheim R6, put the steel moleboards in the furrow to cure a winter-long itch to begin the process to get a new crop into the ground. This inner subjective feeling happens every spring in all true farmers, of course.

On Monday afternoon, when Managing Editor Everett Newswanger's camera caught up with Wenger at the corner of Earhart and Colebrook roads, the ground was working up nicely. Wenger's farm buildings can be seen in the background.

By mid-week, the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service said that 25 percent of the plowing was completed in the state. This compares to 40 percent last year. In northern Pennsylvania, 8 percent was completed, in the central region, 31 percent and in the southern region, 29 percent.

Conebella Farm —Home of Beautiful Ayrshires

BY PAT PURCELL

ELVERSON (Chester) — The Conebella Farm of Elverson, Pennsylvania derived its name from the railroad crossings the Conestoga on one side of the farm and the Isabella on the other. But to Ayrshire breeders the name has earned a different meaning.

This 200-acre farm is located in the beautiful hills rolling from the Welsh Mountains in northwestern Chester County and originally purchased in the 1920s by Joseph Gable, a carpenter. Since the time of its purchase little has changed, but the name "Conebella" has come to mean beauty.

The word "belle" is defined as a female admired for her beauty and the most beautiful among a number of rivals. And since the 1930s when the first Ayrshires were brought on the farm Conebella Farm has been known for its beautiful Ayrshire ladies.

Today, Charles and his wife, Josephine, and their son Donald and his wife Pamela continue the Gable tradition of dairy farming. A Penn State graduate in dairy science Donald returned to the farm in 1985. Some changes have been made in feeding, but mostly the joint efforts of father and son are focused are continuing to build on the Conebella name.

Charles's father, C. Harold Gable purchased Ayrshire heifers from the Dunwoody Home Farm in Newtown Square, Delaware County, Pennsylvania. This farm was managed by the late John I.

Bush, Yeutter Answer Questions On GATT, Farm Bill

BY LISA KISSER

In a first-ever presidential interview on USDA radio, President George Bush answered questions on the recent General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade agreement, the federal budget, and the upcoming farm bill.

The recent GATT agreement between the United States and the European Community has caused concern as to its effect on the 1990 Farm Bill.

"What happened over there was that the international community, reluctant to discuss agriculture, has finally understood that we have to go forward," said Bush. "We've got (agriculture) on the agenda, and we will be able to move toward freer markets and less protection. So the upcoming farm bill can be used for leverage because we are not going to unilaterally disarm. We're not going to take cuts unilaterally based on some verbal assurances from people who have excluded our products from their markets."

While in Geneva, the GATT nations agreed that the long-term objective of the agricultural talks is to establish a fair and market-oriented agricultural trading system. The agreement requires participating nations to offer plans dealing with farm trade problems by the end of this year. By the end of 1990, they must reach an agreement on a common solution.

Until that point is reached, the agreement binds the nations from extending subsidies beyond their Acres Corn Update: Corn futures prices settled lower again today and posted settlements from 2-1/2 to 4-1/4 cents lower, but off session lows by as much as 4 cents. Pressure throughout the day was exerted by private weather forecasts calling for an increased probability of rainfall this week in the western portions of the belt. Further sales were in response to the heavy rate of producer loan redemptions reported on the latest USDA weekly loan report along with news that the USDA will release an extra $850 million worth of generic certificates for 1989 deficiency payments. Prices bounced off session lows on late short covering with fast market conditions prevailing in most of the months. May closed 2-1/2 cents lower at $2.73 after trading in a range from $2.76-3/4 to $2.69-1/2. Generic certificate bids remained steady.

Acres Soybean Update: Soybean futures prices settled lower but mid-range of the day's trading. May lost 3-1/2 cents, settling at $7.45 after trading to a high of $7.58-1/2 and a low of $7.34. Pressure on the opening was attributed to reports of increased rainfall probability, which dropped new crop substantially lower. Short covering helped to boost prices off session lows with addZWkK+15 pres sure exerted late in the session by ideas that labor disputes among Brazilian dockworkers were nearing a settlement. Yesterday's reports that ADM was declaring a force majeur were denied today along with continued confusion over the status of export bonus.

Acres Wheat Update: Wheat futures closed higher today from 3/4 cents on the deferred December to 4-3/4 cents on the spot option. Today's session was another hectic one with prices actively traded on both sides of yesterday's closes. Strength in the old crop month was maintained by rumors of Soviet and Egyptian Export Bonus interest. Ongoing hot and dry conditions in Kansas kept new crop beans on the plus side, while spillover weakness from corn and soybeans pressured midday. May traded in a 6-1/2 cent range, closing up 4-3/4 cents at $4.11-3/4, while July tranded in a 4-3/4 cent range from $3.97 to $4.01-3/4.

Acres Cattle Update: Live and feeder cattle futures closed lower but off session lows on session-long pressure generated by long liquidation in advance of Friday's 13-State and 7-State Cattle on Feed reports. Additional sales were made on weakening cash market fundamentals with prices lifted late in the session by short-covering. The Cattle on feed reports are expected to show aggressive first quarter placements prompted by "disastrous" winter wheat conditions. Pre-estimates for the 13 State report predicted placements at 106.7%, with on feed numbers at 101.9% and marketings at 97.3%. Should these estimates be confirmed, it will be the first time ever that April on feed number exceeded January inventories.

Prices trended higher compared to last week. Trade sentiment was fully steady to firm. Offers from producers increased over prior week but asking prices were sharply higher. However, buyers were very cautious. Processors operated all five days but mostly on a part time basis, and are not full for next week. Supplies of canner pack product tight, demand was moderate, undertone was firm.

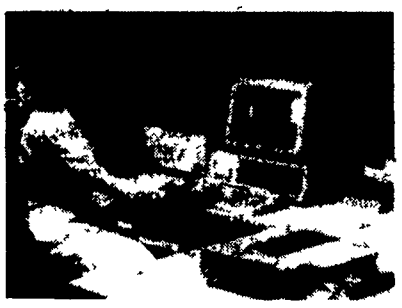
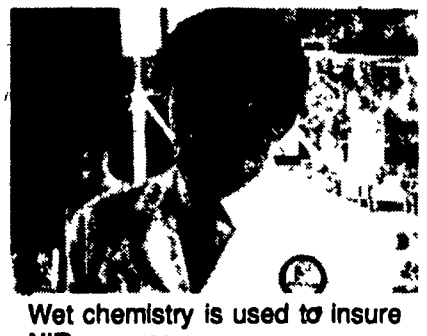
PENNFIELD TESTING LAB - LANCASTER



NIR provides fast and accurate forage results.



Wet chemistry is used to insure NIR accuracy.

ADF (acid detergent fiber) and NDF (neutral detergent fiber) are used to determine available energy from forages.

NO CHARGE FORAGE TESTING:

The primary job at Pennfield's Testing lab is the accurate testing of the feed ingredients used to make Pennfield feeds. You can not consistently make a quality feed unless you know the analysis of the ingredients to be used. Pennfield uses the feed testing equipment to process over 5,000 forage samples annually.

ATTENTION TOBACCO GROWERS

Golden Leaf Tobacco Company Would Like To Encourage You To Increase 609 Tobacco Production In 1989.

We have increased our orders for your tobacco over the past several years and could have purchased 1 million pounds more had it been available in 1988. Surplus government stock has been depleted and US grown tobacco inventory is at its lowest level in years.

Our goal has been to establish a strong market for Pennsylvania 609 by personally visiting manufacturers overseas and here in the US. Our goal has been met!

The outlook is good for 1989 as more US grown tobacco is needed for cigarette production both in the US and overseas.

It is our desire to continue to work closely with each of you. We are daily continuing our efforts to build the 609 tobacco demand into a lasting market that will carry into the future. Our company prides itself on a relationship with the farmers based on honesty, integrity and loyalty. If we can be of service to you please feel free to call.

OPINION

A Break Ag Deserves

In a recent local city newspaper article, high nitrate levels in the water supply of municipalities, mobile home parks and nursing homes were blamed on manure and fertilizers on Lancaster County farms. But while local farms produce a lot of livestock manure, it may not be as excessive as was thought.

Gerald Heistand, ag engineer for the Lancaster County Conservation District, says a new study indicates there isn't an overabundance of manure. Heistand bases his thinking on the findings of a nutrient analysis done on the manure produced in 19 of the Lancaster County Townships. This study commissioned by the Lancaster County Solid Waste Authority sought to find where manure excess and deficient areas existed, based on the amount of nitrogen. Information was used that had been collected from 575 farms during 1986 and 1987 as part of the Chesapeake Bay Assessment Project.

"We thought we'd have very high figures," Heistand said. "But only two townships have more than one in five farms high in nitrogen."

Actually, if manure in each township was spread evenly over the whole area, only two townships would have an excess of nitrogen while the remaining townships would all have deficits.

Up to now, it has been easy to blame agriculture for all non-point nitrogen pollution in our water supply because no supporting research information had been available. Now at least we have some knowledge of how much to blame our farmers on this issue. And now it will be easier to direct some of the blame to other sources of pollution such as on-lot septic systems, septic system cleansers, and residential fertilizers. This is a break agriculture deserves.

To Check For Alfalfa Weevil

Alfalfa weevils have not been a problem for alfalfa growers since the introduction of a parasite in the 1960's. Last year, weevils were a problem for some growers and may be a larger problem this year.

Adult weevils may be present in the field now. They are snouted beetles approximately 3/16 inch in length. They are dark brown to black in color with a strip halfway down their backs. Eggs may also be present in some fields. Eggs are laid in clusters of 2-25. They are oval and approximately 1/16 inch in length. When laid the eggs are yellow but turn brown as they get ready to hatch.

Check fields that had a weevil infestation last year first. If you find adults or eggs, contact the extension office.

To Rejuvenate Worn-out Pastures

Are your pastures worn-out and weedy? Are you thinking about reseeding them? This could be very costly and time consuming. Plus, if done at this time of the year, there is a greater risk of soil erosion and seeding failure. The best time to seed grasses is in early September.

A cheaper and better alternative might be to lime, fertilize and clip your pastures this spring to build soil fertility, to reduce weed competition and to encourage the grasses that are already present. The use of some herbicides may be necessary. By doing this, you are actually preparing the site for reseeding, but you may discover that your pasture is better than you thought, and reseeding may not be necessary. Remember, you can always no-till additional grasses and legumes into the pasture if desired.

To Consider Footbaths

The use of footbaths can help prevent the spread of foot rot organisms, but it may not help cows that are already infected. Footbaths can also help toughen up soft hooves. Hooves can become soft when cows are housed in wet-floored, free-stall barns or on bedded packs, or when they have been exposed to muddy lots and wet pastures.

Footbaths can be located in exits from cow stables or milking parlors. A footbath solution can be made by mixing 1 lb. of copper sulfate in 5 gallons of water. Another alternative is to mix 4-6 oz. of Formalin in 1 gallon of water.

A dry footbath preparation can also be made by mixing 5 lbs. of copper sulfate powder -- not crystals -- with 100 lbs. of hydrated lime.

To Plant Reliable Flowers and Vegetables

In case last summer's record high temperatures and low precipitation repeats itself this summer, here's a list of flowers and vegetables that can be relied upon to perform.

Annuals/Ornamentals

Basil; Celosia; Cleome; Cosmos; Gazania; Gomphrena; Helichrysum (Strawflower); Kochia (Summer Cypress); Marigold; Melampodium; Mirabilis (Four O'Clocks); Morning Glory; Nicotiana; Ornamental Peppers; Portulaca; Statice; Sanvitalia; Sunflower; Vinca; Zinnia.

Perennials

Achillea (Yarrow); Asclepias (Butterfly weed); Coreopsis; Gaillardia; Lavender; Rudbeckia.

Vegetables

Cucumber; Muskmelon (Canteloupe); Okra; Squash; Tomato; Watermelon.

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

BY LAWRENCE W. ALTHOUSE

THE FOCUS

April 23, 1989

Background Scripture:
Philippians 4.

Devotional Reading:
Psalms 148: 1-6a.

How many joyful people do you know? Are you one of them?

At this moment, I can't think of anyone I know who could be described as "joyful." I know some people who seem to be "happy" — myself among them. I know a few people who are occasionally joyful, but no one is that way the majority of the time. Yet, in his letter to the Philippians, Paul repeatedly counsels his readers to "Rejoice in the Lord" (3:1), "Rejoice in the Lord always; again I will say, Rejoice" (4:4). And Paul represents himself as a joyful person: "...and in that I rejoice" (1:18). "Yes, and I shall rejoice" (1:19), and he asks them to "complete my joy by being of the same mind..." (2:2). Of Epaphroditus, he says: "So receive him in the Lord with all joy..." (2:29).

YOUR REQUESTS

So, why is it that joy is such a scarce commodity among Christians? Some people respond by saying they would be more joyful if they had more over which to be joyful. In other words, it is hard to be joyful when there are so many problems and concerns in the world. The implication is that joy is dependent upon the absence of negativities in life. When we have joyful experiences, we will be joyful. But, when our experiences are something else, there is no way that we can be joyful.

Of course, if that were true, then Paul would not ever have been joyful, would he? Even when he wrote this joyful letter to Philippi, his outward circumstances were pretty discouraging. But, if Paul had considerable problems, he also had considerable resources with which to meet those problems and in this letter he chooses to concentrate on his resources, not his problems. He doesn't ignore the bad, but neither does he concentrate on it either. This is the same advice he gives to the Philippians: "Have no anxiety about anything, but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known to God. And the peace of God which passes all understanding, will keep your hearts and your minds in Christ Jesus" (4:6,7).

THINK ON THESE

In the lives of each of us there are both "good news" and "bad news." It is up to you which you will choose for the focus of your life. Focus it on the negativities and you will never be able to rejoice. But, if you choose to focus on that which is positive and uplifting, you will share Paul's happy gift of rejoicing in all things. So, "whatever is true, whatever is honorable, whatever is just, whatever is pure, whatever is lovely, whatever is gracious, if there is any excellence, if there is anything worthy of praise, think about these things" (4:8).

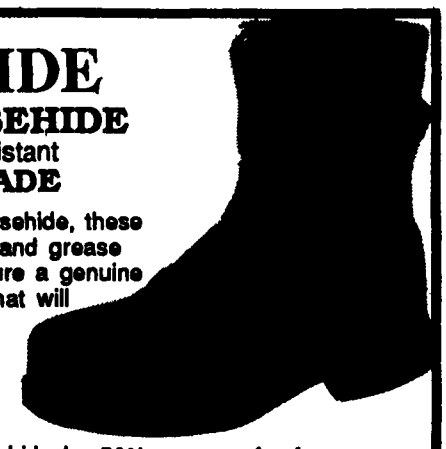
HORSEHIDE
GENUINE HORSEHIDE
Barnyard Acid Resistant
AMERICAN MADE



Made of tough, long wearing horsehide, these shoes stand manure, silage, oil and grease better than cowhide. Shoes feature a genuine Goodyear welt, nitro cork sole that will not track, steel shank, padded collar, cushion insole and arch support. Ideal for barn use. Sizes 7-13 including ½ sizes. 1st quality. Our experience shows that horsehide outlasts good cowhide by 50% or more for farm use.

Agway introduces

NEW Gro:Pak™ With Bovatec®

Improve the rate of weight gain by 10-13% in your replacement heifers with Agway Gro:Pak™ with Bovatec®. No body weight restriction means you can feed calves almost from birth and help them conceive and calve at younger ages by consistently improving growth rate. And getting heifers into the production cycle sooner means more dollars to your bottom line!

Agway Gro:Pak™ with Bovatec® is a pelleted premix safe for cattle of all weights. It can be top dressed on silage or grain, blended in a total mixed ration (TMR), or blended with grains. Good palatability means calves or heifers won't back-off feed. And Bovatec is approved for control of coccidiosis in cattle up to 800 lbs. of body weight. That means less death loss and growth setback in your heifers.

pressured by long liquidation and steady to lower cash hog prices at terminal markets. Short covering late in the session lifted prices off lows with today's close 60 points lower on the June at $45.90 and 38 lower on the April at $40.42. Losses were pared by mostly steady midday wholesale product quotes along with ideas that an improvement in cash markets would be seen tomorrow. Bellies settled sharply lower after setting contract lows in the May through August options earlier in the day. Bellies were pressured by declining fresh belly prices along with ongoing heavy kill figures. The USDA Cold Storage Report, scheduled for release this Friday afternoon is expected to show 133.4 million pounds, which compares with last months figure of 122.4 million pounds.

Farm Essentials.

Cows. Crops. And a Scavenger® spreader. The three essentials for higher productivity and a more successful farm operation.

Manure is money.
According to ag experts at the University of Missouri, the average dairy cow produces 70 pounds of manure every day—up to 13 tons a year. Worth about $5.00/ton, that equates to $65.00 per cow a year. If you own a 60-head herd that's almost $4,000 of free fertilizer. And in today's farm environment that adds up to big savings.

Scavenger—good to your crops, good to you.
To get the most from your manure you need a spreader to efficiently manage manure. A spreader that works with you. A spreader designed and built for today's farming. You need a Scavenger.

Scavenger loads quickly and spreads fast. And thanks to advanced engineering, Scavenger spreads all kinds of manure—liquid, semi-solid, pen pack (even frozen)—all year 'round. But more importantly, Scavenger's patented moveable square-auger and Variflo discharge combine to let you choose your optimum rate of application—from top dressing to heavy springtime spreading. You get the kind of spreads your crops need—nice and even, without damaging "hotspots". With Scavenger, your crops receive the essential nutrients to produce better yields.

See Scavenger for yourself.
Don't be misled by claims of other manufacturer's spreaders that say they do it all. See Scavenger for yourself and compare actual capabilities. We think you'll find your choice obvious—you'll choose Scavenger®.

Mid-East UDIA Annual Meeting Focuses On Dairy Promotion

COLUMBUS, OH — "Promotion...An Investment In the Future" is the theme of the first annual meeting of Mid East United Dairy Industry Association (UDIA), scheduled for Thursday, June 1 at the Radisson Inn on Sinclair Road in Columbus.

The meeting will focus on Mid East UDIA's 1988 and 1989 program plans, which utilize dairy farmers' promotion investment for a comprehensive dairy advertising and promotion program. The programs, implemented in the Federal Order 33 and 36 milk marketing areas of Ohio, western Pennsylvania and parts of West Virginia and northern Kentucky, include advertising, foodservice, food publicity, retail merchandising, nutrition education and research, communications and local promotions.

The afternoon's guest speaker will be Joseph Kelsch, president of the American Dairy Association. "Milk Advertising...Then and Now" is a retrospective of 40 years of dairy product promotion. Kelsch will describe how the dairy industry's marketing programs have evolved with the continuously changing consumer trends and lifestyles. Early commercials depict how consumers' attitudes and perceptions of dairy products and nutrition have been dramatically influenced by the changing roles of the traditional family and the aging "baby boomer" population.

The meeting is scheduled to begin at 10:00 a.m. and conclude by 4:00 p.m. R.S.V.P.'s are requested. For more information contact Lenore Meila at 1-800-292-MILK.

Bedford County Junior Holstein Field Day Held

BY LINDA WILLIAMS
Bedford Co. Correspondent

NEW ENTERPRISE (Bedford) — FFA and 4-H members from Chestnut Ridge, Everett, Bedford, and Northern Bedford High Schools met for the 15th annual Bedford County Junior Holstein Field Day at the Bernard Snider Homestead Farm recently.

Teaching the skill of milk cattle judging was Ken Mowry who is the owner of the world's champion Holstein.

Students were divided into four groups with each group getting a turn at cattle judging. Results then were fed into a computer with the winners being announced at the conclusion of the event.

Winning the judging contest were Alisha McDonald, junior division, and Susie Mowry, senior division. McDonald is a student at Chestnut Ridge, while Mowry is from Northern Bedford County High School. Both girls had a score of 143 points. Junior second-place winner was Ernie Bubier of Northern Bedford High School with 137 points and the senior second-place winner was Jim Bence from Chestnut Ridge with 140 points.

Other parts of the field day included Susan Fox, Bedford County Extension agent, who talked to the young people about milk from the pregnant and non-pregnant cow.

Dr. Walter Northern, a veterinarian from New Enterprise, talked about natural poisons to cattle and sheep such as Mountain Laurel and the Japanese yew.

FARM MANAGEMENT

By Roland P. Freund
Regional Farm Management Agent
Penn State Cooperative Extension

Should I make that investment?

There are many occasions when a major decision has to be made regarding new farm investments. To keep a business viable occasionally new structures and new equipment are necessary and justifiable. If something is wanted badly enough many reasons can be dreamed up to justify spending the money to get it. Just wanting a business asset is not a sound basis, from a management perspective, for getting it. Let's look at a checklist of considerations that might be helpful in this decision-making process.

1. Whose money ?

If it's your own capital that you plan to use, then you (subject to your spouse's approval) have the liberty to do what you please with it. But you need to be careful to distinguish between investing for profit and spending for self-satisfaction, lest you deceive yourself and your family members.

When a credit institution has to supply the finance, then they are involved and have a right to call the shots. They are going to be concerned about your debt repayment ability, your exposure to risk, and that their credit is secured by your real estate or other collateral. This opens you up to another risk. You could get the finance to build a facility, but then, if you default on the loan, you loose the entire farm.

2. Initial cost

The first estimate is usually not what you pay. Carefully estimate the "add-ons" like site preparation, manure storage, electrical service, and desirable or comfort options.Check to see if Pennsylvania sales tax is applied to your investment.

If a new building or structure expands the operation, include the value of the livestock or feed they contain as added inventory.

3. Value added

How much more, with the added asset, is the business worth to a prospective buyer? This should be estimated for the time when the asset is new, but it is more important to estimate the added value for the asset when the bank loan has been repaid. A realistic market-value balance sheet should not list the asset at more than "added value" at any time during the life of the asset.

Unfortunately, few 10-year-old livestock facilities add anything to the value of southeastern Pennsylvania real estate. This means that, unless they generated a pile of profits during their useful life, they are a risky form of investment.

4. Annual cost to own

Check the cost for the insurance to cover the investment AND its contents - grain in a structure is often worth more than the bin. Local taxing authorities raise taxes for added buildings.

If the investment is financed over the useful life of an asset, then the amoritized payments should be included in ownership costs. Where owner finances all or part of an asset purchase, then interest and depreciation on that percentage which is the owner's equity should be added to ownership costs.

5. Operating cost

The normal operating costs include feed, fuel, electricity and supplies. When people build structures and buildings they tend to overlook and underestimate maintenance and repair costs. Even with "low maintenance" buildings, curtains, fans and feeders often have to be replaced during the life of the facility. Silo unloader repair bills can create severe rocket shock.

Manure disposal cost should be included. Then there are the labor, the environmental and the neighbor relations problems of manure that must be considered BEFORE livestock facilities are constructed.

6. Labor requirement

Hired labor used for an enterprise needs to be charged to it. If owner's labor is used, then the replacement value of that labor should be calculated, and that value used in the analysis of the investment. Conservatively estimate total labor hours per year.

7. Income potential

Most people only look at income potential at maximum capacity. Those who have had poultry houses empty for several YEARS regret the fact that they did not look at the possibility that full capacity might not be maintained. Just because there is a contract does not guarantee that the maximum throughput will be achieved. Income comparisons with average price and maximum capacity as well as average price and 75% capacity should be used.

8. Return to investment, labor and management

From the income potential deduct annual ownership and annual operating costs. (7-4-5= 8). This is what the owner has to pay for the enterprise labor and his return for his management and the investment. Do this for both maximum and 75% capacity.

9. Return to management and investment.

From 8 above, deduct the value of all labor expended on the enterprise as identified in section 6. This should be calculated for both maximum and 75% capacity. Now we have a good guide as to what a new investment can be expected to bring to a business.

10. Your decision.

Unfortunately, many farm investments today show little or no return after even a modest labor fee is deducted. FINPACK analysis of some livestock contract enterprises show that they may not even cover labor after reasonable allowance is made for debt and operating costs as described above. Do not take anyone else's word as justification to risk hundreds of thousands of dollars in farm investments. Push your own pencil and make your own decision.

If you need help with any investment decision, contact your equal opportunity Penn State Extension office and ask for the agent responsible for farm management programs.

Pesticides And The Non-Agriculture Public

BY PAUL CRAIG
Dauphin Extension Agent

DAUPHIN — Communication experts have determined that 35 good deeds are required before a person is forgiven for one negative deed. No wonder most husbands are always in the doghouse. With this fact in mind, it is easy to see that modern, chemical-supported agriculture has a public relations task of astronomical proportions.

Turn on the television, listen to the radio, or read the newsprint-all you see is pesticide misuse, contamination, and health risks. Organizations such as the Natural Resources Defense Council claim that we are poisoning our environment and leading our children to a future of increased cancer rates simply by eating fresh fruits and vegetables. It is no wonder that farmland neighbors become alarmed at the sight of a farmer and his spraying applying pest control materials.

Unfortunately, the public is being misinformed by alarmist groups. Many belonging to these groups would imply that if we simply eliminated all man-made or synthetic chemicals, cancer would disappear or become a minor cause of death, when in fact, there are many naturally occurring cancer-causing products: alfatoxium molds common in corn and peanuts; solamine charomine in potatoes; hydrazines from mushrooms; ethyl carbamate in yogurt; formaldehyde in cola drinks; even ethyl alcohol from beer and wine.

Keep in mind that agricultural chemicals are indeed poisonous, and must be to control pests. Also, be assured that everyone wants a safe food supply. The Natural Resources Defense Council does, the EPA does, consumers do, and most importantly the farmer does. Farmers use only the minimal amount of pesticides necessary to provide adequate controls. Nevertheless, the agricultural chemical controversy must be addressed on a local level as well as in Washington D.C. All farmers must become part of a public relations effort to inform our society about what are real risks from agricultural chemicals and what are not.

Today the non-farm population constitutes greater than 98 percent of the United States population. To many of these individuals a farm is an image of pristine buildings, fences, and crops. They do not picture weeds, insects, and diseases. They long for the agricultural setting of 75 to 100 years ago while living in a 21st century environment. In many areas a segment of this population has initiated regulation of farming practices to ensure their safety.

Farmers must get to know these neighbors. Keep in mind that many of your concerns such as taxes, crime, schools, and pollution are also their concerns. A good neighbor is always welcome especially when equipment, buildings, or livestock are left unattended or out of sight. Good neighbors close fence gates, respect your property, and are sure to report suspicious activities to you or the police.

As you get to know your neighbors build on that relationship. Offer them access to wood cutting privileges, hunting rights, or even manure for their garden plots. Many may be interested in purchasing animal feed, bedding, or excess garden produce you may have.

Farmers are professionals and need to project that image. Examine your farm operation from an outsider's viewpoint. Pesticide containers, improperly disposed, send a message of indifference. Professionals store, handle, and dispose of pesticides safely. No longer can farmers avoid or hide from the public. The attitude that "I've done it this way all my life as my Pap did before me," will not work any longer, probably didn't work in Pap's time either.

If the subject of pesticides arises when talking to your neighbors tell them you are just as concerned as they are. You are drinking the same water and you handle the materials more closely than they do. Remind them that farming is a relatively healthy occupation, and that farmers live longer and have fewer cancers than people in most occupations.

Remind them that you normally only apply pest control materials once a year and in rates that range from two ounces to two quarts per acre. Remember that drift, when applying pesticides, is the number one concern of the non-agricultural neighbor. Perhaps you could arrange to inform them of approximate application times.

Another fact to share with neighbors is that pesticides undergo millions of dollars of research prior to their production. And if there is any questionable health or environmental concerns, the products are not manufactured.

Inform them that you must be licensed by the state to apply pesticides and to obtain certification you are required to be knowledgeable about the safe use of pesticides. You are also required to attend training in order to remain licensed.

And finally, tell them that you actually dislike applying these materials and try to apply materials only when necessary. Pesticides are quite expensive, but are needed to keep food costs low. Explain to neighbors how you use integrated pest management and scouting to monitor pest levels and then apply materials only when populations threaten crops. You, more than anyone else, have an interest in keeping the farm environment and the food supply safe from chemical contamination.

Today, more than ever, agriculture needs all the friends it can get. A misinformed public can be easily convinced that organizations like the Natural Resources Defense Council can protect the environment and their food supply better than scientists, researchers, and farmers.

Farmers must counter the alarmist viewpoint or the public will demand new restrictions and limits on farming practices. Producers must lead by example of soil stewardship and environmental protection, and demonstrate that they are providing a healthy, environmentally safe, and economical food supply. And they must provide their friends and neighbors with information so that they can make an honest, unbiased assessment of their health risks to the use of agricultural pesticides.

Pennsylvania Economy Keeps Farm Crisis At Bay

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Dr. Donald J. Epp, Penn State professor of agricultural economics, has some answers for those who have been wondering why Pennsylvania has not had the kind of farm crisis that has plagued the Midwest in recent years.

"While these have not been the best of times for Pennsylvania agriculture, relatively constant land values in the Northeast — including Pennsylvania — have helped make farming a more stable occupation than it has been in the Corn Belt and Great Plains states," he says.

The combination of stable land values and a greater variety of available off-farm jobs means that the Northeast has been able to weather much of the bad times of the 1980s.

Epp points out that a more diversified economy, offering greater availability of off-farms jobs, gives many Northeast framers added flexibility — an opportunity that is not often available to their Midwestern counterparts. The 1978 Census of Agriculture indicates that 47 percent of farm operators in the Northeast work off-farm. Fifty-five percent report more than 100 days of off-farm work.

In much of the North Central region, the only off-farm jobs are those that relate to agriculture. When farms begin to fold, there are fewer jobs for loaders at grain elevators or for sales representatives at local feed companies. The economy of the entire community breaks down.

Pennsylvania agriculture also has been helped by the diversity of its agricultural products, says Dr. H. Louis Moore, Penn State professor of agricultural economics. "When the grain business went bad in the early 1980s, states that were entirely in grain production were hurt much worse than Pennsylvania. With a strong dairy industry and other livestock industry and some grain we were able to avoid some of the trauma."

Moore adds that being near markets and having food processors and other strong supporting industries have helped keep Pennsylvania a top agricultural state. Agriculture is a $3.2 billion industry in the state, up from $2.7 billion in 1980.

Epp traces much of today's farm crisis back to the 1970s, when rising export demands and government encouragement led many farmers to expand their operations by purchasing additional farm land or machinery. Most of this expansion was financed by loans and mortgages on the land. Since it was assumed that land values would continue climbing, this high debt load was believed a good practice.

But in the 1980s, farm product prices fell as export demand was reduced. With reduced incomes, farmers were hard-pressed to pay back loans or maintain mortage payments. Lenders, nervous about the weakening collateral value of the loans, began foreclosures.

Pennsylvania, like the rest of the Northeast, had experienced no great land price boom in the 1970s since Northeast land prices were already high compared to the rest of the country. And throughout the 1980s, the price of land in the Northeast rose, making lenders with land as collateral much less concerned when the price of farm products dropped.

A comparison of U.S. Department of Agriculture figures on the average value per acre of agricultural land and buildings for Pennsylvania, Ohio and Iowa show what this means for individual farmers. In 1974, the average value per acre in Pennsylvania was $621. In 1981, the value rose to $1,568 and increased to $1,725 in 1987. However, Ohio land values were at an average of $627 in 1974, jumped to $1,831 by 1981 and fell to $942 in 1987. Iowa had much the same rise and fall, going from $597 in 1974 to $1,991 in 1981, then back to $748 in 1987.

Specialists Cite Benefits From Soil Insecticides

Crop specialists are advising many corn growers to consider using a soil insecticide at planting this spring to protect their crop from rootworms and other soil insect pests. One relatively new, but very serious pest for Pennsylvania producers, and those in neighboring states, is the western corn rootworm. According to Dr. Dennis Calvin, extension pest specialist and assistant professor of entomology at Penn State, the western corn rootworm has been steadily advancing eastward over the last several years and can now be found in many fields throughout Pennsylvania.

"In 1987 the western corn rootworm frontal line was through the central part of the state, and this year the pest pushed another one-third of the way eastward," Calvin said. "The projection is that by 1989 the frontal line will advance to the southeastern portion of Pennsylvania, the state's largest corn growing region. Several fields in Lancaster County already have a high infestation of the western corn rootworm."

Calvin added that the western rootworm can cause severe damage to crops when populations are high, particularly if dry conditions occur after root pruning takes place. "The western corn rootworm is considered twice as damaging as the northern rootworm for several reasons," he stated. "Because the western corn rootworm generally emerges earlier in the spring they are able to feed on younger plants that have a less developed root system. They are more prolific than the northern species, and they also feed more vigorously, enabling them to clip more roots in a shorter period of time."

Soil Insecticide Treatments

Dr. Joe McGahen, long-time leader of the Penn State corn club and former corn extension agronomist at Penn State, noted that protecting fields from western corn rootworm is critical. "Corn growers should seriously consider using a soil insecticide to control pests," he said. "Producers can expect to see a significant yield response from using a soil insecticide at planting. This is especially true where rootworm is a key pest, particularly the western corn rootworm. Fields that have the highest potential for yield response from a soil insecticide are second or more years in corn and those in the frontal area where adult beetles were present the previous year. Over the last several years we've seen a yield response of more than 7 percent in corn club fields where insect pressure is prevalent."

When scouting for adult northern corn rootworm beetles during the summer months, Calvin says that an average of three to four beetles per plant warrants treatment with a rootworm insecticide the following year. The threshold level for the western corn rootworm is an average of one and one-half beetles per plant.

Don Hartzler, manager of the Union Mill Soil Service in Mifflin County, Pa., notes that growers also should consider use of a soil insecticide for treatment of other insect pests besides rootworms. "An insecticide treatment provides extra protection against several pests including seed corn maggot, wireworms, symphylans and flea beetles," he noted. "We also recommend that growers use an insecticide if they've had problems with cutworms in the past."

Don Baldwin, technical service and development specialist for The Dow Chemical Company notes that when planting with a granular soil insecticide, such as LORSBAN* 15G, a T-band application is preferred to control rootworms and other soil insects.

"For control of rootworms as well as other soil insect pests, we encourage growers to apply the insecticide in a T-band," he said. "T-banding involves applying the insecticide ahead of the press wheel and over the furrow before it's closed. A T-band has proven to be the most effective method to apply Lorsban 15G insecticide as well as other granular insecticides in both conventional and conservation tillage situations.

"Some of the granules will fall into the open furrow and some on either side of the furrow. This enables growers to get both above-ground and below-ground pests," he continued.

According to Mike Priola, of Helena Chemical in Sussex County, Del., many of the top corn producers in his region rely on soil insecticides to achieve higher profits. "Out top growers from western Maryland to the Delmarva Peninsula have regularly increased yields by including a soil insecticide in their overall crop management program," he commented. "For example, members of the Talbott County, Md., corn club have consistently achieved an eight to 10 bushel per acre increase by using a soil insecticide. At an average cost of only $10 to $12 per acre for the product, producers get a very good return on their money considering the increased yields."

Priola notes there are four key soil insect pests that threaten corn in his region. "Wireworm and seed corn maggot are the two predominant species here," he said. "We've also had cutworm outbreaks on the eastern shore of Maryland and in our higher organic soils in the southeast section of Delaware. Lorsban 15G applied in a T-band at planting has given us excellent cutworm, seed corn maggot and wireworm control on the eastern shore. Grubs continue to be a problem primarily because of the continuous no-till practices in corn followed here. Applying a soil insecticide enables growers to efficiently reduce pest populations while increasing yields."

Bradford County Dairy Judging

The Bradford County 4-H dairy cattle judging team placed second out of 20 teams at the Penn State University Spring Dairy Cattle Judging Contest recently held at State College. Out of 90 participants, Terri Packard placed eighth overall and Jim Jenkins, tenth. Other participants who contributed to the team's strong showing included Mike Hulslander, Amy Packard and Jeremy Braund.

These youth deserve much credit since in order to become a good dairy judge youth need to learn two special skills: decide how to best place the class and learn to speak clearly when they present oral reasons in defense of their placings. Dairy judging helps teach youth how to make a decision, since each participant had to place eight classes with four cows per class. As part of the contest each youth presented two sets of oral reasons. When youth present oral reasons they increase their speaking ability and gain confidence in themselves.

Eastern To Open Discount Store

FULTON, NY — The retail merchandising subsidiary of the farmer-owned Eastern Milk Producers Cooperative will be testing a new business venture when it formally opens Best Buys Liquidation and Closeout Center in Fulton, N.Y., April 21-23.

The discount center will be located in the same building that houses the Eastern Dairy Store at 840 Hannibal St. and will feature a wide range of factory closeouts—from small appliances to clothing items to toys.

"We have a little bit of everything at extremely low prices," said Kirt Roe, the store operations manager for the Eastern Best Products subsidiary.

Initially the center will open three days a month.

"That'll give us time to find and buy good bargains to pass on to customers" for the next sale, Roe explained. In May, the closeout center is scheduled to be open Friday to Sunday, May 26, 27, 28.

Roe said the closeout center, if successful, could be extended to other locations in the Northeast.

The grand opening of the center coincides with a second anniversary sale at the dairy store on Friday and Saturday, April 21-22.

Dairy princesses and reps from suppliers will give away free food samples. The anniversary sale also will feature door prizes, free balloons, and a special 25-cent snack consisting of a hot dog and a glass of milk. On Saturday, a live radio broadcast from the store will run from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m., and the Nestle Rabbit will be on hand from 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. to entertain children and promote such dairy products as chocolate milk and chocolate ice cream.

Eastern Milk is a leading Northeast dairy cooperative, with 3,200 member farmers in nine states.

Eastern owns two cheese plants in New York's Southern Tier that are leased to Leprino's Foods, the leading manufacturer of mozzarella in the U.S. The co-op also operates field laboratories in South Waverly, Pa., and Sunbury, Pa.; milk receiving stations in Dover, Del., Sunbury, Pa., and Hinesburg, Vt.; a butter and powder milk balancing plant in Grover, Pa.; and a New England office in Montpelier, Vt.

The Eastern Best subsidiary, based in Canton, Pa., operates seven dairy stores and a truck route system for delivering an extensive array of products to 30,000 rural customers in a dozen states.

RCMA Welcomes NEASDA Support

BATAVIA, NY — The Northeastern Association of State Departments of Agriculture (NEASDA) recently announced its support for the Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA), a dairy farmer cooperative servicing 22,000 members in 11 states.

According to Ed Anna, executive director and general manager of RCMA, located in Batavia, N.Y., NEASDA's support for RCMA, initiated by a recommendation from Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture, Boyd E. Wolff, will have a significant positive impact on the status of RCMA in the farming community.

"We thank Boyd Wolff and the NEASDA for this kind of public support," said Anna. "And we sincerely hope that members of the NEASDA will take their support one step further and act on behalf of RCMA and its dairy farmers, be it through letters or personal contacts."

Anna agrees with Wolff's recent statement that "RCMA's work is in the best interest of farmers and consumers, since consumers are the beneficiaries of a healthy dairy industry." According to Anna, "RCMA is working to gain a fair price for dairy farmers in the Northeast so these farm families can stay in the business of providing fresh, safe dairy foods to local consumers. RCMA has provided an additional 2¢ per gallon to farmers for the milk they produce on farms throughout this region."

With nearly a quarter of the nation's population residing in the Northeast, RCMA farmers can only provide them with two-thirds of their dairy food needs. "The balance of our consumers' dairy foods must be brought in from other regions of the country at considerable cost to local consumers; RCMA helps to keep quality local supplies available for the benefit of our massive urban population," said Anna.

FARM FORUM OUR READERS WRITE

The Folly Of The Chemical Farmers

The recent top headlines in newspapers and television tell of detrimental effects of chemical use on the United States Herbicides Linked to Cancer (Dec. 15); Europe Bans U.S. Hormone Contaminated Beef (Dec. 28); Salmonella Bacteria Found In Eggs (Apr. 8, 88); Pesticides on Fruits, Vegetables Endanger Children (Feb. 25); Alar Sprayed Apples Refused By Stores; 400,000 Cancerous Chickens Destroyed-Heptachlon Residues Found (March). These are the proven consequences of the use of these chemicals, which is dragging down the entire country.

Pesticides and herbicides are long lasting chemical poisons that can sicken any living thing they come in contact with. They contaminate the fields, the person applying the spray, drift onto neighboring land, wash down into the streams, are taken up by the plant's roots and then travel into all parts of the plant. Then the residues contaminate fish, wildlife, livestock, drinking water, the consumers and the farmer's family who eat the food. This is not being stewards of the earth. It is wrong to pollute and cause cancer.

You don't need expensive chemicals to grow excellent crops. I have seen chemically grown no-till corn with leaves riddled with borer holes, while organic corn growing beside it was completely free of damage. Cultivators are now available that can precision cultivate crops to an exact depth and closeness.

Organically grown crops always outyield chemical crops in a drought year. This is because the organic farmer builds up his soil with moisture holding organic matter such as green manure and cover crops. The healthy organic crops are more tolerant of stress and sink their roots deep into the rich soil, surviving drought far better. When stalks are not crowded they have room to spread out their roots and find moisture.

Most corn today is grown extremely thick beginning to look something like a stand of wheat. You seldom get enough rainfall in a season to support that high of a plant population. The crowded stalks start to curl at the slightest dry spell and yield little. Last season I grew organic corn that produced fat foot-long ears and was never watered, even through the severe early summer drought. I raised a rare variety of squash called carpetbag which the seed catalog stated would grow 1-2 ft. long and can weigh up to 30-40 lbs. My organic squash grew a whopping 3 feet long and weighed 60 lbs. half again larger than the seed company ever expected. I also had 27 oz. potatoes, foot wide heads of broccoli and 11 inch wide dahlia blooms. For the sixth straight year my organic crops went on to win many top awards at the 1989 Pa. Farm Show. No chemicals of any kind were used.

The EPA has established allowable limits of residues for each pesticide. But what about the cumulative effect of the hundreds of residues in the food we eat, along with radiation and other chemicals in our manmade environment? The result of all of these "allowable limits" is definitely toxic overload.

A Penn State study has shown increased cancer rates in areas where farmers widely use pesticides and herbicides. The European countries have put a ban on hormone fed beef because it is a cancer threat. Because of America's insistance on contaminating our meat, we are now on the brink of a full trade war with Europe. I had stated in a letter several years ago in Lancaster Farming that other nations don't buy more U.S. food exports because they know our products are contaminated. Now this has becme disastrously more true.

Argentina, Brazil, Australia and New Zealand have agreed to stop shipping hormone meat. The U.S. has refused. Why do we, the American consumers, have to accept livestock products that are inferior to what people in other countries are eating? Hormone use also makes meat fatty.

Now it is unsafe to eat eggs that aren't cooked extremely hard. People have gotten seriously ill from eating clean, crack-free, sanitized Grade A eggs that are contaminated with Salmonella, that was put into the egg- while it was forming in the hen. These disease bacteria should not be living inside the poultry. No one ever used to get sick from eating egg products.

The Salmonella is infested in today's livestock because it is raised in unnatural confinement houses and are overfed antibiotics. Bacteria runs wild through these high animal densities. Reported food poisoning cases (10% of total inflicted) soared from 21,980 in 1974 to 42,000 in 1986. The scientists, in many cases, have not made the world safer- they have made it a far more deadly place and have lowered farm profits.

When every form used to have a poultry flock the chickens were healthy, consumers were well supplied and the farmer made a nice profit. Eggs would sell like hot cakes for 50¢ a dozen 35 years ago. Considering inflation, eggs sell for far less now.

Don't try to fight or conquer Nature. Abuse the Earth and it will destroy you. Work with Nature and you will reap the land's rich bounties.

Hersey Farm Sale Gross Is $1,441,000

BY JOYCE BUPP
York Co. Correspondent

CROSSROADS (York) — An estate land sale of five farms in southern York County grossed $1,441,000 on the combined 400+ acres, during a highly-publicized auction held last Saturday.

Despite a steady drizzle, an estimated crowd of well over 300 buyers, runner-up bidders and interested lookers packed beyond capacity a tent erected in case of inclement weather. Sale of the estate of the late Maynard F. Hersey had generated widespread interest across York, Lancaster and northern Maryland areas.

When the gavel cracked for the last time, only the runner-ups were disappointed, and a possible new price record had been set for agriculture ground in York County.

And, according to the several buyers involved, the tillable land will stay in agriculture production.

Barley Brothers, of Conestoga, put the final bid of $595,000 on Farms #1, #2 and #3, a combined total of 207 acres, or $2875 per acre. The three farms were of adjoining land, with the approximately 120 combined tillable acres cropped in continuous swath.

The farms were more familiar to locals of the Rock Jim Road area of East Hopewell Township as "The Hershey Old Home Place," "The Harry Stitely Farm," and "The Charles Saylor Farm," and offered a combined 17 township development rights.

"We want it for farmland and have no plans to sell any cropland," indicated John Barley, Lancaster state legislator who operates Barley Brothers with his brother Abraham. "It fits with other property we own and rent in York County, and was an opportunity to purchase some good farmland at a reasonable price."

He acknowledged that there is a "fair amount" of untillable land in the combined three acreages, and some interest by other buyers in the purchase of the farms' homes and buildings.

York area oral surgeon Dr. Robert Ragland was winning bidder on Farm #4, purchasing the 120 acres of "The Kohler Farm" for $410,000, or $3416/A.

The acreage is zoned Agriculture/Residential, with an estimated development potential of 19 building rights, and has more than a half-mile of road frontage overlooking Pleasant Valley Golf Course.

According to Mrs. Ragland, plans are to continue farming the 100 acres tillable, which compliments cropland on their home farm. They have no plans at present to exercise development of the building rights.

Auction site was the "Dr. Curran Farm," just outside the borough of Crossroads and home base for the farming operations of the late Mr. Hersey.

Stewartstown attorney Ed Golla, acting as purchase agent, made the bid of $436,000 for the 78 acres of Parcels A and B included in the home place, or $5590/A. With 70 acres of tillable ground, the Crossroads farm's focal point is a huge brick home picturesquely surrounded by a grove of large, old hardwood trees.

Though not at liberty to divulge buyer information, Atty. Golla did indicate that the "bulk of the land will stay in agriculture in the hands of an outstanding farmer."

The two parcels in the Crossroads farm have a combined 11 potential building rights, and more than a quarter mile of road frontage on the village's main street. The "mansion" is expected to be sold separately.

"I don't know if any agriculture ground ever sold for more in the history of York County," reflected Penn Grove auctioneer Bob Sechrist, who with his brother Tom, handled the two-day sale of land and extensive farm machinery lineup. "It really exceeded most of the pieces sold in York County for farmland."

Sechrist believes the sale indicates a trend of land prices creeping upwards in the area, and a narrowing of the gap between York and neighboring Lancaster County farmland values. He indicated increasing interest in York County farmland from the Amish community, as Lancaster's prices have outpaced those in York.

Auction of the five farms of the Maynard F. Hersey estate generated widespread interest for the two-day sale of land and equipment of the late York County bachelor farmer. Sale of the 405 acres of land grossed $1,441,000 and is believed to have set a new high for York County agriculture production land.

Presentation of the animal to its best advantage is the emphasis of the showmanship classes. The competition's judges, Block & Bridle alumni, Jess Kaufman, beef judge; Besty Wees, horse judge; Bob Bortz, swine judge; and Jim Black, sheep judge.

Chris McKarren, show manager, was quite pleased with this year's event. "I thought the show ran very smoothly," she commented. "The club really put an effort behind it—everyone worked together."

Although the show is sponsored by the Block & Bridle Club, it is open to any Penn State student who has an interest in fitting, showmanship, or both.

Every year the Block & Bridle Club devotes the show to a person who has given unselfishly of himself or herself to the club. This year's devotee was Keith McCloskey, a former assistant horse herdsman at the university from 1978 to 1988.

Show officials included Kevin Kershner, beef superintendent; Chad Martin, horse superintendent; Dave McCullough, swine superintendent; and Janet Schick, sheep superintendent. The assistant show manager was Shawn Kauffman, the club advisor is Dr. Harold Harpster.

-A special ceremony planned for June 18 when the poults for the Fifth Central Pennsylvania Turkey Meat Production Test come out of the incubators at the Johnson Hatchery, Ephrata.

Invited to attend the ceremony are Pennsylvania Secretary of Agriculture William H. Henning, James E. Bobb and Harry W. Engle of the Hershey Estates where the birds will be grown, and Harry Kauffman and Dr. Buss of the Penn State College of Agriculture.

Generall favorable March weather, along with continuing better management were largely responsible for the record 342 million egg production figures for the state in the month.

Production was 14 per cent above February and 13 per cent above March of '58. An increased number of layers on hand also contributed to the increase in egg production. Average number of layers in production in the state during March was 17,784,000-four per cent more than a year ago.

-Spokesman for the Lancaster County Extension Service Poultry Assn., Feed and Egg dealers and hatcherymen have announced a jointly-sponsored county-wide "Egg Marketing Meeting" for 8 p.m. daylight saving time, April 30 in the Manheim Township High School auditorium. Special invitations are being mailed to more than 3,000 egg producers in the county, according to Harry S. Sloat, assoc. county agent.

-The Tenth Annual Lancaster County Homemakers Day is scheduled to begin at 10 a.m., April 22 in the Blue Ball Fire Hall, Miss Norma Zehner, associate home economist, announced Friday.

Mrs. Mark S. Hess will preside at the motning session, which will feature Miss Catherine Love, Penn State specialist, speaking on "New Accents in Food Buying."

Miss Ruth Kriebich will narrate the annual fashion show. The morning session also will incluide devotions and group singing.

Mrs. J. Everett Kreider will preside at the afternoon session. A mixed double-quartet from Garden Spot High School will appear.

Bush, Yeutter Answer

current levels or intensifying the existing tariff and non-tariff barriers. According to USDA officials, the agreement does not require the United States to do anything differently from what is now done.

"We had a good week in Geneva," said Clayton Yeutter, U.S. Secretary of Agriculture, who also participated in the radio interview. "We got the kind of long-term commitment that we wanted, and we simply have to fight this out at the negotiating table. But, as Mr. Bush said, we certainly want to do the right thing in next year's farm bill to contribute to that negotiating environment. In other words, we sure don't want to compromise the negotiating in any way; we want to enhance it."

With regards to the outcome of the GATT talks, Bush promised that United States food exports wouldn't be used as a foreign-policy tool. "I will not do that as President of the United States.... We won't use food as a diplomatic tool. We want to start building confidence in American agriculture in terms of reliability in foreign markets," he stressed.

The dairy industry will be featured more strongly in GATT talks and the 1990 Farm Bill, according to Yeutter. Past dairy policy involved retaining import quotas and the domestic market. "Now, however, it seems to me that we have become so competitive in dairy production in this country, that we ought to be looking for more export markets than we have in the past," he said.

Federal budget cuts

A lot of concern has been voiced in Congress, particularly the House Agricultural Committee, about last week's budget announcement. They worry that the budget will require agriculture to take more than its fair share of cuts in spending.

When reminded of his campaign promise not to balance the budget on the backs of farmers, Bush replied: "We're in perilous budget-deficit times. We have to get the deficit down. The best way to help American farmers is to get the interest rates down; and the best way to do that is to make the tough decision to get the spending side of our budget down...Now, having said that, I feel farmers are fair play....I think what we've done here is fair.

"I can guarantee that if we are successful, and I've incidentally done this first step without raising taxes for the American farmer, then you're going to have (increased) benefits to the farmers, and you're going to have a lower interest rate, a continued growing economy, and if we succeed overseas, we're going to have a fair market for ag products."

During the press conference, Bush also announced that additional advance deficiency payments will be given to farmers who sign up for the 1989 wheat, feed grain, rice, and cotton program. These payments could total up to $850 million.

Bush assured reporters that the payment increases wouldn't necessarily be the sum total of federal action for producers of those crops. "I will be very open minded in the White House if Mr. Yeutter comes over with additional suggestions or recommendations. So, (these payments) are not the definitive answer, but they are something that we hope will help the farm family."

president and president. He was also a member of the Ag Student Council, Coaly Society, and Alpha Zeta Fraternity. He also had the honor of being on the Penn State Dairy Cattle Judging Team.

Since college, Dale has been active in many activities including judging over 60 shows and officiating at more than 40 judging contests. He has also spent many hours working as a Dairy Bowl coach. Other activities include serving as president and vice-president of the Penn State Dairymen's Club, advisor to the Pennsylvania Junior Holstein Association, and a member of the NAAB Dairy Sire Evaluation Committee. In 1985, he was selected as the first recipient of the Dairy Science Club's Young Dairymen Award, and in 1986 he was awarded the Penn State Dairy Judging Team Service Award.

Because of his continued support of the dairy industry and of Penn State activities, the Dairy Science Club is proud to recognize Dale Olver as our 1989 expo dedicatee.

William Lesher, a 1988 Penn State graduate in ag science was chosen by the club to receive the 1989 Young Dairyman Award.

While attending Penn State, William was very active. As a member of the Dairy Science Club, he served as vice-president and chairman of the Nittany Lion Fall Classic sale. William was also a member of Coaly Society, Block & Bridle Club, and Ag Student Council. He also had the honor of serving as Mr. College of Agriculture in 1985-'86.

After graduating, William returned to the family dairy farm and jugging operation. Since his return, the farm's rolling herd average has increased 2,000 pounds without an increase in feed costs and they have tripled their milk processing business.

The Dairy Science Club extends this honor to William because of his outstanding work in the dairy industry.

Donald Seipt is this year's Department of Dairy and Animal Science Distinguished Alumnus.

Don graduated from Penn State in 1950 with a B.S. in Dairy Science. While at Penn State he was a member of the Dairy Cattle Judging Team, served as president of Ag Student Council, was an active member of two academic honorary societies, Skull and Bones and Gamma Sigma Delta.

After graduation Don returned to his home farm where he continued to serve the dairy industry. In 1977, Don received the Charles E. Cowan Memorial Award, an honor presented for leadership contribution to improvement and promotion of the Pennsylvania Dairy Industry.

In 1978, he received the Pennsylvania Master Farmer award. Don has also served as president of the Pennsylvania Holstein Association. He is also the past president of the Dairy Shrine Club and has served on the Board of Directors of the Holstein-Fresian Association for eight years. At present he is vice-president of the Purebred Dairy Cattle Association.

Don has proven himself as a master breeder of Holstein cattle. To date, Keystone Farm has bred 19 Gold Medal Dams and has been the recipient of the Progressive Breeder's Registry 31 times.

Because of his many contributions to the dairy industry and his superb leadership, Donald Seipt is this year's Distinguished Alumnus.

The expo begins at 8 a.m. with special events at noon, including an ice-cream eating contest, milking contest, and calf-dressing contest with teams of students, faculty and administrators participating.

The Dedicatee, Young Dairyman and the Distinguished Alumni will be honored at the expo awards banquet on Saturday at 6:30 p.m. in the Hub Ballroom. The recipients of the Outstanding Senior Award and the August E. Branding Memorial Award will also be announced at this time.

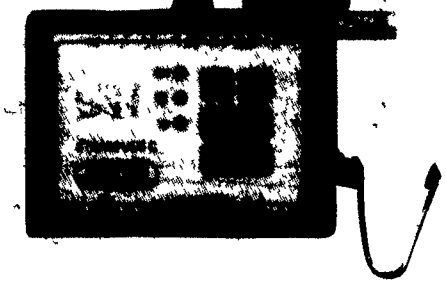
STIMPOULS "M" And STIMOPULS "C"

Stimopuls M

Stimopuls M, the pre-milking stimulator/pulsator, can be used with the ACR 3 Control. This modern, electronic milking device performs stimulation every milking better than by hand and with uniform reliability. The milking preparation routine can now be a timed event. Thus, combining the ACR with stimulation/pulsation assures efficient let down, milking and take-off for each individual cow.

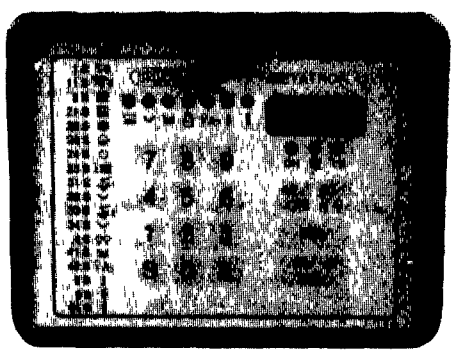


Stimopuls C

For a more complete milk-out and increased milk yields, Westfalia's Stimopuls can do the job for you.

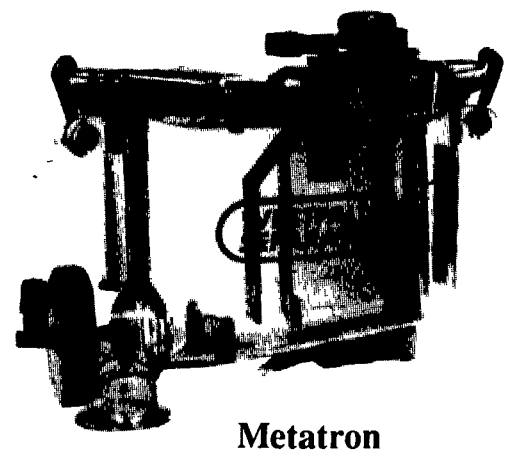
Now milking stimulation can be a timed event.

METATRON Will Make Your Milking System Complete!



Metatron Control

Westfalia's Metatron gives you the edge in effective, economical herd management. This DHIA and USDA approved cowside milk meter provides milk metering on an individual cow milking for in-parlor evaluation. Vital information of milk produced, maximum milk flow, average milk flow and milking time is also available at cowside. Aids you to better manage each individual cow.



Metatron Milk Meter

The Metatron Milk Meter is transparent for visible operation and designed to take years of use. The unrestricted, full 1" milk outlet takes into account all air flow and milk flow requirements for high producing dairy cows of today and tomorrow. It's convenient, too, and can be on line mounted, or remotely mounted out of the operator's way.

April Dairy Digest

Dairy Nutrition In-Service Training

Dairy Nutrition I - April 25-26, 1989. For all agents and others to improve basic nutrition knowledge. It is especially important for those who plan on holding a Dairy Nutrition School I in the future and new workers in the dairy area.

Dairy Nutrition School II - June 8-9, 1989. For all agents and others to improve their applied nutrition knowledge and trouble shooting skills. It is especially important for those agents planning a Dairy Nutrition II school in the future and new workers in the dairy area. Note these are new dates. It was originally scheduled later in the summer.

Agents interested in receiving graduate credit in Dairy & Animal Science for either or both dairy nutrition inservices (April 25-26 and June 8-9) should contact Jud Heinrichs, 814-863-3916 as soon as possible. A.J. Heinrichs.

Dairy Cattle Breeding Education Meeting

On June 6 and 7, the Atlantic Breeders Cooperative will host county extension workers with dairy responsibilities. Topics covered by Penn State and Atlantic personnel will include: physical traits and herdlife, young sire samling, the Animal Model, reproductive management in the high producing herd and the PA DHIA heifer management program.

Program details will be available soon from Alan Bair, member relations director for Atlantic Breeders. L.W. Specht.

Dairy Farmers and Oil Slicks

The Alaskan oil spill should remind Pennsylvania dairy farmers of two important points.

Environmental quality can be affected by our activities. Whether it is an oil tanker caught on a reef in Valdez or a manure spreader tipped over in the brook, water quality can be adversely affected. We can foul our own little corner of the world by forgetting the importance of good stewardship of our environment. A manure storage that has not been properly inspected and maintained is a threat to your farm and surrounding environment.

Energy supplies are critical to modern agriculture. The immediate affect of the oil spill in Alaska on world oil prices should remind us of the need to use energy wisely. How many of us have forgvotten all we learned in the 70's about using less energy? Careful use of energy - energy conservation - is just as important today as ever. A penny (more like a dollor or two) saved by wise use of energy can return profits to our families. Good stewardship of energy on the farm today will help us be better prepared for the next energy shortage.

If all of us, oil companies and ship captains, farmers and university professors take seriously our responsibility for caring for the environment we can leave our world in a little shape than we found it. R.E. Graves, Ag Eng Ext

Pa Dairy Sanitarians and Laboratory Analysts Conference

The annual conference for dairy sanitarians and dairy laboratory analysts will be held at the Keller Conference Center, May 15-17, 1989. Mare than 40 persons will make presentations to an expected audience of 250 people from Pennsylvania and surrounding states. A wide variety of topics will be covered including communications, marketing, microbiology, protein, regulations, quality and flavor, production testing, cleaning, composition and calibration, laboratory safety, and new milking and cooling equipment. Participants will pass the information learned on to dairy farmers and processing personnel. S.E. Barnard, Food Sci Ext.

Ontario To Start SCC Penalty Program

The average somatic cell count (SCC) of herd milk samples in Ontario has not declined during the past four years. They estimate a two percent loss in milk production for each 100,000 increase in SCC's. The present Ontario Milk Marketing Board (MMB) maximum is 800,000 with about five percent of the producers exceeding this level. The goal is to have all herds below 500,000 within five years.

Producer educational programs, printed materials and assistance have failed to reduce herd average SCC's below 369,000. The OMMB chose to impose penalties, rather than offer premiums, because they presently have penalties for bacteria, antibiotics and added water. Also, farmer, industry and OMMB staff believe that all producers should be expected to market milk of the highest quality, rather than being rewarded for doing so.

A simulated program was put into effect for six months. Starting August 1, 1989 penalties will be imposed whenever SCC's exceed 800,000 for three out of four consecutive months. A producer will be subject to $1.00 per hectolitre (about 100 pounds) for all milk shipped that month. Penalties will rise $1.00 each time for second, third, fourth and fifth and subsequent violations in a twelve month period. No producer will be suspended from market, but the maximum $5.00 penalty is expected to convince farmers to take steps to reduce SCC's.

The Ontario program seems to have merit. It may accomplish the same results as premiums paid by Pennsylvania milk buyers. S.E. Barnard, Food Sci Ext.

Concern About Dioxin In Milk From Paper Containers

Recent new release from Canadian sources have suggested that minute amounts of dioxin were present in paper milk containers and that it might possibly migrate into milk. The Food and Drug Administration has done testing and reports that insignificant levels of dioxin were found in milk. They indicate that consumers should not be concerned. S.E. Barnard, Food Sci Ext

Aflatoxin In Feed Grains or Milk

There has been much concern about the presence of high levels of aflatoxin in corn and other feed grains from drought areas being fed to dairy cows. The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture has been testing corn for aflatoxin since early fall and reports no samples with high results. They have been testing brands of milk every week since January 1 and have not found a sample with results above the 0.50 ppb actionable level. However, dairy farmers should be cautious about feeding grain originating from some midwestern or southern states. If in doubt have the grain tested. For more details refer to the PenMail release of October 20, 1988 by Dr. Richard S. Adams entitled, Aflatoxin Testing and Related Items. S.E. Barnard, Food Sci Ext

State Ag Preserve Board

while Act 149 allows a $10 million minimum to a $20 million maximum, PDA recommends the maximum "so we can embark on an ambitious start. It's important to establish the maximum threshold to accommodate the counties that have waited so long for this to become a reality," Crawford said.

And after discussion for clarification, the 17-member board voted unanimously in favor of the proposal to start with $20 million for this year.

The law provides $100 million for easement purchases and authorizes spending up to $20 million each year for the next five years. If counties do not use their portion of the moneys available, the funds go back to the kitty and counties who can use more will have access the the funds according to a set formula prescribed by the law.

After approving the purchase threshold, Mary Goodhouse, the new director of the Bureau of Farmland Preservation, presented proposed guidelines for the board to review and rework. The board is responsible to formulate guidelines for operation of the program. These guidelines will be used to guide the operation of the program for one year and will be used to put final rules into place by February of 1990.

Goodhouse, who headed a farmland preservation program in Connecticut and came to Pennsylvania six weeks ago, said she was really pleased the ag easement purchase program was in place. "I'm really glad Pennsylvania, one of the largest agricultural states, is doing something about farmland preservation while a lot of farmland is left," Goodhouse said.

After a full meeting day, Secretary Wolff commend the board for its work. "We are off to a good start, and the people of Pennsylvania are the beneficiaries," Wolff said. "The farmland we save belongs to our children and their children and to generations to come who are entitled to the same quality food supply we enjoy today.

"It is important that we prepare to use all the resources we can," Wolff said. "Farmland is disappearing daily and we have no time to waste."

The 17-member board includes: Lorraine Hovis, William Hughes, Louise Midla, Bernard Hankin, Russell Nickel, Kenneth Rutt, Frederick Slezak, James Cappucci, and George Gregg.

Karen Miller, Arthur Davis, Samuel Morris, Kenneth Brandt, Edward Helfrick, Patrick Stapleton, Lamartine Hood and Secretary Wolff, chairman.

Agricultural Accidents And Rescue Programs

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Last year, more than 8,000 Pennsylvanians were involved in serious injuries on farms, say the results of a survey done by Dr. Dennis Murphy, assistant professor on agricultural engineering. Yearly estimates of these accidents are that a few hundred result in seriously disabling injuries. And about 40 people die.

To help rescue services cope effectively with agricultural accidents, the Penn State College of Agriculture and the Department of Agricultural Engineering are sponsoring an Agricultural Accidents and Rescue program to be held at the University Park campus during the weekends of May 20-21 and June 3-4. "Agricultural rescue is a very specialized area of rescue because of the machinery and the structures on the farm," says Murphy. The Penn State program is one of the few programs that cover this specialized area. Murphy points out that this is the only program that offers certification by the Pennsylvania Department of Health.

All participants are expected to have previous rescue and emergency care training and experience. Murphy encourages attendance by "anyone who services a rural area, including ambulance services and fire fighters who provide rescue service. Even dispatch personnel would learn about preplanning and what questions to ask."

Jerry Jesperson, certified agricultural accident and rescue instructor, will be the chief instructor. Other rescue instructors who have been involved in the development of the program also will participate. The program will cover instruction in 12 topic areas, including operating tractors and tractor overturns; manure storage, grain bins, and silos; and combines, silage wagons and hay baling.

Participants will receive both classroom instruction, with video tapes, and field experience, including operating farm machinery, and they will be given printed resource materials for future reference.

Those participants who successfully pass all examinations will be awarded a certificate of completion and will receive a baseball cap with an agricultural rescue patch. They also will be certified as agricultural rescue technicians by the Pennsylvania Department of Health as part of the department's comprehensive rescue certification program. From the Pennsylvania Health Department they will receive a rescue patch and an agricultural rescue rocker, another type of patch.

Registration must be completed before May 8 and enrollment is limited to the first 50 applicants. A registration fee of $85 includes the cost of instruction, course materials and coffee breaks for both weekends. Lodging and meal costs are not included.

For additional information about the program, including a list of required protective gear, or to request a registration blank, call 814-865-8301. Changes In Farm Credit Benefits Borrowers

Farmers and ranchers can look forward to a more stable and competitive credit environment when they seek financing this year, according to officials of the Farm Credit System.

That's good news for rural America, which has suffered through tough times during much of the 1980s. Unstable interest rates, declining farmland values and depressed commodity prices created a financial crisis for many in the agriculture industry. This same turmoil hit the banking industry as well. According to the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, nearly 180 commercial ag banks were closed from 1985-1987 and another 28 failed in 1988. It also was a difficult period for the nation's largest agriculture leader -- the Farm Credit System.

Fortunately, 1988 was a year of recovery for many in agriculture, including the borrower-owned Farm Credit System. "Barring some unforeseen crisis, we are hopeful that the overall credit situation -- which improved substantially last year -- will progress even more in 1989," said Sam Eberly, Farm Credit Bank director and chairman of the Farm Credit Corporation of America.

The $62 billion Farm Credit System has made significant changes to bring competitive interest rates back to American agriculture and to assure farmers and ranchers a dependable source of credit during 1989. The System's achievements are the result of many factors: the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987; changing economic and agricultural conditions; and its own commitment to meet the changing needs of farmers and ranchers.

"In many ways, this is not the same Farm Credit System that people knew as recently as one year ago," said Eberly. "The last couple of year have caused us to rethink the way we've done business in the past and make some pretty significant changes."

Key among these changes are a new pricing philosophy and rededication to customer service and new loan products like fixed- and adjustable-rate loans.

The needs of farmers and ranchers are changing, and the System is responding by offering more credit options. In addition, System loan rates have become more competitive, and System institutions have become more responsive to changes in the marketplace. In fact, System banks and associations in many parts of the country are reorganizing with stockholder approvals to streamline operations and enhance customer service.

Looking back, 1988 was truly a turnaround year for the Farm Credit System. Performance indicators were up in virtually every aspect of business. For the first nine months of 1988, the System reported net income of $434 million, compared to a combined three-year loss of $4.8 billion for 1985-1987. Loan quality also was upand nonearning assets were reduced dramatically.

Eberly noted that other indicators are equally positive and that "borrower confidence is returning." After five consecutive years of decline, System loan volume has stabilized. At the same time, its average cost of loan funds is down significantly from record levels set in 1982.

Although farm income has ben strong the past few years, not all have shared equally in the recovery of the farm ecoomy. Since 1986, the System has restructured more than 2,000 problem loans valued at $8.3 billion. In the first nine months of 1988 alone, the System restructured $2.1 billion in loans as the last costly alternative to foreclosure. This amounts to one-fifth of all high-risk loans at year-end 1987. During the same period, foreclosures in process declined 39 percent.

"No other farm lender has done more to help borrowers in financial trouble than the Farm Credit System," Eberly said. "And it's being done at the same time we're reaching out to borrowers in strong financial standing with better products and service. The two go hand in hand, and they both bode well for farmers and ranchers in the years ahead."

Gable. Those heifers were the first and the foundation of the herd. Not surprisingly Ayshire were brought in at the request of the company buying the Gables' milk to get their butterfat test up.

And it did. The D.H.I.R. average for 1988 was 17,143 pounds at 4.2 percent, 724 pounds. This earned Gable his 31st Constructive Breeder Award presented at the National Ayrshire Meeting. In the Gables' 70-head milking herd are four animals classified excellent, two with production records over 150,000 pounds and six others in the herd with 100,000 pounds or over.

"In our lifetime we've had 62 cows producing over 100,000 pounds and all were bred by us," said Gable.

To confirm their progress, it was Conebella Rebel's Annette which topped the 1989 National Ayrshire Sale held last week in Hagerstown, Md., held in conjunction with the National Ayrshire Meeting.

The final bid of $4,400 took this junior 2-year-old. Annette was bred to Conebella Vigor ET, one of the Gable's bulls in a young sire program. This was Gable's first top seller at a national sale. The sale averaged nearly $1,700 on 30 head.

Annette impressed the crowd with her size and also with her depth of pedigree. Her dam, Conebella G. B. Angel classified 90 or over for four years. Angel classified at 92 as a 5-year-old and reached a lifetime record of 125,000 pounds.

Vigor ET's sire is the number one bull on the USDA Production Type Index (PTI). Vigor's dam is Conebella Bettys Celia with two records over 20,000 pounds. Her other records are: Age 2-9, 15,351M, 4.5F, 695F; Age 4-4, 16,148M, 4.7F, 766F; Age 6-2, 17,953M, 4.6F, 833F; Age 7-3, 18,179M, 4.2F, 768F; Age 8-3, 18,251M, 4.6F, 840F; Age 9-5, 18,818M, 4.6F, 870F; Age 10-6, 18,803M, 4.4F, 818F; Age 11-11, 23,374M, 4.6F, 1,071F; Age 14-2, 21,000M,4.8F, 1,000F. All are 305-day records.

Celia is a fourth generation 150,000-pound cow classified at 91 and in another couple months, according to Charles, Celia will have surpassed the 200,000-pound mark. The accompanying picture shows a beautiful dairy cow in any color and merits a greater appreciation knowing she was 12-years-old when the picture was taken. At 15-years-old she is still in the Conebella Farm milking herd.

Celia has four sons in sire programs. Two sons at Sire Power are Vigor ET and Matthew ET. Sire of Vigor ET is De-Ayrs Royal Vitality. Matthew is the offspring of Ardrossan H-K Evangelist ET. Conebella Luke ET is in the sire program at 21st Century Genetics is also sired by Evangelist ET.

Conebella Bell Boy is sired by Woodlands Bluebell Triumph and is in Eastern A.I. in New York.

Charles and Donald are excited about Conebella Corben ET, which recently entered Pennsylvania's Young Sire Program which is held in cooperation with Atlantic Breeders Cooperative.

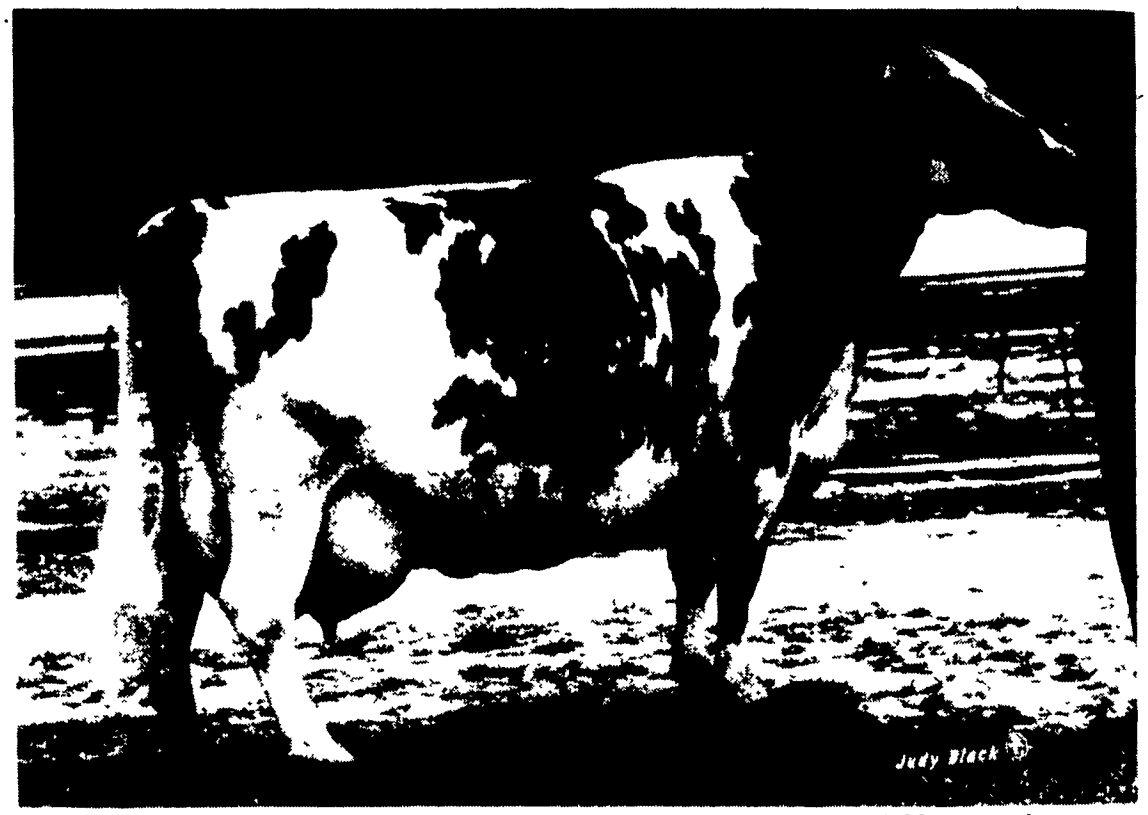
Corben's dam is Conebella P C Corinne and the sire Covey Farms Vit Benefactor. That sire is the combination of Vitality and Covey Farms G.B. Rufus on the sire side.

On the dam side Corine is a third generation Excellent, 20,000-pound cow, with a 4.3 percent fat test as a 3-year-old, 861 lbs. of butterfat.

"In her fourth year she started out for her first test in January at 103 pounds," said Charles.

"We are very enthusiastic. What we're hoping for is that he (Conebella Corben) will transmit the size, milk production and the over 4.0 test. We believe he will."

His chances are good. Corinne and her dam Cora measure 59 " at the withers, according to Gable.



Conebella Bettys Celia is a fourth generation Excellent and a 150,000-pound cow classified at 91 and a beauty at 12-years-old. Celia is 15-years-old and in a few months she will pass the 200,000 pound mark in milk production.

Conebella Cora is a second-generation Excellent. Carla the dam of Cora reached over 160,000 pounds milk at 4.7 percent total lifetime and is also an Excellent.

The beauties of the Conebella Farm are known for high test, excellent milk production, stature and longevity.

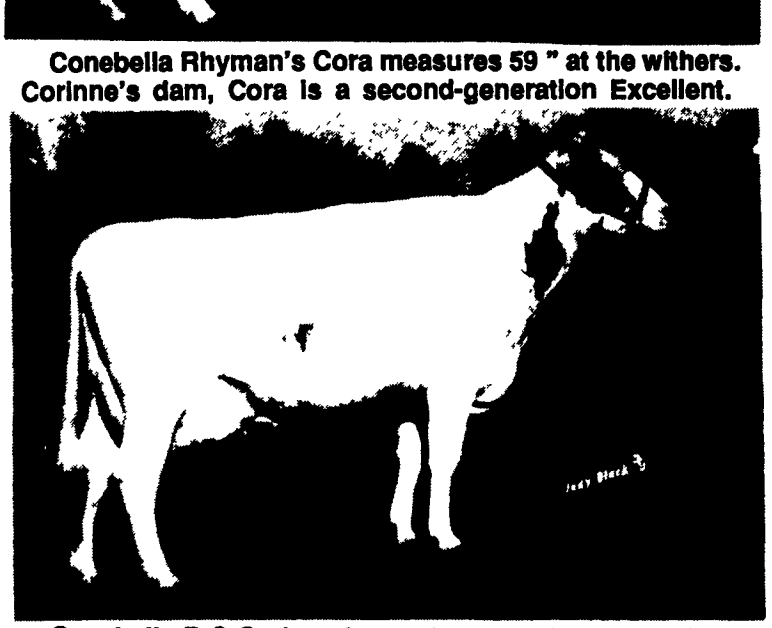
"We've been breeding to increase production and to have good, functional type," explained Charles. "I have people ask me 'Where do we get such a good test?', It's bred. It's in the cow families and that is one thing we always tried to maintain."

"When I was a kid I was impressed the depth of pedigree of the Windrow cattle owned by C. E. Wilson who had the Windrow Farm. My goal was to have a herd of Ayrshire cows with deep pedigrees and outstanding production," said Charles.

Two cows in the herd with over 150,000 pounds are Celia and Conebella Ritzy. Ritzy is classified 90 and with 157,000 pound record as of last month.

For those of you wondering, there was a third offspring from the Ardrossan Evangelist ET, besides Matthew and Luke there was Mark. Mark was recently sold to Lyle Tabb & Son of Kearneysville in West Virginia.

Conebella Rhyman's Cora measures 59 " at the withers. Corinne's dam, Cora is a second-generation Excellent.



Conebella P C Corinne is another Excellent in the Conebella Farm herd. She is the dam of Conebella Corben ET. Corben is presently in the Pennsylvania Young Sire Program. Corinne is a third-generation Excellent, 20,000 pound cow at 4.3 test.

Pesticide Regulation Effectively Protects Public Health: Cornell Scientist

ITHACA, NY — The press and the public may have become overly concerned about pesticide residues in food, according to Cornell University toxicologist James W. Gillett. He asserted in an interview that the current government regulatory process is highly effective in protecting public health and the environment.

"The U.S. diet is healthy, varied, and wholesome," Gillett said. "There is no evidence whatsoever that any child ever died in the United States from eating food that contains pesticide residues." Gillett is a proffessor or ecotoxicity and director of the Institute for Comparative and Environmental Toxicology at Cornell.

In its report, NRDC, the New York City-based environmental group, charged, among other things, that the current federal regulation of pesticides fails to protect preschoolers from exposure to what the group called "dangerous amounts of pesticides" in fruits and vegetables.

"The NRDC report is a simplistic view of the problem. Parents should not be panicked by such reports," stressed Gillett. "Pesticide residues in food are insignificant and would probably not cause cancer as the group claims."

Consumers Union, publisher of "Consumer Reports" magazine, said on March 30 that it found five brands of apple juice unacceptable to consumers because of what it called "high levels" of residues of Alar in those samples it tested. It reported that these samples had levels ranging from 0.62 parts per million (ppm) to 1.8 ppm. Alar is the trade name for the plant growth regulator daminozide and is used primarily on red apples.

Residues of Alar in apples are far below the federal standard of 20 ppm, Gillett pointed out.

For instance, tests conducted by the New York State Department of Agriculture and Markets showed that more than 79 percent of apples sold in stores throughout the state are free of Alar. In those samples where this chemical is detected, Alar was found at levels ranging from 0.5 ppm to 3.3 ppm, well below the maximum allowed by the Environmental Protection Agency.

"There is absolutely no reason for parents to stop giving apples to their children," Gillett said. "As far as I am concerned, I will continue to have my own children eat the fruit. A child would have to eat hundreds of pounds of Alar-treated apples a day to even get close to the level set by the EPA as unsafe."

Gillett pointed out that the levels of potential chemical carcinogens in the American diet were much higher two decades ago when modern chemistry, toxicology, and risk analysis first began to be applied to questions of food safety. Thus, "We should have been seeing a very appreciable rise in cancer rates in recent years," he stated. "That the rates have not increased is supportive of the conclusion that the tolerance-setting mechanism works."

Gillett also said that the NRDC report "wastes our time and energy" because there are more pressing health issues requiring attention.

"Overconcern about these residues may have been misplaced and diverted resources from more pressing problems," he wrote in a recent position paper. "For example, there has been a 20-fold increase in microbial infections arising from public drinking water supplies, probably because of changes in chlorination patterns undertaken to avoid trace amounts of muagens and carcinogens in cholrinated drinking water."

He also pointed out that hundreds of children are involved each year in accidents caused by improper handling of common household chemicals such as bleach, soap, salt, and medicine.

Gillett, who previously served as a senior terrestrial toxicologist with the EPA's Environmental Research Laboratory at Corvallis, Ore., said that the government regulatory process also takes into account children, not just adults, in establishing pesticide tolerance levels in food.

Who Says Apples Are Dangerous

RICHARD E. SINCERE, JR.
Capital Research Center

WASHINGTON, DC — Apple growers are seething with anger these days. Their ire is understandable. While they were out in their orchards in Washington state or Michigan or Virginia or upstate New York, laboring hard every day to produce edible, nutritious fruit for America's kitchens, a group of lawyers and scientists in far-away New York City decided to issue a report that might well shut down many of their orchards.

Who dislikes apple growers so much that they caused a $20- to $30-million loss in apple sales over the past few weeks? Who is so irresponsible that their press releases threaten the livelihood of farmers and farmworkers across the United States? Who says apples are dangerous?

The Natural Resources Defense Council, that's who. NRDC operates on a budget of nearly $12 million, using its money mostly for courtroom battles against industry and government. In its 1988 fiscal year, NRDC received nearly $1 million in court awards (damages and attorneys' fees) as a result of its litigation efforts, which are ostensibly aimed at curbing air and water pollution. The rest of its income was divided about equally between membership dues and foundation and corporate support. Ironically, in light of current events, one of its 1986-87 corporate donors was the Mayfair Supermarket chain. Others have been Corning Glass Works, Morgan Bank, and the Arca Foundation, known as one of the main channels for tobacco industry philanthropy.

In this latest episode, NRDC released a report claiming that up to 6,200 American preschoolers could contract cancer as a result of eating apples treated with a chemical called Alar. What they failed to emphasize in the media blitz they orchestrated was that, even if the cancer risk is genuine, those children will probably not contract the disease until long after they have grown up and have had children of their own. Out of 20 million young children, some 6,000 of them may face an increased cancer risk during the next seven years.

Yet because NRDC failed to note that in its publicity, dozens of school boards across the country banned apples from their lunchrooms, mothers stopped buying apples, and orchard owners began losing money by the bushel.

And all this suffering—which includes lost jobs as well as lost income—may be for naught. Much of the NRDC report was based on outdated information, and the risk is actually about one-tenth of what the group claims. Other environmentalists, equally concerned with the potential threat of cancer-causing chemicals used on food, have criticized the study.

Ellen Silbergeld of the Environmental Defense Fund faulted NRDC for not weighing the harm of exposing Alar's hazards against the benefits that might result.

"There is not enough information to reach a conclusion that would be helpful from a policy sense," she told the "Los Angeles Times," "and the repercussions could be very serious. So my sense is, if I don't have enough information to say something sensible and/or constructive, I should be silent."

Silbergeld had done her own research on Alar and concluded the evidence of cancer risk was too skimpy to require action. Her view was confirmed by the Environmental Protection Agency, the National Academy of Sciences, and various industry groups.

NRDC prides itself in its refusal to have a staff economist to measure the economic impact of the environmental actions it advocates against the potential health benefits they might have. But let's look at the impact:

In Virginia, where apple growers do not use Alar on their crops, the price of apples plunged 35 percent in the weeks following the NRDC report. One apple cooperative in Winchester, serving 25 small farmers for the past 30 years, was forced out of business. Its former president said: "Business dropped 100 percent. It killed us." Reflecting on the NRDC report, apple grower Tommy Watt remarked, "This is the biggest setback that has faced the apple industry in my memory." (Mr. Watt began growing apples in 1963.)

In Washington state, sales have been down as much as 40 percent over last year. The drop in sales threatens the entire economy of Yakima County, which contributes $1 billion a year to the state's economy. Apple farmers in Washington figure their losses due to NRDC's report will number in the millions of dollars.

While NRDC rakes in more requests for information and inquiries about membership than it can handle, apple growers are going out of business, children are forgoing nutritious apples, and Americans fear perfectly safe foods. The Natural Resources Defense Council owes us all an explanation for its irresponsible behavior.

Jersey Production Hits All-Time High

REYNOLDSBURG, OH — The average production of Jerseys on official DHIR test hit an all-time high in 1988, according to Eugene P. Barton, Superintendent of Records of The American Jersey Cattle Club (AJCC), Reynoldsburg, Ohio.

The 47,416 Jersey lactations, the highest number of DHIR lactations processed in over 20 years, averaged 13,575 lbs. milk, 637 lbs. fat and 505 lbs. protein. These record levels easily surpassed the 1987 records of 13,222 lbs. milk and 623 lbs. of butterfat. With the rising demand for a high protein product and the popular cheese market, protein production was included in DHIR rankings this year. In 1988 99.3% of the Jersey cows enrolled in DHIR were tested for protein. The 1988 average was figured with 47,084 lactations.

The top herd in the nation for milk and protein production was The Jersey Nook, owned by Ralph and Betty Reichert, Riley, Kans. Their 30 completed lactations averaged an astounding 19,718 lbs. milk and 698 lbs. protein. The top herd in the nation for butterfat production was Russell Dairy Farm, owned by Wayne and Mary Russell and Tony and Marcella Russell all of Coquille, Ore. Their 102 completed lactations averaged 916 lbs. butterfat.

The Russells ran a close second in protein production with an average of 670 lbs. of protein. Second place for butterfat average was claimed by The Jersey Nook with an average of 898 lbs. Forest Glen Jerseys owned by Stan and Dan Bansen, Dayton, Oregon placed second for milk production. Their 195 completed lactations averaged 18,662 lbs. milk.

Jersey officials credit this rising productivity, coupled with the increasing value of high solids Jersey milk, for a revival in the interest in Jerseys. Participation in AJCC programs has been at record levels.

Chesapeake Bay Mobile Lab Visits Mifflin County

LEWISTOWN (Mifflin) — At first glance, the large recreational vehicle (RV) looks like any other motor home, used perhaps by a vacationing family or an elderly couple making the most of their retirement. But if you look inside, as a number of Mifflin County farmers did recently, you'll notice that the combination table, benches, and sleeping quarters have been replaced by bunsen burners, tubes, and various laboratory equipment. Obviously this is not a recreational vehicle.

A joint project between the Department of Environmental Resources and Penn State University, the Chesapeake Bay Mobile Nutrient Laboratory made its first 1989 trip Tuesday, April 11, to the James Hostetter farm, west of Burnham near Lewistown.

The lab was developed to encourage farmers in the Susquehanna River Basin to test their farm's soil, water, and manure. This type of testing can lead to significant cost savings for farmers by demonstrating how they can make the most of the nutrients found in their farm's manure and cut their commercial fertilizer bills by eliminating the use of excess nutrients.

Soil and water tests indicate that Pennsylvania farmers often unknowingly supply more nutrients through animal manure and commercial fertilizer applications than their crops need. Excess nitrogen and phosphorous can pollute local water supplies, the Susquehanna River, and eventually the Chesapeake Bay. The Mobile Nutrient Lab is one tool used by DER to demonstrate to farmers how they can prevent this water pollution as well as cut their fertilizer bills.

In addition to providing tours of the nutrient lab, Tuesday's program also featured a manure-spreader calibration demonstration, which was sponsored by the Mifflin County Conservation District.

When farmers spread manure on their fields, they often do not know exactly how much goes on each acre. It's important to know how much of the nutrients found in manure, such as potassium, nitrogen, and phosphate, are spread on a field. This will help the farmer determine how much commercial fertilizer his land needs.

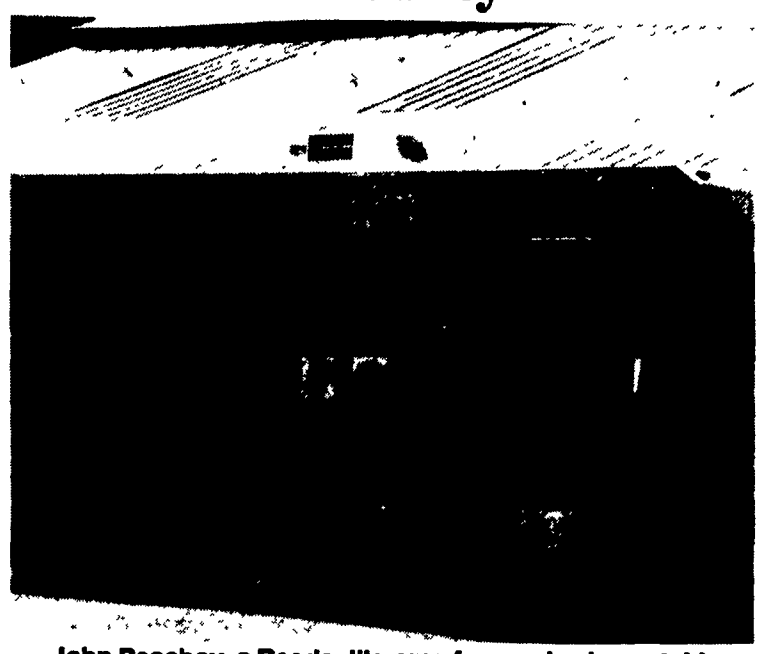
Harriet Rishel, manager of the Mifflin County Conservation District, explained that calibrating how much manure is distributed on a field will "help the farmer get better control of his manure spreader for economic reasons and to help protect local water quality."

Before the farmers arrived, different types of manure were laid out in several strips of equal length on one of Hostetters fields. The farmers were asked to examine each strip and estimate the amount of fertilizer applied. Later the farmer's "guess-timates" were compared with the actual amount spread. District and Penn State Cooperative Extension staff then demonstrated how to calibrate a manure spreader using equipment the farmer already owns.

There were a number of chuckles in the group of 18 farmers when some realized how far off their guesses were. Joe Dunmire, a McVeytown farmer, said "I'm here today to learn how to calibrate my manure spreader because I do spread every day, and until now (how much manure being spread) has just been at best a guess."

John Peachey, who owns a farm near Reedsville, explained why he attended the demonstration. "I just put in a manure storage facility...with the help of Chesapeake Bay cost share funds...so I thought I should learn how to make the most of the manure I'm storing."

Dave Filson, Penn State Extension agent, discussed how to make the most of nutrients found in animal waste by incorporating manure into the soil quickly. He also told farmers that a nutrient-mangement computer test is available, free of charge, at all extension offices. After running a soil and manure nutrient analysis, the farmer can tell exactly how much, if any, additional commercial fertilizer he needs to apply.



John Peachey, a Reedsville-area farmer, is shown taking a tour of the Chesapeake Bay Mobile Nutrient Lab. Peachey was one of approximately 19 Mifflin County farmers attending a recent manure-spreader calibration demonstration, which was sponsored by the Mifflin County Conservation District.

Farm income, farm foreclosures: "If a man owes a debt and storms inundate his field and carry away the produce, or through lack of water, grain has not grown in the field, in that year he shall not make any return of grain to the creditor, he shall alter his contract and he shall not pay the interest for that year." — Section 48 of the Code of Hammurabi, King of Babylon, about 2100 B.C.

Cumberland Valley Names 4-H'er

BY BONNIE BRECHBILL
Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin) — A ten-year-old girl was named the outstanding First Year 4-H'er by the Cumberland Valley Local group of Eastern Milk Producers. Amy Hartman, daughter of Carl and Deanna Hartman of St. Thomas, received the trophy at the group's annual awards banquet at 30 West Restaurant on April 13.

Amy belongs to the Western 4-H Dairy Club and the Junior Holstein Club. The Outstanding First Year 4-H'er Award is based on the project book score and on other activities throughout the year.

In April 1988, Amy purchased a junior calf, Windy Knoll View Gold Dolly, at the annual 4-H calf sale. At the county round-up in August, Dolly placed second in her class, and Amy earned fitting and showing awards. At the district show in Harrisburg, Dolly won a blue ribbon while Amy again took fitting and showing awards. In September, at the State Junior Dairy Show in Harrisburg, Dolly placed twelfth in her class of over 40 animals, and Amy received Master Fitter and Master Shower awards.

D. Eugene Gayman, President of the Cumberland Valley Local of Eastern Milk Producers, presents Outstanding First Year 4-Her Award to Amy Hartman of St. Thomas.

Dolly was also named Junior Reserve All-Pennsylvania Calf for 1988.

In the business portion of the meeting, the members elected new officers. Elected as president was R.C. Shoemaker, Chambersburg; Vice President, Bruce Gamble, Doylestown; Secretary, Christian Frey, Chambersburg; Treasurer, Kenneth Lehman, Chambersburg; Delegate, Robert Helman, Chambersburg; Alternate Delegate, J. Eldon Crider, Chambersburg; District Elector, Gerald Best, Willow Hill; and Alternate Elector, Floyd Helman, Spring Run. The Cumberland Valley local has 28 members.

Outgoing President D. Eugene Gayman, Chambersburg, presided over the meeting, his last as a producer. Gayman, a producer for Eastern since December 1957, recently sold his herd.

Speaker for the evening was District 15 Director Robert Gable of Perry County. Gable answered members' questions and showed a video about the cooperative to the 41 people in attendance.

Robert Witmer, left, of Witmer's Implements, Shippensburg, purchased this six week old Lar-Lin Bell Hilton-ET daughter for $550, then donated it back to the dairy club to be resold. Joshua Eshleman, St. Thomas, purchased it the second time for $500.

NEWS FROM REGIONAL COOPERATIVE MARKETING AGENCY INC
RCMA

RCMA Regional Directors Named

BATAVIA, N.Y. — The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) recently completed its series of annual region meetings held throughout January, February and March. The main focus of these meetings was for the over 6,000 RCMA independent dairy farmer-members across 11 Northeastern states to elect Regional Directors and Delegates for their region. The following people will lead their RCMA regions for the next 12 months.

RCMA Region 1, Wayne Hapworth - Winslow, ME; Region 3, James Sullivan, Hammond, NY; Region 4, Fred Goodnough - Mansville, NY; Region 6, George Demeree, Little Falls, NY; Region 6, Bill McCracken, Hamilton, NY; Region 7, Bill Nedrow, Lansing, NY; Region 8, Anne Livingston, Whitney Point, NY; Region 9, Arlan Button, Cohocton, NY; Region 10, Pete Smallback, Cherry Creek, NY; Region 11, Bill Murphy, Stamford, NY; Region 12, Robert C. Brown, Rome, PA; Region 13, Carl Erway, Ulysses, PA; Region 14, Earl Ocker, Cocolamus, PA; Region 15, Carl W. Brown, Pine Grove, PA; Region 16, Don Duncan, Robesonia, PA; Region 17, Joe Hess Jr., Mt. Joy, PA.

RCMA cooperative members are represented by a director appointed from their cooperative. There are 79 RCMA Directors who represent RCMA cooperative members. From the total 96-member RCMA Board of Directors, 11 farmers are elected to serve on the "Executive Committee". Those members include: Bill Zuber, Pres.; Norman Harvey, V. Pres.; Bill Murphy, Sec.; Lloyd Patterson, Treasurer; George Demaree; Don Duncan; Roy Hetrick; Harold Howrigan; Clyde Rutherford; and Robert Storch.

RCMA Issues 20-cent Per CWT. Credit To Milk Handlers

BATAVIA, N.Y. — The Regional Cooperative Marketing Agency (RCMA) will issue a credit of 20¢ per hundred pounds (cwt), or 1.74¢ per gallon, on all RCMA member milk used by approximately 100 fluid milk bottlers in the 11 Northeastern states. This credit will be applied against the recently-announced 95¢ per cwt. price to milk dealers who buy RCMA-member milk in April. The 20¢ credit was established on April 7, 1989 by the nearly sixty RCMA directors who gathered in Syracuse to conduct the business of their 22,000-member dairy cooperative.

According to RCMA Executive Director and General Manager, Ed Anna, the Board of Directors still feels that 95¢ per cwt is a fair price to establish for RCMA members' milk. "Unfortunately for dairy farmers," said Anna, "the metropolitan New York/New Jersey's largest milk dealers lead the way, and they were joined by others, in rejecting the 20¢ per cwt. increase. These milk bottlers stated that market conditions did not allow them to collect the 1.74¢ per gallon at this time." Anna indicated that such a statement by processors is difficult for dairymen to accept in light of the 11.2¢ per gallon seasonal price reductions these processors have experienced in the last 60 days.

Additional farmer frustration arises when dealers claim they pass along these reductions to their store customers while consumers still don't see lower prices. "People who are downstream from the farm, namely milk processors and retailers, do not understand the stresses and difficulties of the average dairy farmer; spring planting costs, high feed costs, lack of skilled help and decreasing milk prices make the dairy industry more and more vulnerable without any additional income to offset these losses," said Anna. Most dairy farmers agree with Anna that consumers want more of the money they spend on milk to go back to farmers, thus enhancing the future of their food supply.

RCMA President and dairy farmer, Bill Zuber, explained that, as a result of the 20¢ per cwt. credit to milk processors, RCMA members will continue to receive a premium on April milk comparable to the approximate 28¢ per cwt. they've been receiving in recent months.

March Milk Production Shows Gain Over 1988

HARRISBURG — Milk production in the state during March totaled 908 million pounds, 5 percent more than March 1988, according to the Pennsylvania Agricultural Statistics Service.

The number of milk cows in the state during March averaged 704,000 head, 6000 less than February and 11,000 fewer than a year earlier.

Production per cow averaged 1,290 pounds, an increase of 90 pounds over the previous month and up 80 pounds per cow from March 1988.

Grain and other concentrates fed to milk cows in Pennsylvania on April 1 averaged 17.3 pounds per cow per day, up 0.8 pounds from a year earlier. The value of that grain and other concentrates averaged $9.30 per hundredweight this April 1, an increase of $1.15 from a year ago.

In the 21 states surveyed, milk production during March totaled 10.9 billion pounds, 2 percent more than March 1988. Milk cows averaged 8.54 million head, 1 percent below the previous March. Production per cow averaged 1,272 pounds, 35 pounds more than a year earlier.

Grain and other concentrates fed to milk cows nationwide on April 1 averaged 17.7 pounds per cow per day, 0.2 pounds more than a year earlier. The value of the gain and other concentrates averaged $8.36 per hundredweight, $1.24 more than April 1, 1988.

Chesapeake Bay Program Reducing Nutrient Pollution In Montour

DANVILLE (Montour) — The overall goal of the Pennsylvania Chesapeake Bay Program is the reduction of pollution to the Chesapeake Bay especially nitrogen, phosphorus and sediment.

Nutrient pollution caused by excessive amounts of nitrogen and phosphorus, is altering the Chesapeake Bay ecosystem. The Susquehanna River is a major source of these nutrients.

Nutrients in manure and commercial fertilizer applied to crops may pollute water if the nutrients aren't taken up by the plants. Nutrient loss on cropland is caused by excessive soil erosion rates, high concentrations of livestock and over application of manure and commercial fertilizer. The average soil and nutrient loss per farm average $2,000 per year.

Soil conservation practices and sound nutrient-management techniques are essential in this region. Pennsylvania's Chesapeake Bay Program focuses on the Susquehanna River Basin and involves: planning, education, technical assistance and financial assistance. Landowners can take advantage of this program to initiate or improve management practices that will safeguard the water resources of Montour County, Pennsylvania and the Chesapeake Bay.

Landowners in Montour County now can apply for financial assistance under the state Chesapeake Bay Program. The funding covers up to 80 percent of the installation cost for Best Management Practices (BMPs) to a maximum of $30,000 per landowner.

BMPs funded include: permanent vegetative cover, animal waste management, stripcropping and contour farming system, terrace system, diversion system, grazing land protective system, waterway system, cropland protective system, conservation tillage, stream protection system, sediment retention, erosion or water control structures, soil and manure analysis, excess manure transportation, and fertilizer management.

If your land is located in Montour County, you are eligible to apply for cost-share money under the Chesapeake Bay Program. Please contact the Montour Conservation District 271-3059 for an application to participate in this program.

A Typical And Not So Typical Farm Woman

Franklin Co. Correspondent

CHAMBERSBURG (Franklin) — Farm women tend to be versatile, but Doris Meyers has to be one of the most flexible and versatile of the lot. Not only is she mother to five children and grandmother to three, and pursues such typical farm-wife activities as leading the 4-H Capon Club, the 4-H Quilt Club, gardening and crafts. She also is president of Meyers Bus Lines, Inc. and is responsible for the day-to-day logistics of getting 1,500 children safely to nine schools on 16 bus routes.

Doris's life hasn't always been quite this complicated. For awhile, all she managed was five children, a huge farmhouse, 51 veal calves, and a chicken house full of fryers.

But when she and her husband, Dean, purchased a bus company in 1980, Doris suddenly found herself juggling the scheduling of drivers and substitutes, hiring drivers, troubleshooting, and keeping a daily log of any incidents that occur with students.

"It's a lot of book work," Doris said. "If a child falls, or gets off at the wrong stop, I log it, because of insurance and liability claims. This is a high-risk business, and I take it seriously."

"We haven't had major problems," she adds. "We feel well-blessed."

Meyers Bus Lines is Chambersburg Area School District's largest contractor. The district is geographically the third largest in Pennsylvania. All Meyer's drivers have two runs, a secondary and an elementary, with three also having noon time kindergarten routes. The drivers average 65 miles a day.

This of necessity keeps Doris home on school days. She must be close to the two-day radio base—each bus has a two-way—and to the phone exclusively for bus calls, in the event of a breakdown, the need to get a substitute driver, or to solve any other problem that may arise. Fortunately, there are few breakdowns, thanks to the maintenance performed by Dean and his son-in-law. The busses—18 full-size busses, one mini-van and one Caravan—are serviced in a converted wagon shed on the farm.

Besides being responsible for the maintenance, Dean also acts as a substitute driver in a pinch. "He drives maybe three times a year, when it's a necessity," Doris said. "He keeps his bus license up so he can do that." Son Ryan, 19, who works full-time on the farm, also substitutes occasionally.

Not that Dean and Ryan don't have enough to do otherwise. With 40 cows to milk on the home farm and another 38 on a neighboring farm, they have plenty of work. Youngest son Darwin, a high school senior, milks at the neighboring farm in the evenings. They also have 18 sows and about 100 feeder pigs, and 160 acres of corn, alfalfa, timothy and grains on the home farm. Rented land brings their total acreage to about 400.

The bus company is a family affair—one married daughter drives full-time for Doris, and the other is the company's bookkeeper. Doris is not involved in the day-to-day operation of the farm. The oldest of eight children, seven girls and one boy, she grew up on a farm and was "Dad's right hand for anything but milking," she says.

Her farm training has stood her in good stead, though. The years of experiencing the unexpected occurences and interruptions that crop up daily on a farm have prepared her for managing 16 bus routes from her kitchen.

"I don't mind interruptions," she says. "I live by flexibility. When the phone rings or someone needs help, I drop what I'm doing and run. I've turned the oven off with something in it already, to drive school bus because of a break down."

"The bus company is our top priority," Doris adds. "The farm work is done around the bus schedule."

While Doris spends a large part of her time managing the bus company, she still finds time for the crafts and 4-H activities she loves.

"When I'm not on the phone, I've got my hands busy," she said.

Her hands were busy recently making a crib quilt for her newest grandson, born April 10.

For the past year, she has been the organizational leader of the county-wide 4-H Quilting Club. "I got into it because of the need for leaders, and also to help myself learn," she explained.

Doris's mother and one of her sisters are quilters; Doris always had the desire to learn, but couldn't find the time. The year-round club "makes me find the time," she said.

The capon club is Doris's other 4-H love. Her children joined the club about ten years ago, and when the leader retired after a few years, Doris's children encouraged her to pick up the responsibilities. "I didn't want to see the club dissolve," she said. She recently ordered 500 caponized chicks to start her fifth year as leader.

About 12 children participate in the 18-week, county-wide program. Doris teaches them the care and proper feeding of capons, and also how to dress and package the birds for market.

"This is the best 4-H project there is, for kids to have a profit for their work," Doris said. "Each child makes $5-$10 profit per bird."

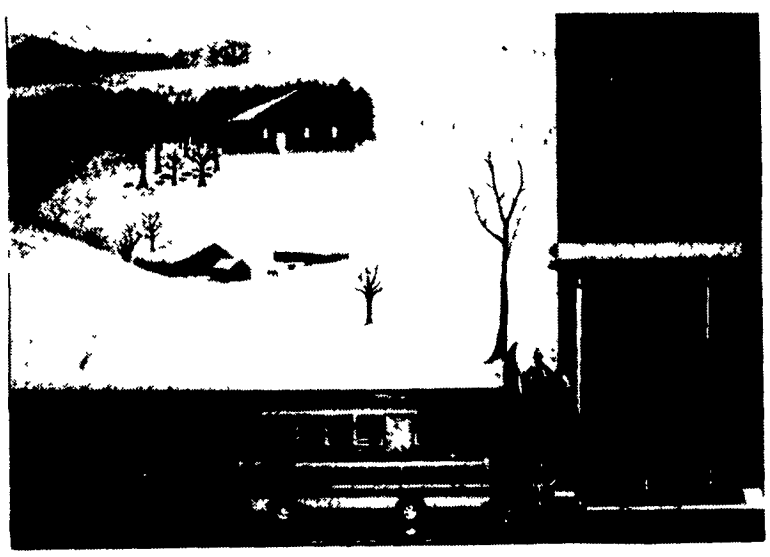
Doris was well-prepared to take over the Capon Club, as she had raised and dressed fryers and capons for her family for years.

The Meyers live on Dean's home farm, built in the 1860s. When Dean and Doris married in 1960, they moved into a mobile home on the farm and lived there for three years, as Dean's parents still lived in the house.

The spacious home has two stairways, including an open one in the kitchen. Triple doors between the parlor and the living room, and between the living room and the kitchen, allow most of the downstairs to be used as one large room. Dean's parents had used the rooms to hold religious services.

Decorating those rooms are many of Doris's handmade items. "I got into making crafts out of necessity, to decorate the farmhouse," she says.

Doris spends a lot of time running Meyers Bus Company from her kitchen with the help of two phone lines and a two-way radio.



This painting of Doris's first bus route includes the historic Rocky Spring church. She calls the painting, by her sister-in-law, "My Serenity." Doris won the trophies (at right) at local and state bus rodeos.

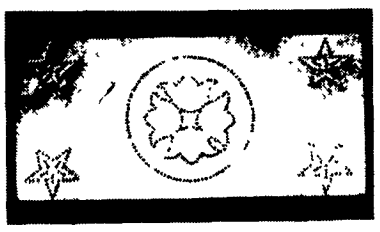
Prominently displayed is a bear Doris made out of a baby shawl used by her father-in-law as a baby. She also had teddy bears made for each of her children, using the shawl material for the ears and paws.

Chicken and duck collectibles preside over the living room, while the teddy bears watch over the parlor, but throughout the kitchen and office areas, schoolbusses are the main theme. Ceramic busses, bus refrigerator magnets, small metal busses, a large calendar with a picture of busses--Doris has them all.

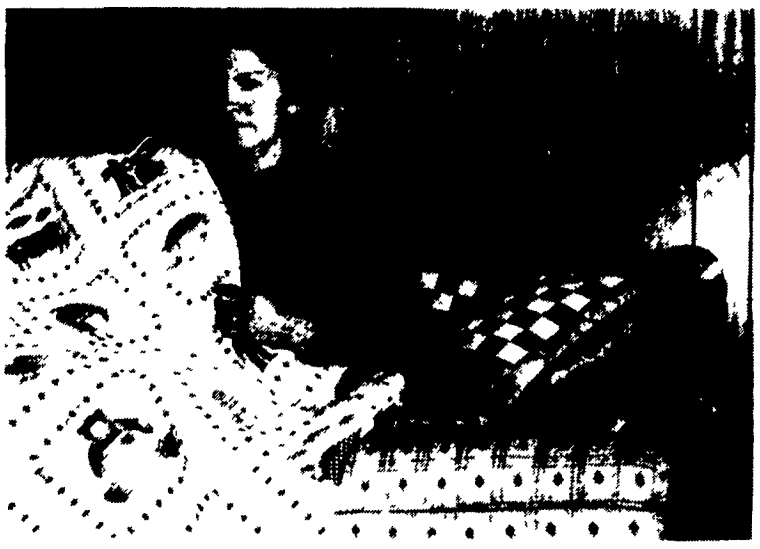
"I love the business," Doris says simply.

The business to Doris means being a mother, grandmother, wife, 4-H leader and executive director. A combination just right for someone who enjoys flexibility and versatility.

Doris's husband, Dean, used an old kitchen cabinet for 19 years to hold herd records in the barn. When Doris claimed it for the house, she discovered that one of the panels had been ruined by water, so she created a tin art panel to replace it.



Tin art sample shows Doris's skill.



Doris displays several of her handcrafted items, including a crib quilt for her newest grandson. Cross-stitched on the back of the quilt is: "The best kind of sleep/Bestowed by Heaven above/Is under a quilt/Handmade with Love."

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

For those of you who haven't flown in a small plane, you just don't know what you are missing--a real thrill that often includes a bumpy and noisy ride. In fact, for me, it is a bit scarey to look down hundreds of feet to the farms, houses and rivers below you. I'll admit that on the commuter plane from Harrisburg to Kennedy Airport in New York City, several of the passengers relaxed and slept.

Our first surprise on our arrival was being told that our flight to Ireland on Aer Lingus was delayed. We were given a ten dollar voucher for dinner and finally took off at 11:30 p.m. more than 12 hours after we left home. There were almost 400 people packed on the large green plane that flew over 500 miles per hour at 35,000 feet or seven miles above the Atlantic Ocean.

At one o'clock, after midnight, we were served a big meal by the 14 stewardesses. We would sooner have slept but due to losing five hours crossing the ocean they fed us to help us adjust to the new time.

A bus took us to the Fitzpatrick Castle Hotel near Dublin. It was now Sunday and we had several meetings with Co-op members and leaders of agriculture on quotas, which they have in Ireland. Their farms are about 50 acres and 22 cows is the size of an average herd. They get $15 per hundred for milk and their farms bring five to seven thousand per acre. The U.S. Ambassador to Ireland, Margaret Heckler, spoke to us. She said that one-half of their population is under 25 years of age.

Our meals were very hearty and consisted of many vegetables such as carrots, turnips, parsnips, potatoes and beans. For breakfast we had eggs, bacon, small sausages and blood sausage which was not a favorite.

Our tour of Dublin included St. Patrick's Cathedral which was founded in 1190 and rebuilt in the 14th century. There was ample time to shop during the eight days we spent in Ireland. Linen, crystal and wool were displayed in all of the shops. I bought a china sugar and cream set decorated with shamrocks.

Our group of 28 farmers from New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania attended a County Club and Pub for a dinner and to hear a stand-up comedian. We got back to our hotel after midnight only to find the huge, black, iron gates locked. We got in. All of the driving is on the left side of the road and gas costs $3.60 per gallon.

Next week I'll tell you about the dairy farms and the 12th century castles that we visited.

Try Cottage Cheese As A Starter

Cottage cheese and salads may be constant companions of spring meals if you are watching your weight, but does the rest of your family know that cottage cheese is not just "diet food?"

Cottage cheese is an inexpensive form of high quality protein, and because it is made from milk, it is a concentrated source of calcium, riboflavin and thiamine.

You should find plenty of cottage cheese as you shop this spring. Buy the texture that fits your needs. Coarse texture is excellent for simple salads while the smooth blends more readily with other ingredients in a molded salad.

What a nice contrast the bland smoothness of cottage cheese will make with the crisp texture of raw vegetables such as celery, carrots, broccoli, cauliflower, spring onions, and mushrooms. Keep plenty on hand for quick snacks.

Try the following recipe for Zippy Cottage Cheese Dip and-serve it with your favorite raw vegetables, and watch them disappear!

Zippy Cottage Cheese Dip

1¼ cups cream-style cottage cheese
1 teaspoon horseradish
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
1 tablespoon grated onion

Combine above ingredients in blender or food processor or place them in a small bowl and beat well. Place in refrigerator for several hours before serving to allow flavors to blend.

Of course, you do not need to limit your use of cottage cheese to salads. You can find recipes for budget-stretching main dishes, appetizers and a variety of desserts. Here are recipes for salads for every occasion. "Golden Treasure Salad" is a unique do-ahead version of a cottage cheese and fruit salad. Serve it tonight, and save the rest for a time when meal-preparation minutes are scarce. The "Coleslaw with Cheese Dressing" is an interesting variation of a traditional favorite.

Golden Treasure - Molded Salad
(8 servings)

1 3-ounce package lemon-flavored gelatin
1 cup hot water
1 6-ounce can frozen orange juice concentrate
2 oranges or an 11-ounce can mandarin oranges
1 medium apple, unpared, diced
½ cup chopped nuts or peanuts
2 cups cream-style cottage cheese

Dissolve gelatin in hot water. If using mandarin oranges, drain and add enough water to juice to make one cup. Heat the liquid and use to dissolve gelatin. Stir in orange juice concentrate. Chill until thick.

Peel and cut oranges into slices, sections, or chunks. Add apple cut into half-inch cubes and nuts. Whip cottage cheese or blend in blender until smooth. Add chilled gelatin and mix well. Fold in remaining ingredients. Turn into a one-quart mold or pan. Chill four hours or longer. Serve on bed of lettuce. Garnish with orange pieces or nuts.

Coleslaw with Cheese Dressing
(6 servings)

¾ cup cream-style cottage cheese
½ cup grated Cheddar cheese
½ cup salad dressing
2 teaspoons sugar
1 teaspoon instant onion, if desired
4 cups crisp shredded cabbage
1 green pepper, chopped
1 cup shredded raw carrots
1 medium apple, skin on, diced
¼ teaspoon salt

Put cheeses, salad dressing, vinegar, sugar, instant onion, and salt in a bowl. Mix well. Use blender or food proeessor if you have one. If thick, add milk by the tablespoonful. Mix vegetables and fruit. Just before serving, toss lightly with dressing.

Carrots Your Family Will Love

When your family turns up their noses at the healthy carrot, what is a cook to do? Lots. Marinate them, drown them in cheese, drench them with honey, add them to stews and disguise them in cakes and cookies.

A contributor suggests substituting boiled mashed carrots for the pumpkin in pies, custards, and breads. Carrots have a slightly drier consistency than pumpkin so add a bit more liquid. Substitute grated, raw carrots for zuchini.

Boil large carrots until fork tender in as little water as possible, drain. In heavy skillet, heat a generous glob of butter and quick fry the carrots, turning them until a golden brown. Do not have pan too hot or butter will taste burnt. Place on serving plate. Sprinkle lightly with brown sugar and cinnamon.

Ruth Nolt of Leola writes that mashed carrots can be sneaked into meatloaf. Also, carrot juice is good mixed with frozen concentrated orange juice. Most children like fresh raw carrots better than the cooked ones.

COPPER PENNIES

4½ cups uncooked carrots, sliced ¼-inch thick
2 medium onions, thinly sliced and separate rings
1 medium green pepper, cut in strips
Blend:
1 (10¾-ounce) can condensed tomato soup
¾ cup vinegar
½ cup sugar
½ cup cooking oil
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon prepared mustard
½ teaspoon salt

Cook carrots in small amount of salted water for 8 to 10 minutes. Drain, combine with onions and green peppers in large bowl. Cover and marinate in refrigerator several hours or overnight. Drain, reserve marinade. Serve in lettuce-lined bowl. Return leftover vegetables to marinade. Keep refrigerated. Makes 5 cups. Nice for picnics or vegetables prepared ahead for company.

CARROT COOKIES

4 cups unsifted flour
2 cups quick or old-fashioned oatmeal
2 teaspoons baking soda
2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
1 teaspoon salt
1½ cups shortening
2 cups brown sugar
1 cup granulated sugar
1 egg
1 teaspoon vanilla
3 cups cooked mashed carrots
1 cup chocolate bits or nuts, optional

Combine first five ingredients. Set aside. Cream shortening; gradually add sugars beating until light and fluffy. Add egg and vanilla. Mix well.

Add flour and carrots alternately mixing well after each addition. Stir in chocolate bits, if desired. Drop by tablespoonsful on lightly greased cookie sheet. Flatten with fork dipped in water. Bake at 350 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes or until lightly browned.

For a more wholesome cookie, sustitute whole wheat or corn flour for 2 cups of the white flour.

Kid's Korner

This little girl had a hard time deciding whether she enjoyed Elsie the cow or Elsie's ice cream better.

Visit Elsie The Cow

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MECHANICSBURG (Dauphin) — "Hey," Elsie the cow asked a little girl, "can you wiggle your ears?"

Try as she might, she could not.

"I can wiggle my ears," Elsie said.

Sure enough, her ears wiggled and wiggled and brought some giggles from the girls and boys watching.

Elsie the cow came the whole way from Disney World, Florida, to tell the boys and girls who visited Karns Market, Merchanicsburg, about her family and friends.

Elsie's family and friends are part of the Borden company. Elsie the cow was created in 1920 to help sell milk and ice cream. That makes Elsie 69 years-old. That's fairly old for a cow, but Elsie doesn't act her age. She flutters her bright brown eyes and winks if you tease her.

Some people think Elsie is a fake cow. But when they walk near her, Elsie calls out, "Hi. How are you today?"

Startled, the shoppers stop and stare. Some people find it hard to talk with a cow, but Elsie likes to talk. She especially enjoys hearing them tell her how much they enjoy her ice cream and milk.

If you never have a chance to talk with Elsie, you can eat her ice cream. Elsie moos, "If it's Borden, it's got to be good."

Mother's Day is May 14. Surprise your mother. Write and tell us why you like her. What is special about your mother. Send your letters to Lou Ann Good, Lancaster Farming P.O Box 609, Ephrata, PA 17522.

Hi!

My name is Ann Shoemaker. I am in eighth grade at Immaculate Conception School in New Oxford. I am 13 years old and I don't have any brothers or sisters.

I live on a 50 acre farm with my parents Fabian and Sylvia Shoemaker and with my grandma.

We have 18 cows and 12 calves. We also have two guineas, 2 sheep, 5 cats, 1 dog and I have a fat lop-eared rabbit named Pipsqueak.

I like the chores I have around the house, especially feeding the animals. I love to drive my dad's big tractors and bale hay. I also like to take walks in the woods, ride my bike and play the violin. I almost forgot, I have two goldfish, Bubbles and Giggles.

I like to do and read the Kid's Korner in the Lancaster Farming paper that my dad gets.

I thought you would like to know that I am the fourth generation to live on this farm. My dad's mom's parents lived here first and so forth. Our house is over 100 or so years old. Our barn is 112 years old!!! WOW!

Bye for now!

Ann Shoemaker
New Oxford

Hello!

Dear Kid's Korner. We live on a farm. We have one cow, 28 steers, 7 horses, 100 pigs, 5 cats, 2 dogs, 2 big rabbits and 7 small ones and 4 sheep. We have a big pond, one creek and a river.

I am 11 years old. We get the Lancaster Farming.

Bye, David
No address

Hi!

My name is Jeffrey Martin. I live on a 112-acre farm in Port Trevorton, PA. We farm only about 85 acres of the 112 acres.

We have 11 cows, 16 heifers, 1 butt, 7 horses, about 125 chickens, 2 dogs and 15 cats.

The horses' names are Fred, Pat, Tony, Polly, Prince, Tom and Sonja. The dogs names are Lassie and Duke. I had a third dog, Pepper, but he got run over by a car about a month ago. He was very special to me and I was very sad when he got hit. But I plan to get another dog in May.

I have no brothers or sisters to fight with so I have to fight with the animals. Out of those 16 heifers I take care of 14 of them. I also take care of the chickens.

I like school very much, but not the homework I get! Most of my teachers are very nice. We do lots of special activities in school to make up for the homework—or at least that's what I think. Sometime this month, we will clean the Selinsgrove Bypass near Selingsgrove, PA where my school is located. That will be lots of fun!

We live on a farm. My dad has 45 Holstein cows and lots of calves and steers. They get up in the morning at 4:30 and they milk at night at 4:30. We have no horses, but I wish we did. We have 30 chickens and they give a lot of eggs. Our dog's name is Boomer, and we have six cats that run all around our farm. We help our dad and mom do the chores. Well, I have to go now. So good-by.

Sincerely, Sheila Marie Schlegel

MICROWAVE MINUTES

By JOYCE BATTCHER

Fresh artichokes may seem exotic and mysterious — so mysterious that you might think whole artichokes would be hard to cook. They're not, especially in your microwave oven.

Microwave cooking 1 to 4 whole artichokes is quick, convenient, and vitamin-saving. For 4 artichokes, a deep microwave-safe bowl, a half-cup of water, a plastic wrap cover, and, at the most, 15 minutes of time, is all it takes. Compare this to cooking artichokes in 3 quarts of water in a huge pot for 20 to 40 minutes on the range-top!

Besides the cooking, artichokes may seem mysterious to buy, prepare, and eat, so I've included some basics, with help from the California Artichokes Advisory Board. Representatives of the Board report that a large high-quality crop is anticipated this year, making artichokes a good value.

Artichokes are at their peak from March to May. When buying spring artichokes, look for ones with even green color and tightly-packed leaves. They should be compact, firm, and heavy for their size. Artichokes come in sizes ranging from baby to jumbo. All are mature when picked, so they are ready for preparation when you see them at the supermarket.

Small, or baby, artichokes, weighing 2 to 3 ounces, are ideal for appetizers, stews, or stir-frying. When properly trimmed, every part is edible. Medium artichokes, weighing 8 to 12 ounces, are best served with a dip; stuffed with a hot or cold filling of meat, vegetables, or salad; or trimmed, sliced, and stir-fried. Large artichokes weigh 15 to 20 ounces each. This size is usually stuffed as an entree or served as an elegant shared appetizer with a dip for 2 to 4 people.

Artichokes are versatile. They go with just about any meat, poultry, seafood, or cheese. Their mild flavor blends with about any vegetable or herb. They may be served hot or cold.

After buying, handle artichokes correctly. Do not wash before storing. To keep longer than a few days, sprinkle lightly with water and place in a plastic bag; seal airtight and refrigerate.

If you want an elegant dinner appetizer, try whole microwaved Artichokes With Warm Seafood Sauce (below). Eating a whole artichoke is meant to be leisurely. It can be a fun, sit-down, appetizer-course for a dinner party. For a faster exotic artichoke dish, combine the Seafood Sauce with cooked artichoke hearts. Cook them from fresh, or choose frozen or canned artichokes for this recipe.

Warm Seafood Sauce For Artichokes

4 ounces Neufchatel cheese
¼ cup plain low-fat yogurt
½ cup cooked salad shrimp
2 tablespoons grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons chopped green onions
2 teaspoons lemon juice

Place Neufchatel cheese in small microwave-safe serving bowl. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 45 to 60 seconds or until softened. Blend in yogurt until smooth; add shrimp, Parmesan cheese, green onions, and lemon juice. Microwave on Medium 2 to 3 minutes, stirring after 1 minute, or until thoroughly heated. Serve with cooked whole artichokes or in Artichoke Seafood Casserole. Makes enough for 4 servings.

Each serving: 130 calories, 12g protein, 8g fat, 2g carbohydrate, 181mg sodium, 70mg cholesterol.

Whole Artichokes With Warm Seafood Sauce

4 medium Microwaved Whole Artichokes (below)
Warm Seafood Sauce (above)

Prepare and cook artichokes as directed below. While they stand to finish cooking, prepare Warm Seafood Sauce. Serve hot, passing sauce separately. Makes 4 appetizer or light entree servings.

To eat: Pull off outer petals one at a time. Dip base of petal into sauce; pull through teeth to remove soft, pulpy portion of petal. Discard remaining petal. Continue until all petals have been removed. Spoon out fuzzy center at base; discard. The bottom, or heart, of the artichoke is entirely edible. Cut into small pieces and dip into sauce.

Each serving: 155 calories, 15g protein, 8g fat, 8g carbohydrate, 256 mg sodium, 70mg cholesterol.

Microwaved Whole Artichokes

4 medium (about 12 ounces each) artichokes
½ cup water

Prepare artichokes: Wash under running water. Pull off lower outer petals. Cut stems to 1 inch or less. Trim stem so artichokes stand upright. Cut ¼ to ⅓ inch off the tops. If preparing ahead, brush cut edges with lemon juice to prevent browning.

Place prepared artichokes in deep microwave-safe bowl. Add water; cover with plastic wrap. Microwave (High) 12 to 15 minutes, rotating dish a quarter-turn halfway through cooking time. Let stand, tightly covered, 5 minutes. When done, petal near center will pull out easily. Turn over to drain. Serve hot with Warm Seafood Sauce or melted butter. Serve cold with any favorite salad dressing.

For one artichoke: Use a 1-quart measure. Add ¼ cup water; cover with plastic wrap and microwave (High) 5 to 7 minutes. Continue as above.

To stuff: After cooking, carefully scrape out fuzzy center portion with a small spoon and discard. Fill with a favorite hot mixture. Or cool and fill with a favorite salad.

Artichoke Seafood Casserole

Warm Seafood Sauce (above)
About 1-¼ cups cooked artichoke hearts, cut in eighths*
Paprika

Partially prepare Warm Seafood Sauce (above) by softening Neufchatel cheese in microwave-safe 1-quart casserole. Blend in yogurt until smooth; add shrimp, Parmesan cheese, green onions, lemon juice, and cooked, well-drained artichoke hearts. Cover with waxed paper. Microwave on Medium (50 percent power, 325-350 watts) 3 to 4 minutes, stirring once, or until hot. Sprinkle lightly with dry bread crumbs, then with paprika. Serve hot. Makes 3 light main-dish servings or 6 appetizer servings.

*From 8 to 10 medium, cooked, fresh artichokes; from a 10-ounce package of frozen artichoke hearts, thawed; or from a 10-ounce can of artichoke hearts, drained. To remove hearts from artichokes, see To eat (above).

Each serving: 204 calories, 8g protein, 11g fat, 9g carbohydrate, 282mg sodium, 93mg cholesterol.

Recipes in this column are tested in 600- and 650-watt microwave ovens. With an oven of different wattage output, timings may need slight adjustment.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Can you give me a hand? Just one good, strong, yank, please. That ought to be enough to save me from sinking deeper in this strangulating quagmire of paperwork.

It's starting to border on an environmental disaster of sorts. Something like an oil spill, creeping, spreading, covering every surface it touches.

Just not quite as sticky.

It goes on for hours, this working steadily at the house office, one piece at a time, through never-ending stacks of farm accounting paperwork. Bills. Checks. Statements. Stubs. Invoices. Receipts. Delivery slips. Tax forms. Pay sheets. Order forms. Incoming, outgoing, and some on hold.

A "finished" pile over there. A "working on" pile here. And a "put aside until the end" pile balancing on top of the telephone.

Glance away for even one second and those neutrons, molecules, atoms and all that other invisible highly-scientific stuff splits the papers off into clone stacks. Reproducing, and reproducing again, into more stacks, spilling out and dangling over the sides of the desk, like some chaotic experiment gone berserk.

Help!

A respite from the paperwork quagmire for evening barn chores is much too brief. For, lo and behold, (you knew it all along) there in the barn office wait more stacks. Calf books needing updated. Registry papers to fill out. Sketches to draw, breeding dates to look up, percentage information to pull.

Completed papers to file. Pedigrees to put away. DHIA sheets, feed analyses, sire summaries, bull books, classification forms.

Gathering an armful of the volume of data needed, I flee the barn office's overflow to tackle this dairy herd paperwork organization in more cozy warmth at the kitchen table.

But first, to make workspace, there's sorting and stacking newspapers, magazines, equipment advertising flyers, fertilizer brochures, seed order copies, pesticide law updates, milk production statistical data, soil tests, agronomy updates, agriculture surveys and a couple of catalogs that had gotten mislaid.

Help!

The friendly face of the nearest trashcan flashes a welcome smile, and willingly swallows successive fat fistfuls of the paper overflow.

At 10 p.m., stacks are only slightly smaller -- but neater --, reshuffled into more workable groupings.

At 11 p.m., the late night news anchor rehashes the day's events, a fatiguing litany befitting my mood. Stretched out on the floor, I finally file, alphabetically, one small stack of paperwork which is actually completed -- finished -- done.

And, in a trio of neat stacks, another file folder's worth of paperwork is neatly arranged under the coffee table, set aside 'till morning for permanent filing in the attic archives.

At 7 a.m., I resort the three piles, scattered by the kittens which sneaked up the stairs in the night to play tag through the stacks.

Recently, a fellow dairy producer related his use of shredded paper for bedding his dairy herd. After being fed through a straw chopper machine, the resulting paper bits are fluffy, dry, nontoxic, highly absorbent, biodegradable, cut barn odor, and best of all, free.

We own no straw chopper. Maybe a paper shredder would do the trick.

There ought to be a few available in Washington. Perhaps the Pentagon would sell me one. Cheap.

Choice ground chuck sizzled on the grill for shoppers at Karns Market, Mechanicsburg, this week. PA Beef Council representatives, Andrew Hess (left), Dave Ivans (center) and John Jakubic, a meat cutter for the store, explained the low cholesterol content of today's new beef to shoppers.

Elsie The Cow, Beef Guys, Dairy Promotion And Store Unite To Win You Over

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MECHANICSBURG (Dauphin) — The beef guys, Elsie the cow, the dairy industry and Karns Prime and Fancy Food Stores united to win you over this week.

That's win you over to the good taste of beef, the nutrition of dairy products and the importance of including these in your daily diet.

Some people will do anything for attention and that is what this team did. They grilled chopped steak and gave it away to customers, they served free milk and ice cream cones. Elsie the cow flew from her home at Disney World, Florida, to tell consumers how good her ice cream and milk tastes.

Karns, located in Mechanicsburg, decorated their five stores with banners, posters and intricate displays of beef and dairy products. They gave away prizes including one hot air balloon ride to lucky winners.

On Monday alone, they served 65 pounds of beef samples, 11 gallons of ice cream and 8 gallons of milk to shoppers.

Bunk Smith, in charge of the store's cheese and meat promotion, said it's an expensive venture, but for the last three years the store has participated in promotion competition sponsored by the American Dairy and Beef Board. The store placed first two years and third the other year.

Dave Ivan and Andy Hess, representing the state Beef Council, grilled the cheeseburgers and handed them out to shoppers.

While most were thrilled some protested, "I'm not allowed to eat red meat."

"Beef isn't the same product today that it was years ago," Ivan answered. "Many cuts are 90 to 95 percent cholesterol free. These cuts have even less cholesterol than roast chicken without skin."

The Beef Council said that they'd like to do more of this type of promotion.

"This is a great opportunity to clear up people's misconceptions," Ivan said. "We have some great plans for the future."

One of these include training store personnel to handle consumers' questions especially in regards to animal rights concerns.

Smith said, the promotion results in increased dairy and beef sales and educates the public.

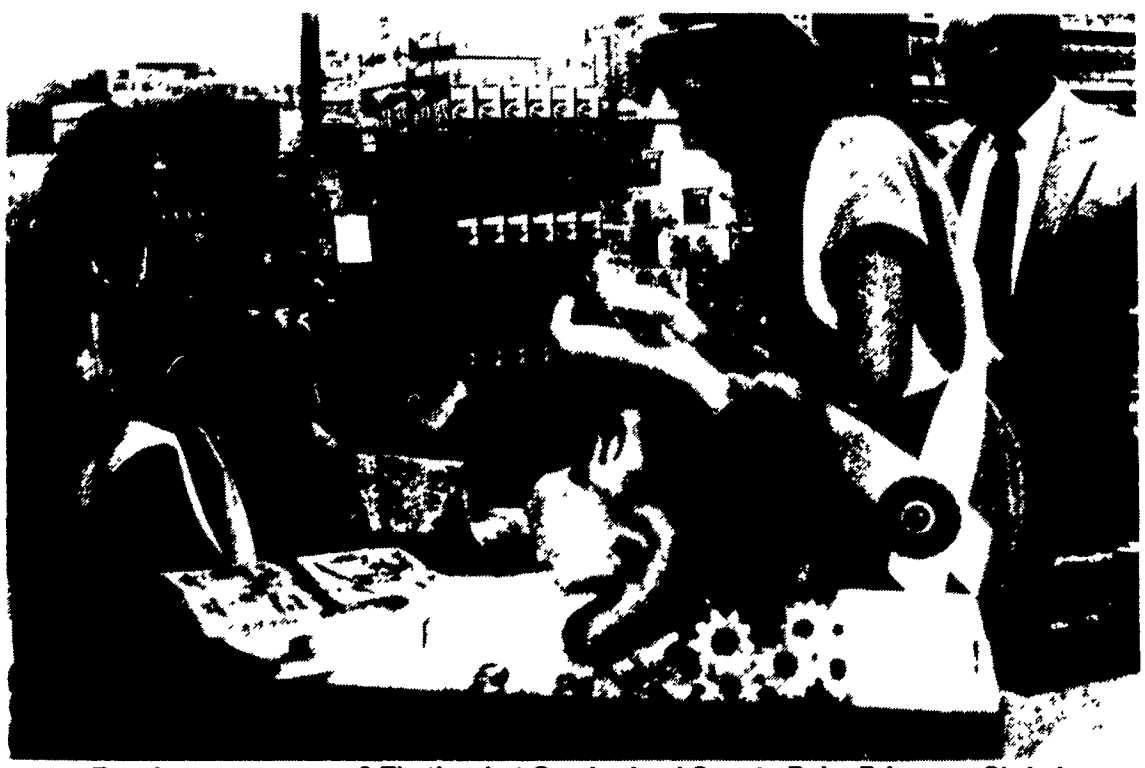
An attention-getter, Elsie the cow shocked young and old alike by talking.

"I didn't know she could talk," shoppers said in amazement.

For the week long celebration, it took 25 different voices from the Cumberland County Dairy Promotion group to provide the voice for Elsie the cow, which was created in 1920 to promote Borden's milk and ice cream.

The store had a cake decorator sculpture Elsie the cow in cake form.

"We couldn't have done all this by ourselves, Smith said. Ice cream distributors J.M. Callahan & Sons, the Lenkerbrook Dairy of Camp Hill, the state Dairy Promotion and the Beef Council aided the store in providing handouts and labor.



Free ice cream cones? That's what Cumberland County Dairy Princess, Christina Davidson, dished out to happy shoppers at Karns Market. On the table is a cake replica of Elsie the cow, who was there in person.

CAN YOU TRUST YOUR KNIVES IN THESE TOUGH TESTS?

You can if they're New Holland knives. Every time New Holland updates or improves its cutterheads and knives, it puts the prototypes through these severe tests for durability, wear and dependability.

TEST I Must pulverize a 2"x2"x5-foot long solid oak plank. To pass this test, no damage is allowed.

TEST II Must chew up and spit out a cold rolled steel bar, five feet long and 5/8" in diameter, stapled to a 1"x4" pine stud. Steel bar will be chipped into pieces about 1/2" long. Knife edge damage is expected, but knives must be reusable after vigorous sharpening.

TEST III Must chop up a 5-foot-long gathering chain stapled to a 1"x4" pine stud. Severe knife damage is expected. Body of each knife, however, must remain stable. Knives might be resharpenable. Wherever This Teen Goes, Things Happen

BY LOU ANN GOOD

COLUMBIA (Lancaster) — "I was only 18-months-old when I took my first horseback ride alone," Heidi Quanbeck recalled. "My grandfather, a real horse lover, sat me on a horse and said, 'Ride and if you fall off, climb back on and ride.'"

Heidi did.

"I've had my share of falls," she admitted, "but I guess I was too little to let it scare me."

Perhaps this teaching philosophy shaped this teenager's life, for the 16-year-old tackles life's opportunities with determination and confidence.

Rumor has it that wherever sixteen-year-old Heidi goes, things happen.

A whirlwind of activity, the Penn Manor sophomore pours her energies into school, church and farm activities. She especially enjoys leadership positions where she can improve the organizations.

"She's one busy lady," her mother agreed. "She articulates well."

It's Heidi's talking ability that gained her some recognition in the past few weeks. The Manor FFA'er placed first in county extemporaneous speaking and third in area competition, which enables her to compete at the regional level.

If she wins at the regional level, then she continues to state competition, which would pose some difficulty. For state competition is scheduled for the same week that she plans to show her registered Santa Gertrudis steers at national competition in Orlando, Florida.

"I want to go to both," Heidi admits. Though a tough choice, Heidi is used to tough choices.

With her heavy involvement in school, church and farm, it seems like she constantly walks the tightrope of schedule balancing.

But that is fine with Heidi who desires to get the most out of the moment at hand.

Heidi who is active in FFA and 4-H credits those organizations to helping her organize and develop leadership skills.

"They are excellent programs," she said. "I think anyone who joins and is ready to commit themselves can develop leadership and

Corky, a crossbred steer with the Quanbeck's Santa Gertrudis registered herd, will be entered in national competition.

Both of her parents, Jim and Elsa Quanbeck, were previously involved in 4-H leadership at the national level. Heidi needed to be eight before she could join, but she said, "I was showing registered Hampshires in the open classes long before I was eight."

Now, Heidi usually sticks to showing four or five market lambs.

Three years ago, she started showing Santa Gertrudis steers. The Quanbeck family has been raising the breed for 15 years. Their registered operation is the second oldest in the state for Santa Gertrudis.

Heidi explained that the cherry red colored breed was the first breed of beef cattle developed in the U.S. In 1950 they were developed at King's Ranch, Texas, as a crossbreed between Shorthorn and Brahma. The cattle are most dominate in the south, but the Quanbecks are out to change that. They are constantly upgrading the stock and breeding them to get tighter skin. "The loose skin was mainly to keep the cattle cool in the hot summer," Heidi explained.

"Some people falsely fear that since the breed comes from the south, the cattle can't take cold weather. But that is not true," Heidi said. "They do very well in the north. They grow a coat just like every other breed."

Presently the Quanbecks have a relatively closed herd with 88 steers, 88 heifers and 20 producing females. "Because it's an unfamiliar breed, we're tough with what we sell," Heidi said, but by 1890 we think we'll start selling."

Their is no state competition for Santa Gertrudis cattle at farmshow. "Maybe I shouldn't say this," said Heidi, "but I feel there are better shows around than the state farm show. It's too commercial and more a tourist trap than a show."

The Quanbecks still rent an additional place in Gettysburg, where they previously resided, for their producing herd. They lived in New Holland for three years before settling in their present 40-acre farm in rolling Columbia countryside. The move meant a change in schools for Heidi who took the transfer in stride. This, her first year at Penn Manor where she serves as historian for the Manor FFA chapter.

"Every schools is different," she said, "but I find the changes in the FFA program exciting."

In-between school and farm activities, Heidi is "extremely active in church (Lutheran) activities on four different levels." Currently she's planning two major events for the synod level and a regional youth event for 800 to 1,000 teens. As the youngest person involved in church leadership, Heidi finds it an exciting experience.

After high school, Heidi has her sights set on majoring in some ag related field.

Heidi glanced over the rolling, green and freshly tilled fields that rise above the valley where she lives, and said, "I like being on the outside. I get personal satisfaction in being able to care for something and not just maintain it," she said. "I'll probably always have my own cattle and horses."

And she admits, she'll probably always be busier than most people because bringing positive changes to organizations requires involvement.

Educational Herb Sale

LANCASTER — The Susquehanna Unit of the Herb Society of America will hold its ninth annual Herb and Geranium Sale on Saturday, May 6, 1989, from ten in the morning until 1:30 in the afternoon in the barn at Rock Ford Plantation in Lancaster County Park. Culinary, fragrant dye, insecticidal, and specialty herb plants will be available, as well as geraniums, marigolds, herb books, and gardening items.

On display will be an educational exhibit, "Amish Herbs" prepared by Unit member Yvonne McConkey, a well-known artist from York, Pennsylvania. The exhibit is the result of her research concerning herbs used by the Amish community in Lancaster County. Yvonne has also created hand-tinted gift tags and matted herbal prints especially for the sale.

Marilyn Sanko-Ebel, floral designer and instructor, will be on hand and will share her ideas and expertise in the use of fresh herbs in planters, baskets and containers. Baskets handcrafted by David Cooper of Scottsdale, Arizona will once again be available.

Patrons are encouraged to bring their own baskets or boxes to fill with herbs, geraniums and other items. Unit members will be eager to answer questions about each plant, and volunteers will help to carry purchases to the parking lot.

Proceeds from this event will enable the Unit to continue its commitment to furthering the goals of the Herb Society of America by contributing to the H.S.A. Endowment and Development Fund, the National Herb Garden, and the H.S.A. Scholarship Fund; increasing local knowledge about herbs, and maintaining and expanding the herb garden at Rock Ford.

Further information and directions to Rock Ford are available by contacting: Michele Miller, 3092 Lyndana Drive, Lancaster, PA 17601, (717) 898-0438.

100-Year-Old Keeps Stitching For Others

BY LOU ANN GOOD

MANHEIM (Lancaster) — With a cheery smile, Lizzie Longenecker fingers the quilt in the frame before her. The 1,155 squares that are pieced in a Trip Around The World design match their corners perfectly.

"I always do my own piecing," Lizzie explained. "I like it done right."

Many women piece and quilt, but Lizzie Longenecker lays claim to fame that few people achieve no matter how hard they try. She is 100 years old.

Lizzie nods, "One hundred years and the best ones were spent on the farm." She recalls working in the fields with her now deceased husband, Evan, to whom she was married 56 years.

Now she lives at the Mount Hope Dunkard Brethren Church Home. But don't let her residence and age fool you. Lizzie isn't exactly what you'd call retired and she definitly is not senile. Not when you consider the schedule she keeps.

It's up at dawn. And three days a week she's sitting at the quilting frame, stitching tiny, precise stitches in one of the quilts that she has pieced during the other two days.

"I only stop to eat and for my nap," she said.

Her six children (all still living and ranging in age from 57 to 79), 20 children and 29 great-grandchildren received one of Lizzie's quilts. She also has 10 great-great grandchildren.

But Lizzie doesn't stop with her family. She stitches for others.

Talk about getting a career in late life. Lizzie found her niche at age 97 when she made a quilt for the Church of the Brethren Disaster Relief Auction. Since then, she's continued to make an annual quilt for the sale. And she has done a few others.

The Trip Around the World quilt for the Manheim Christian Day School Dutch Country Auction is the second one she has made for the school. She has grandchildren who attend the school. The school depends upon donations to help finance students education.

Her quilt along with approximately 40 others will be auctioned on Saturday, April 29, at 1 p.m.

Is she going to attend?

"No, not this year," Lizzie answered. "But I did last year."

Usually she uses a wheelchair although she does move around in her room by holding on to furniture.

Although she may be slightly wobbly on her feet, she has a fine mind and for that she credits God.

"I keep busy. I read when I'm not sewing," she pauses then adds michieviously, "I even quilt in my sleep."

She's already dreaming up her next quilting project. But for now she is concentrating on getting her quilt done for the school sale. It's multi-shaded in mostly blue and rose colors. For those interested, her quilt can be previewed from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. on Friday, April 28, during the school's chicken bar-b-que and toy auction.

The sale starts on Saturday, April 29, with a country breakfast from 6 to 10 a.m. Antiques, collectibles, crafts and numerous other items will be auctioned beginning at 9 a.m. with the quilt sale beginning at 1 p.m.

Although she turned 100-years-old on Easter, Lizzie Longenecker (right) doesn't waste time. Here she puts the finishing touches on one of her quilts that she donates to non-profit organizations. Jackie Longenecker, granddaughter-in-law, helps her finish the "Trip Around the World" quilt that will be auctioned at the Manheim Christian Day School on April 29 at 1 p.m.

4-H HAPPENINGS

Wayne County Capon Project

The 4-H capon project is one of the poultry science projects offered in the Wayne County 4-H Program.

This 4-H project is open to all young people in Wayne County with an interest in managing, caring for and marketing a speciality poultry product. The 4-H member must be between the ages of 8 and 19 and be a member of a 4-H agricultural or community club.

The 4-H capon project will start in early June when the 4-H member takes delivery of the day-old cockerel chicks. The 4-H member can order any amount of chicks, but 35 is the suggested number for a capon project.

A sturdy building with screened windows and doors is necessary in order to successfully grow capons. Cats, dogs, rats and other wildlife must be kept away from the growing capons. The poultry house must be strong and secure in order to safeguard the capons during the brooding and the growing period.

A warm, dry building is especially important in early June. This is the period of time when the young chicks need supplemental heat to keep them warm and also to help them recover from the stress of caponizing.

The chicks will be caponized about two to three weeks after they have been delivered to the 4-H member. After the chicks have been caponized the 4-H member will have the important job of properly feeding and managing their flock.

Feeding capons involves the use of properly formulated and supplemented poultry feed. A special grower feed is being offered again this year for members in the 4-H capon programs. The purpose of this feeding program is to increase profits by improving feed efficiency, reducing the problem of over-fat birds and reducing possible leg problems. Plans are for the feed to be a low energy, high fiber feed. A local feed mill will formulate this feed.

This feeding program will help the 4-H member to grow capons that have a "dressed weight" of between eight and eleven pounds in a 20-week feeding period.

Growing capons will consume at least fifty pounds of poultry feed plus large quantities of clean, fresh water in order to get the market weight.

Once the capons have started to grow, the 4-H'ers main concerns will be to keep the poultry house floor dry and free of excess moisture, the feeders full of high-quality poultry feed, the water fountains full of water and the poultry house will ventilated. The 4-H member must also be alert for disease and sickness that may affect the flock.

As the capons reach market weight, the 4-H'er should start to plan and prepare for marketing the capons. Most 4-H members dress, package and sell their capons for Thanksgiving and/or Christmas dinners.

The highlight of the 4-H capon project is in early November at the annual Wayne County 4-H Capon Round-Up. The 4-H member exhibits two of his best dressed capons at this round-up. The capons are judged on the quality of the dressing job, how well they are packaged for customer appeal and the meat qualities of the dressed capons. Merit ribbons are then awarded to all of the round-up participants.

The final step in the 4-H capon project is to submit a completed capon project book to the Extension Office. The record book can help the member learn about keeping good, accurate records and also about feeding and managing a flock of capons successfully and profitably.

The Wayne County Extension Office is currently accepting orders for one-day old cockerel chicks to be used as 4-H capon projects. The final day to order chicks is May 12, 1989.

Contact the Wayne County Extension Office at 717/253-5970, ext. 239 for additional information about the 4-H capon project.

Owen J. Roberts Banquet

More than 170 members, parents, faculty members, district administrators and guests recently celebrated the 52 Annual Owen J. Roberts FFA banquet.

One of the highlights of the evening was the presentation of the Honorary Chapter Degree, which is given each year to an outstanding person or persons in the community. This year Russell Albright received this award. Albright, the senior loan officer for Keystone Farm Credit, was honored for his efforts on behalf of and support of the Vo-Ag department and the FFA at Owen J. Roberts as well as other FFA chapters and 4-H clubs throughout the entire area of southeastern Pennsylvania.

After opening remarks by Larry Feeley, high school assistant principal, Tiffany Yeager, a FFA'er and Chester County's Dairy Princess, and Eric Lahr, FFA president and the FFA students presented their own slide show entitled "FFA - Agriculture's Leading Edge". The slides depicted every student's out-of-school project as well as a view of their in-school activities.

Chester W. Raught, vo-ag teacher and FFA advisor, presented the students' awards. Robert Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Barry Bell of Pottstown, and Matt Kulp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Kulp of Pottstown, were the winners of the ag mechanics trophies. Tiffany Yeager, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Yeager, was awarded the small animal care award. Christopher Whitfield, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence L. Whitfield of Chester Springs, won the farmstead improvement award. Eric Lahr, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lahr of Spring City, was the recipient of several awards. He received the dairy trophy and the Neal R. Burtner Award.

Cathy Horvat, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Steven Horvat of Pottstown, was presented the Special Award Plaque for her outstanding work as chapter secretary.

George Inhof, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Inhof of Spring City, also received several awards. He won the working for - experience (on farm) trophy and the Star Chapter Greenhand Award. Jean Steffey, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Steffey of Birdsboro, was awarded the horse production medal. Joe Lederer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Lederer of Parkerford, received the Star Chapter Farmer Award and the home garden award. Jason Beck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Beck, and Dirk Allison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Allison, received awards for special animal care.

Lebanon County Parliamentary Procedure Contest

Recently the Lebanon County Parliamentary Procedure Contest was held at Northern Lebanon High School. In order to advance to the area contest, the teams had to finish first or second.

The parliamentary procedure contest consisted of eight members who demonstrated parliamentary procedure in an FFA meeting. The team could bring up unfinished and new business, but the meeting could not last more than 20 minutes. The Cedar Crest team finished first, followed by Northern Lebanon in second, and Annville-Cleona in third.

The Cedar Crest team competed in the area contest, which was held at the Berks County Ag Center on April 18. The team members included: Chris Long, Todd Balsbaugh, Ammon Peiffer, John Risser, Randy Brandt, Colette Hower, James Houser, George Steiner, and Eric Williams as an alternate.

Cumberland County Goat

The Cumberland County Goat Club met earlier this month at the Newville Borough Hall with eight members present. Results of the club's election are as follows: Kelli Zeigler, president; Gerald Varner, vice president; Justin Carpenter, secretary; and Bill Leib, reporter.

The next meeting will be held May 3, 1989. Members will meet at the Newville Borough Hall at 7:30 p.m. and then proceed as a group to the Varner home for an on-farm meeting. The meeting topics will include breed registrations and record keeping.

Any Cumberland County youth between the ages of eight and 18 interested in goats is invited to attend.

Embryology At Saul

The adjustment from high school to college is a difficult one for many students—the responsibilities and demands of undergraduate work often take freshmen by surprise. Penn State's Herbert Jordan, associate professor of poultry science, intends to help ease that transition for 24 Philadelphia high school students by teaching a one-credit college course in embryology at the Walter Biddle Saul High School of Agriculture.

"We're trying to develop a liaison between high school and college work," Jordan says. "We want to expose these students to college courses in high school, to give them a better grasp of the skills they'll need for college."

Jordan and Bruce Richards, 4-H coordinator with Penn State Cooperative Extension in Philadelphia, came up with the idea for the course because they saw a need to strengthen University relations with Saul's students. "With 71 colleges in the Philadelphia area, many Saul students just think that Penn State is too far away. Herb and I had a meeting and we tossed around ideas about how we could reach out to these students," Richards says. "The bells really went off when we talked about doing this class."

With the help of Dr. William Henson, the director of minority programs for the College of Agriculture, Jordan and Richards obtained partial funding for the class from the University. Penn State's College of Agriculture will be co-sponsoring the course with the Philadelphia School District.

Saul, a magnet school for agricultural sciences in the Philadelphia School District, is the largest specialized agricultural high school in the United States. Saul's students must pass entrance examinations and demonstrate ability in agriculture and science to attend. More than half of Saul's graduates go on to college.

"After these students, they'll already have one undergraduate credit from Penn State under their belts, and they will have met some Penn State faculty and extension agents," Richards says.

The class will be taught from April 24 to 28 at Saul's animal science lab, which was recently refurbished after being inoperative for several years. Steven Fecik, animal science instructor at Saul, will oversee the selection of 24 students of the class, based on scholastic aptitude, grades and discipline.

Much of the program's success will depend on the students, Richards notes. "I really believe that Saul has a commitment to quality, and I think this program will work very well."

The course features 15 hours of classroom instruction, direct laboratory learning, papers and exams. "The bulk of the course involves learning how to incubate chicken eggs," Jordan says. He plans to cover the biology of embryology, egg care, incubator and hatchery management, fowl reproduction and practical applications of embryology in the agriculture industry.

Richards is excited about the possibilities this course could open. "This is an experimental program. If it works out, I can see other College of Agriculture departments wanting to come down here and work with us," Richards said. Saul School principal Jim Kerr said he hopes that this course is only the beginning for cooperative programs with Penn State.

Bottle Run Elects Officers

The Bottle Run 4-H Club held their organizational meeting recently at the Bottle Run Grange. Officers elected were: Laura Lovell, president; Shane Corter, vice president; Cathy Frame, secretary; Dyan Frame, treasurer; Angela Lovell, news reporter; Lisa Mook, song and game leader; and Jeannie Bower and Deanna Neidig, 4-H county council representatives.

The members filled out enrollment cards and project books were handed out. Project requirements were discussed and meeting dates set up. Members showing market lambs and market hogs at the Lycoming County Fair in July were reminded they must designate their animals to the Extension Office before April 15.

Teen leaders are Jason Kleese, Annette Lovell, Cathy Frame, Jeannie Bower, Alan Mook and Laura Lovell.

Don't Panic

NEWARK, DE — If the small creature climbing up your living room curtain this spring is an uninvited insect visitor, what should you do? (A) Leave the room; (B) get out the vacuum cleaner; (C) summon the household cat; (D) take off your shoe and prepare to strike; or (E) turn on the television.

If you answered (E), you were right, if you tune in to University of Delaware Extension entomologist Dewey Caron on the "Farm, Home and Garden Show."

He'll discuss how to control spring insect visitors such as beetles, carpenter bees, flies and yellowjackets. "People often use pesticides," Caron says, "but alternative methods can avoid costs and possible environmental contamination."

Termites and carpenter ants are also common springtime problems. Caron will offer tips to help homeowners get rid of these pests or find good professional help to do it for them.

Tune in Caron on the "Farm, Home and Garden Show" on KYW—TV 3 (Philadelphia), Monday, May 1, at 5:25 a.m.

Keeping It In Perspective

Over the past several months you've been reading about groundwater pollution problems, including EPA's groundwater survey as well as other items relating to pesticide use. Often we fail to keep our concerns about these issues in perspective.

We in the hog business need to keep aware that these issues will affect us directly by legislation dealing with the pesticides we use to produce our feed grains or legislation concerning the application of the manure produced by our hogs on the farmland.

Chemicals being found in the groundwater are reported as a number. Usually this number is referred to as a part per million, part per billion or even as a part per trillion. Since most of us don't deal with numbers of this caliber on a regular basis (i.e., we're all not Rockefellers or Trumps), I thought it would be a good idea to put these numbers in perspective.

One part per billion is the same as one second in 32 years, one inch in 16,000 miles, one drop in 10,000 gallons or one bad apple in 2,000,000 barrels.

One part per trillion is the same as one second in 32,000 years, one inch in 16,000,000 miles (642.56 times around the earth), 1 grain or sugar in an Olympic-sized swimming pool or one bad apple in 2,000,000,000 barrels.

Obviously I'm having a little fun with this, thanks to some information that Dean Belt (New Castle County Extension agent) sent to me. What does all this mean?

I'm not trying to downplay the importance of monitoring the groundwater. But we need to keep the findings in perspective. It's not the amount of a chemical or nutrient that is found in the water that should alarm us, but knowing the levels that pose a threat to our well being along with the amount present.

We need to be aware that technology has advanced to the point where we can locate and identify minuscule amounts of a contaminant. The key is knowing what levels are harmful.

For instance, if a survey finds 2,000 parts per trillion of nitrate in your well water, you might be alarmed and scared for your family's well being. After all 2,000 is a big number. In reality, the 2,000 parts per trillion is the same as 2 parts per billion or .002 parts per million nitrate. Is that level a problem?

Based on the Food and Drug Administration Quality Standards this level is well below the 10 parts per million allowable level of nitrate in drinking water. As a matter of fact, the level in this example is far below what's currently in my office's bottled spring water (2.36 parts per million).

It's easy to see why confusion exists when we read about numbers without the pertinent information regarding levels of contamination. While it is a shame that such a lack of information exists regarding the FDA quality standards, it's even more disappointing that some researchers fail to point out the findings in relation to the potential harmful levels. This results in alarming the general population that something that may not be bad.

In no way am I suggesting that we not be concerned about the leaching of pesticides and nutrients into the groundwater. The fact that these materials are reaching the water suggests that we have something to learn about the chemical properties of the materials in relation to the soil. We need to continue to monitor these chemical compounds to make sure we are not stockpiling them in our water supplies. Toxicologists need to keep up on research findings regarding exposure to these compounds so that the FDA quality standards can be adjusted if need be.

It's important to monitor the groundwater, and we need to be responsible in using chemical pesticides and nutrients on our farms. For these same reasons, we need to make sure we observe the proper labeling and withdrawals on the medicinals we use on our farms.

The end result of responsible farming is a safe environment and a safe food supply. Anyone desiring this should welcome any monitoring, read the findings when they become available and keep those findings in perspective.

Now, if only I could hit the lottery. That would put a part per million in perspective for me! What about you?

Crawford Named Deputy Sec.

HARRISBURG — Gov. Robert P. Casey today appointed Steven Crawford of Jerseytown, Columbia County, to serve as deputy secretary for market and economic development in the Department of Agriculture.

Crawford, 29, has been executive assistant to Agriculture Secretary Boyd E. Wolff since January 1987. Prior to joining the department, Crawford was a director in the government relations division of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association. In that capacity, he helped lead a major revision of Pennsylvania's Pesticide Law.

Crawford has played an important role in helping Wolff with policy development and reorganization of the Agriculture Department under the Casey Administration. He also has been Wolff's point man on legislative matters affecting agriculture and the department.

He helped Wolff lead the Casey Administration's successful effort to return control of Commodity Marketing Programs to producers in 1987. He also helped lead the efforts to create the Animal Health Commission and the $100 million Farmland Preservation program, which will save productive cropland for future generations through purchases of agricultural conservation easements.

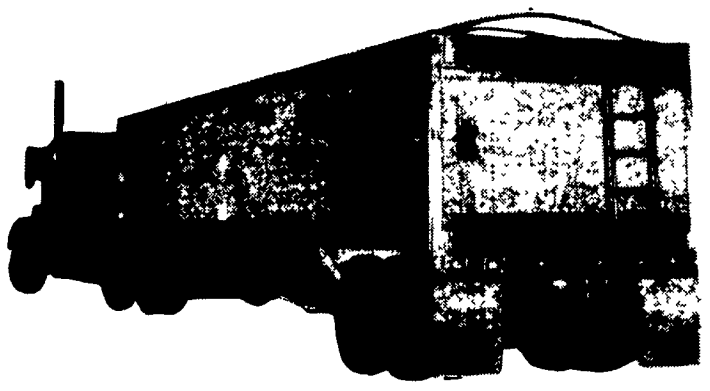
REDESIGNED 1989 TIMPTE GRAIN HOPPER



Got Grain? Then get the trailer that is Timpte tough... the Super Hopper. It's not only built to take it...it's also built to cut fuel costs. An Eby grain body is surprisingly affordable and built for the long haul.

Aluminum Bodies for the Agri-Industry

Today, M. H. Eby, Inc. produces a wide variety of sturdy and reliable truck bodies for agri-business. Everything from livestock bodies through stake bodies to grain and bulk bodies. All at competitive prices.

But now every Eby body is all-aluminum. Consider some of the advantages you get over traditional wood and steel construction:

- As much as 50% lighter — allows for increased payloads.
- It will never rust through or rot.
- No need to paint.
- Overall maintenance costs are greatly reduced.
- Just an occasional power washing keeps aluminum bodies looking new for years.
- They have much better resale value.

What's more, you can always tell Eby what you want on your body. Everything we make is custom-built. A long list of options available for every body style allows you to design the body you need for your operation.

Give us a call, or write, to find out more about the lightweight alternative.

Foraging Around

By Dr. John E. Baylor
Director of Market Development
Beachley-Hardy Seed Company

Hail To The Queen

The Queen received a little additional recognition in Pennsylvania this year. It came in the form of the 19th Annual National Alfalfa Symposium held at Hershey, PA, in March. Sponsored by the Certified Alfalfa Seed Council in cooperation with Penn State, Cornell, Delaware State College, and the University of Maryland, the theme of this producer oriented symposium was "Managing Alfalfa for Profit."

The road to managing alfalfa for higher profits requires eliminating yield barriers. That's how Dr. Neal Martin, Extension Forage Specialist, University of Minnesota, stated it in his opening remarks. "Yield barriers," he said, "include soil productivity; plant density; weed, insect and disease pressures; soil nutrient availability; timely harvest; and harvest and storage losses. "Optimum stands," he continued, "can be maintained by proper cutting management, fertilization, and the use of high-yielding persistent alfalfa varieties." "The future of managing alfalfa for profit looks bright," Martin concluded. "Closer attention to yield, production cost, and quality is in the grower's best economic interest."

Nothing especially new in these remarks except the source. However, Neal's comments do pretty well sum up the potential of alfalfa for every good Pennsylvania manager.

Other speakers zeroed in on specifie aspects of production and management. For example, Dr. Garry Lacefield, University of Kentucky Forage Agronomist, reviewed recent findings on grazing alfalfa. Lacefield cited several examples of excellent animal responses by dairy, beef and sheep grazed on alfalfa or alfalfa-grass mixes. "Alfalfa potential as a grazing crop is virtually untapped," Lacefield concluded. "With present technology and dedicated management, gain per animal and per acre can be excellent with acceptable stand persistence.

Pennsylvania Growers Recognized

Several Pennsylvania alfalfa growers also got top billing at this year's National Conference. For those who missed it, Milton Hershey School Farms in Dauphin County was named Grand Champion in the state's 14th edition of the Pennsylvania Alfalfa Growers Program with an estimated hay equivalent yield of 9.4 tons per acre and nearly 10,150 pounds of TDN. On the basis of its feed replacement value, the Hershey Farms crop was tagged at $1,059 per acre.

Berks County dairyman Kenneth Zook was runner up with an estimated 8.9 tons of H.E. valued at $1,017 per acre on a feed replacement basis.

Not bad yields in a year when many corn growers, because of the severe heat and drought last summer, settled for 50 to 75 bushels per acre or less.

Quality Hay Auctions

Weather conditions were terrible. But on a cold, wet, snowy day in March, the Pennsylvania Forage & Grassland Council, in cooperation with dairyman John Rodgers at Plum Bottom Farm, attempted another demonstration quality hay auction.

Quality hay auctions, where hay is sold on the basis of its nutrition value, are no longer new. The first attempts in Pennsylvania were several years ago in cooperation with the New Wilmington auction in western Pennsyvlvania. And while the concept was received favorably by many, it never got off the ground in this state. Another quality hay auction was held several years ago in conjunction with a PFGC-sponsored forage and dairy field day at Hershey. It, too, received favorable reviews, but for several reasons stopped there.

Quality in the 10 loads at Plum Bottom ranged down from 23.1 percent to 8.3 percent crude protein and 29.7 percent to 41.3 percent acid detergent fiber (ADF). Unfortunately, relative feed values (RFVs) were not calculated for the various loads and a grade using our quality hay standards was not assigned. Quality determinations were made using NIRS in Penn State's mobile van, which was on site. Bids ranged from $130 per ton for the top load down to $75 per ton.

Quality Hay Auctions In The Midwest

While quality hay auctions are yet to be proven in Pennsylvania, they now are well accepted in both Wisconsin and Minnesota.

In Wisconsin, for example, hay was tested prior to sale using NIRS equipment and rated according to test results using a modification of our AFGC's hay grades. RFV ratings were given to each lot before sale. A price versus quality grade summary of these lots can be seen on chart 1.

CHART 1

GRADE	NO. LOTS	($/T) AVERAGE PRICE
Prime	95	$117.21
1	296	103.14
2	239	79.25
3	50	68.22
4	65	65.33
5	18	63.59

Quality tested hay auctions in Minnesota are sponsored by county and area forage councils. A summary of last year's sales in that state as prepared by forage specialist Neal Martin, is shown on chart 2.

Turn Nitrogen Management Into A BMP

ATLANTA, GA — Best management practices (BMPs) incorporated into a crop production system give farmers their top profit or maximum economic yield (MEY). Developing a sound management package is neither quick nor easy. Top farmers continually adjust their crop management programs as new BMPs are developed. In nitrogen management for small grains, BMPs help squeeze out additional yield and profits.

In the northern Great Plains States and Prairie Provinces, nitrogen management of spring wheat is an important BMP which should be modified by available or potential moisture supplies. The practice of "fertilizing to the moisture limit" requires good crop managers to ask several critical questions:

1. What is the yield goal based on total available water?
2. How much nitrogen should be applied to optimize the use of available water and other inputs?
3. When should nitrogen be applied -- at seeding or during the season?

Knowing the yield potential and how much nitrogen is required involves estimation of available moisture.

If other inputs are sufficient, a good rule of thumb for low rainfall areas of the Great Plains is that it takes six inches of water to produce the plant that will make the yield. Each additional inch of water should produce about six bushels per acre. Available water is usually the first factor limiting spring wheat yields. However, when nitrogen is a limiting factor, fewer bushels are produced by each inch of water.

The amount of nitrogen required depends on the yield potential. High-yielding wheat with high protein needs from 2.6 to 2.9 pounds of nitrogen per bushel. That nitrogen can come from soil organic matter, from nitrate nitrogen in the soil, or from nitrogen fertilizer. A nitrogen soil test to at least a 2-foot depth is a useful tool in calculating fertilizer needs.

Estimating available soil moisture requires use of known and probable precipitation amounts. And since available moisture determines nitrogen needs, splitting nitrogen applications provides growers some discretion in nitrogen application and the ability to manage risk. Based on adequacy of available moisture, a system of split nitrogen applications might be 40 percent preplant, 10 percent as a starter and the remaining 50 percent at or before tillering. It is important to have adequate nitrogen available at tillering because much of the yield capability of a wheat plant is set at that time. Nitrogen deficiency at tillering cuts yield potential even if later growing conditions are optimal.

Many growers are anticipating higher soil nitrate-nitrogen levels in the spring of 1989 because of drought conditions in 1988. Remember, however, that nitrate is highly mobile when soil moisture contents are high. So, what was determined last fall may change by planting time for spring wheat. Spring levels of nitrate-nitrogen could be lower because nitrate-N leached out of the topsoil levels by snowmelt and spring rain. Ensure that soil nitrogen is available at planting and throughout the growing season. Don't rely entirely on residual nitrogen to last through the crop year. Preplant and starter nitrogen will ensure that seedlings get a fast start. Later, when the plants have developed a strong and vigorous root system, nitrogen further down in the soil will be utilized.

Be sure your crop has sufficient nitrogen to make optimum use of available water this year -- and reach your highest profit potential.

CHART 2

GRADE	NO LOTS	AVE CP (%)	RFV INDEX	AVE PRICE ($/T)
Prime	40	21.3	165	$149
1	71	19.3	139	135
2	58	16.9	115	108

4	7	12.0	82	81
5	4	10.7	74	76

For quality hay auctions to be successful, the seller, the buyer, and the auctioneer must all understand the meaning and importance of crude protein (CP), ADF, and RFV as measures of quality. When that occurs, quality hay auctions will succeed.

Incidentally, in an earlier column, I defined RFV as an index that combines digestibility and intake of a forage calculated from fiber analyses. However, I didn't tell you how to calculate it. So, here goes:

1. Digestible dry matter (DDM) percent = 88.9 - (.779 x ADF percent)
2. Dry matter intake (percent of body weight) = 120/forage NDF (percent of DM)
3. RFV = DDM x DMI/1.29

The RFV does not include crude protein because CP is influenced by factors unrelated to those affecting RFV. However, crude protein is a very important measure of quality and should be considered in pricing hay.

Alfalfa Growers Program To Conclude In '89

As for the very successful Alfalfa Growers Program, 1989 will be its last year, according to Penn State Forage Specialist Sid Bosworth. "Since this year will be the 15th anniversary for the program," Bosworth says, "the Pennsylvania Forage and Grassland Council has decided this is a good time to re-evaluate and begin new programs." But, Bosworth continued, there will be a number of special alfalfa meetings next winter highlighting results from the many years the program has been in effect.

So here's a hope that 1989 will be a good alfalfa year for you. And again, "Hail to the Queen!"

Perry County Extension Agent Retires

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — John P. Harris retired from Penn State Cooperative Extension in Perry County on April 1. His career, spanning 31 years and five counties, reflects Harris' dedication to agricultural education. He received the Distinguished Service Award from the National Association of County Agricultural Agents in 1982.

Milking schools that Harris initiated have helped farmers improve their milking procedures, resulting in higher-quality milk products. Harris developed weed identification and soybean programs for crop farmers and organized no-till corn programs that helped reduce their harvesting and drying costs.

But his favorite part of being an agent was meeting people, both co-workers and clients. "The old-fashioned farm visit — it's hard to beat that," he says. "That's a more personal pleasure. Every now and then you find out that you really helped someone, and that's quite satisfying."

After receiving his bachelor's degree in agricultural education from Penn State in 1955, Harris became an associate extension agent, traveling between extension offices in Chester and Delaware counties. He left Penn State later that year to join the Navy, where he worked with seaplanes.

Harris returned to Penn State Cooperative Extension in Lehigh County after leaving the Navy in 1957. He transferred to Dauphin County in 1962, where he was in charge of the 4-H dairy, beef and horse programs. He helped increase 4-H enrollment in Dauphin County from 600 in 1971 to 2,250 in 1980. In 1977, he was promoted to extension agent.

In 1981 Harris transferred to Perry County. During his term as director of that county's extension office, Harris has been pleased to see seven Perry County residents receive Master Farmer awards. He also has been heartened by increased Perry County community support for the 4-H program and the County Fair.

Most recently, Harris has been working with the Perry County Soil Conservation District to protect farmers' rights. "We've made a lot of progress in agricultural security areas," he says. "We have 12,000 acres of protected land now, and I think we'll have 20,000 by the end of the year." Harris notes that agricultural extension has diversified over the years, extending from a "backbone of agricultural education into areas such as land use planning and water management."

Harris lives with his wife, Carolyn, in Fishing Creek Valley Road, near Harrisburg. After retirement, he plans to spend more time fishing, hiking, traveling, and "anything I feel like doing."

Pennsylvania Grange Hails Tax Reform

HARRISBURG — The Pennsylvania State Grange encourages all Pennsylvanians to vote yes for property tax reform on Tuesday, May 16. "We are proud to be a part of the effort to enact this vital tax-reform legislation," said Brenda Shambaugh, legislative director for the Grange.

According to a Penn State study, there is a large inequity in financing public schools. The study shows that landowners pay twice as much income as non-landowners. The new tax reform mandates a 25 percnent reduction in residential property taxes, including farmland and farm buildings, levied by municipalities and school districts. In addition, all major nuisance taxes such as the occupation assessment tax, the per capita tax, and the residence tax, will be abolished, and the personal property tax will be phased out over three years.

"The new tax reform will affect each area differently," said Shambaugh. Each area will create a local commission to design a local formula to serve its specific needs.

"The Pennsylvania State Grange is proud to be a part of this historic opportunity, which will allow Pennsylvania citizens to make their own decisions about their future," said Shambaugh. "For the last 20 years, the tax system relied heavily on the property tax and many nuisance taxes, which made the system inflexible, unfair, and outdated," she continued.

The Grange knows the new tax system will provide local leaders with the flexibility needed to choose the tax mix that is best suited for their communities. As Governor Casey stated after the Senate vote, "Pennsylvania has waited and worked for decades for this moment."

MASTER MIX

SILO-BOOSTER

Why should you use Master Mix SILO-BOOSTER instead of another product? SILO-BOOSTER has been proven in 22 years of on-farm use, as well as in continuous university research. With each new discovery in silage science, we have improved the original formula. Today's SILO-BOOSTER gives the most effective silage innoculant yet developed.

Dry matter recovery data from these conventional silos demonstrates a 6.3% difference in feedable alfalfa silage. For each 100 tons of silage, there would be an additional 6.3 tons of silage available for feeding. This is equivalent to 3.5 tons of 90% dry matter hay worth approximately $350.00. This is a $3.50 return for each $1.00 investment in SILO BOOSTER from a reduction in fermentation losses alone.

Sheep producers, who over the years have converted from a post-lambing shearing program to a pre-lambing shearing schedule, can relate well to the difficulties of shearing between now and wool pool day. The most evident factor is the difficulty of keeping fleeces clean as the ewes are herded through a shed-lambing program, and in many instances, turned out on lush-pasture several weeks prior to shearing date. These ewes probably were not crutched-out at breeding time, and they were also supplied a daily forage via a large round bale feeder. Shed-lambing ewes in full fleece, without some special attention given to management and facilities, can result in reducing the wool clip value by 25 percent or more. Much of this value reduction is the result of high vegetable matter contamination.

It is important that we begin to understand how our potential wool buyers feel about wool that has been poorly grown and prepared for market. The attitude is changing. A buyer for Burlington industries recently shared with a group of producers, "We are no longer interested in your contaminated wools at any price. We cannot use them in our present milling and weaving process." So, maybe a 25 percent value reduction is putting it a bit too mildly.

Whether we shear before or after lambing, there are some important chores both the producer and shearer can perform jointly in producing a high-quality clip.

Grower responsibility: Probably the most expensive cup of coffee a producer can ever have is not being on the job at shearing time. His or her presence between the shearing floor and the wool preparation area immediately implies an expectation that all work will be done in a conscientious and responsible manner. Some of these chores are:

•hold sheep off feed and water overnight

•keep sheep dry, but do not over-bed pens with fresh straw

•have extra help available to move sheep and handle fleeces

•provide a firm shearing board (floor) 6' x 8' that is well lighted and is a sweepable surface

•shear all white-face or wool breed sheep separate from black-face sheep provided you have more than 30 fleeces (1 bag) from either breed

•do not put fleeces in plastic woven feed bags Note: wool pools should refuse to receive wool in this matter. Loose-tied fleeces: use tarp(s) to protect wool

•store wool from the floor in a dry, well ventilated area

Shearer responsibility: Good shearers usually have a reputation that precedes them. They maintain a shearing schedule and keep producers informed of schedule changes due to weather and other conditions. Some chores for the shearers are:

•be on time

•have good working equipment

•know how to handle sheep (quiet and gentle)

•be prepared (first aid kit) to treat any cuts or minor shearing injuries, especially during the fly season

•Though not conclusive, working together and following these recommended practices will make the shearing chores easier and aid in getting a better product for market. Selling is having something to sell; marketing is having something that sells! Pack it with pride!

AVMA Warns Of High Nitrate Levels In Drought-Stricken Forage

SCHAUMBURG, IL — One of the lingering effects of the Midwest's drought of 1988 is a danger of concentrations of nitrate in forage crops that could cause livestock producers problems well into 1989, the American Veterinary Medical Association warned.

When crops like sorghum, corn and some types of hay are stricken by drought, they can develop high concentrations of deadly nitrate. Oat hay and millet are the worst. If fed to ruminant animals without proper dilution, these drought-stricken forage crops can cause sudden death, according to Michael K. Moore, D.V.M., of Superior, Neb.

"We urge our producers to have forage crops analyzed at a laboratory when there's any suspicion of toxic levels of nitrate," Moore said.

Few serious problems have been reported in the Midwest so far this season, but some summer forages are not fed until well into the spring, according to Duane N. Rice, D.V.M., of Lincoln, Neb. "Nitrates usually aren't a problem unless the animals are starved out. We are concerned that as the cold weather sets in and feeds run low, we may see problems," Rice said.

Sources of nitrate on the farm include drought-stricken plants, contaminated groundwater in many areas, and silo gas, explained Homer R. Caley, D.V.M., of Manhattan, Kan. In areas where water supplies are high in nitrate, lower concentrations of nitrate in silage can cause livestock problems. A recent survey of groundwater in Kansas, for example, found 28 percent of wells with nitrate levels higher than the National Public Health Service drinking water standard.

"It pays most livestock producers to have a complete water analysis on their well and ponds. Such analysis is done without charge in many states and at very little cost in others," Caley said.

Nitrate poisoning is most likely in ruminant animals such as cattle and sheep. Their digestive systems convert nitrate to nitrite, which diminishes the blood's capacity to carry oxygen and can cause death.

Caley said on-farm tests of plants or water can be used to detect the presence of high levels of nitrate and determine whether or not laboratory tests are necessary. "Test results rarely provide black and white answers," Caley said. "Usually, the results fall in the gray area, and a veterinarian can help the livestock producer interpret the results and decide how to dilute the feed to utilize it and avoid unnecessary waste."

The nitrate content of forage can be decreased by 30 to 40 percent by proper ensiling, experts say. However, while the fermentation that occurs during ensiling reduces the concentration of nitrates, it gives off gases that can be harmful. It is recommended that farmers keep the silo closed for 10 days after filling.

Signs of nitrate toxicity in animals include staggering and weaving, chocolate colored blood, bluish color of mucus membranes, and rapid labored breathing, according to Caley. With immediate treatment by intravenous injections, animals can be saved. In severe cases of toxicity, the treatment may have to be repeated.

It is difficult to set a specific figure for the level of nitrate in feed that is safe for livestock, since safe nitrate concentration in blood is a factor of feed, water, and other possible sources. As a rule, Caley said feed with nitrate content of under .5 percent will cause no problems, and content of over 1.5 percent can cause death. However, some studies have found no problems feeding forage with nitrate content much higher than 1.5 percent as long as other sources are free of nitrates. If livestock producers are in doubt about the safety of feeds, the best practice is to consult a veterinarian.

Sire Evaluation Explained In Video

ST. JOSEPH, MO — A new motion picture-video that explains National Sire Evaluation in layman's terms and how it can be used by both commercial and registered cattle breeders will be released April 24 on a free loan basis from the American Angus Association, reports Richard L. Spader, Association executive vice president.

Titled "Like Begets Like," it is available in both 16mm motion picture and VCR video formats. The show runs eight and one-half minutes and each video or motion picture will be accompanied by two free Association publications that further explain, in detail, the concept of Expected Progeny Differences (EPDs) and National Cattle Evaluation.

The open and close of the show feature a re-creation of 18th century England Robert Bakewell, the man who developed modern livestock breeding techniques and the concept of "like begets like" or "breed the best to the best." The premise of the film is that these concepts are still true today, that what has changed are the methods of determining which animals are "best." Cattle producers today who understand EPDs and how to use them are in the best position to make progress toward whatever goals they set, the film explains, then shows what EPDs are how to use them.

The video, although it can be borrowed, is also for sale at a cost of $10 postage paid. The 16mm film is ideal for large groups or classroom use. The borrower only has to pay return postage. Both films and videos may be ordered by telephoning the Public Relations Department of the American Angus Association, 816/233-3103.

Berks County Cattlemen To Meet

LEESPORT (Berks) — The Berks County Cattlemen's Association will hold its spring meeting on Thursday, April 27, at the Berks County Agricultural Center, located off Route 183 near Leinbachs. The meeting, which is open to anyone interested in the cattle industry, will begin at 7 p.m.

The board of directors of the association will discuss several business items, including: a summer field trip; the selection of a youth representative; participation in the Scenic River Festival; proposed store promotion programs; future changes to the Meat Animal Evaluation Center at State College; a membership directory; and the audit report.

At 8 p.m., Dr. Lynn Sammons will discuss new parasite control for cattle on pasture, rabies vaccination, and bovine herd health programs. Dr. Sammons is a partner in one of Berks County's leading veterinary clinics, Willow Creek Animal Hospital, Reading. A 1973 graduate of Cornell's Veterinary School, Sammons began his career with Willow Creek in 1976, following three years of service in the U.S. Army. The practice now employs 10 full-time veterinarians, treating both large and small animals. Their practice covers a five county area, including Berks, Lebanon, Lehigh, Lancaster, and Schuylkill counties.

Light refreshments will be served. Admission is free. For more information, contact Sheila Miller, president, Berks County Cattlemen's Association, 215/589-5617.

Avoid Major Sheep Losses With Health Program

SCHAUMBURG, IL — Respiratory infections and foot rot probably cause the largest economic loss and mortality of any health problem affecting the sheep industry, and both diseases can be avoided by a preventive flock health program planned with the assistance of a veterinarian, the American Veterinary Medical Association (AVMA) reports.

The annual cost of foot rot is approximately $4.50 per head or nearly $60,000 for a range flock of 13,000 sheep, reported Marie S. Bulgin, D.V.M., of Caldwell, Id. This cost includes death loss, decreased wool production, weight loss, additional feed cost, loss of market value for incurable or chronic cases, labor and transportation to a centrally located treatment facility for footbath therapy, and the cost of chemicals.

"It is considerably easier and far less expensive to prevent foot rot than to treat or eradicate it," Bulgin said.

No comparable estimate of the dollar cost of respiratory disease to sheep producers is available, she said, but research is under way. "In some cases, producers don't recognize the loss they're having from a respiratory disease known as ovine progressive pneumonia (OPP). It's much more severe in some breeds than others. We'll know more about the economic impact of OPP in the next few years," she added.

Agents involved in respiratory disease include bacteria, parasites and viruses. All of these agents can be harbored by normal healthy sheep without any clinical signs, according to Dr. Bulgin.

Respiratory disease results when the sheep's resistance is lowered, often because of mistakes in management. "Dusty conditions, high ammonia concentration in the environment, nutrient deficiency, crowding, and other stresses are a few examples of things that alter the sheep's resistance," she said.

• Avoid buying sheep infected with foot rot.

• Operate as though new additions to the flock have foot rot by isolating them for at least two weeks, trimming all feet immediately, treating feet following trimming, and re-examining them periodically during the quarantine period.

• Avoid common-use trails or corrals where infected sheep have traveled or been penned.

• Insist on proper cleaning and disinfection of commercial vehicles before transporting sheep.

Eradication of foot rot is possible by using vaccination, foot bathing and soaking, trimming, dry pens, topical medications, and antibiotics, according to Bulgin.

Robert M. Corwin, D.V.M., Ph.D., of Columbia, Mo., president of the American Association of Small Ruminant Practitioners lists five keys to success with a preventive health program:

1. Good husbandry, including adequate water and feed, reproductive management, environmental management, docking (trimming trails) and castration

What farmers are saying about Case IH MAGNUM tractors.

Recently, several hundred farmers were invited to test MAGNUM tractors on their own farms. After they had used the tractors an average of 36 hours, they were asked to compare the engine, transmission, cab, hydraulics and serviceability to their current tractors.

MAGNUM won overwhelmingly in every category.

The users reported: 85.3% said that the engine powered its way to the top; 91.0% said that MAGNUM cab was a comfortable winner; and 85.7% judged the powershift transmission to be smoothly superior.

Over-all MAGNUM was preferred by a whopping 84.9% over a strong field that included John Deere, Ford, White and Deutz-Allis models. How does MAGNUM compare with your tractor? You'll never know until you take your own test drive. Ask about a demonstration on your farm.

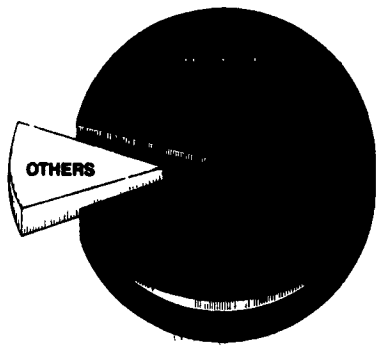
91.0% judged the MAGNUM cab superior in visibility, quietness, comfort and convenience to their current 100+ hp tractor.



85.7% said the MAGNUM transmission was best in ease of speed selection, smooth shifting and in proper speeds for the job.

MAGNUM means more. Let us show you how much more!

NPPC Calls For Lighter Weight Hogs

DES MOINES, IA — The present low price situation producers are experiencing as they market their hogs is being aggravated by excess weights, according to Don Gingerich, a Parnell, Iowa pork producer, and president of the National Pork Producers Council (NPPC). "Producers must exercise more discipline and sell hogs at lighter weights," Gingerich said.

Some packers are said to be considering establishment of a minimum weight for top hogs at 230 pounds. "We feel that's too high and will just make the situation worse," the NPPC president said. "We are encouraging packers to set the minimum weight for top hog prices at no more than 220 pounds. Ten pounds lighter hogs will make a big difference," said Gingerich.

University of Missouri Ag Economist Glenn Grimes, a consultant to the National Pork Producers Council, estimates if producers were to take ten pounds off the weight of a 250 pound hog, under present market conditions, it could add anywhere between three and four dollars per hundred weight to the average price producers would get. At the same time it would improve the quality of the product.

The NPPC Executive Committee has authorized development of a program, both short and long term, to encourage meat packers to establish a minimum weight for top hogs at 230 pounds.

Avoid Major Sheep Losses

2. Establish an internal and external parasite control program and an immunization program tailored to the flock.

3. Pay careful attention to lame ewes and lambs to avoid foot rot.

4. Listen carefully for signs of respiratory disease, especially in lambs.

5. Good pasture management, letting the flock graze as much as possible in one day, then moving to a new location.

"For optimal return from a preventive health program, it should be planned in advance for the entire year with the assistance of a veterinarian," Corwin said.

Intensive management practices and innovative veterinary techniques can enable sheep producers to double or even triple lamb production per ewe, according to Corwin.

"Some farmers now produce well in excess of 200 lambs weaned per 100 ewes mated, and the more ambitious are aiming to produce one pound of lamb per ewe per day over a 365-day period," Corwin said.

Short Course Offers Beekeeping Basics

DOVER, DE — The general notion is that beekeeping is only for a fearless few who enjoy tempting fate by playing with bees.

Well, that notion is long outdated. Apiarists, the technical name for beekeepers, come in all shapes and sizes and all occupations. Some do it as a hobby, some try to make a living at it.

If you're curious about how to get started in beekeeping, or if you've already launched an apiary operation but need some help with its management, the beekeeping short course is for you.

Sponsored by the University of Delaware and the Delaware Department of Agriculture, the short course will cover the biology and management necessary to insure healthy, productive honeybee colonies.

The course will run from 9:30 a.m. to 4:00 p.m., Saturday, May 13, in Townsend Hall, located on the University of Delaware's Newark campus.

Dr. Dewey Caron, a professor in the University's Department of Entomology, and Bob Mitchell, state apiarist with the Department of Agriculture, will lead the course. Mitchell, an apiarist with 10 years experience, emphasized that participants will be exposed to practical hands-on experience as well as illustrated lectures, discussions, and handouts.

Beekeeping in Delaware is not a booming business, but Mitchell estimates that there are 3,200 colonies in the state. Most of the state's honeybees are used to pollinate melons, cucumbers, apples, and blueberries, although some are raised to produce honey.

Cost for the short course in $10 per individual or $15 per family. The fee includes the cost of materials, a year's membership in the Delaware State Beekeepers Association and a chance to win an active bee colony.

Participants should bring their own beekeeper's veil, but veils will be provided if necessary. Lunch will be on your own.

Penn State Professor Receives Grant

UNIVERSITY PARK (Centre) — Dr. Jerry Reyburn, Penn State professor of 4-H/Youth development and agricultural and extension education, has received a national $1,000 incentive grant to conduct regional volunteer training workshops. The grant money was divided among a team of four 4-H extension agents: Jim Grippo, Clearfield County; Sandy Smith, Warren County; Earle Robbins, Tioga County; and Rudy Rudowski, Philadelphia County.

Reyburn says that the grant is being used to hold four regional volunteer training workshops involving 40 leaders. "We're trying to increase the number of volunteer leaders in natural resources, which increases the number of young people enrolled in 4-H in natural resources." The national forum and state training programs are part of a five-year series of forums that will prepare adult volunteers to help 4-H youth develop a commitment to environmental quality.

Dr. Margaret Brittingham, assistant professor of wildlife resources, is also an integral part of the team. She is a passerine, or songbird, specialist and she is writing materials for the workshops.

The grant was awarded based on a proposal the team submitted during a National 4-H Natural Resources Volunteer Leader Forum in Estes Park, Colo. Sponsors were Amoco Foundation Inc., and Waste Management Inc. Forty teams from other states attending the forum also received grants to conduct similar programs in their states.

Brillion

Brillion pioneered the Pulvi-Mulcher and has introduced numerous features over the years that have made this machine one of the most popular secondary tillage tools. Now, with the introduction of the ML and MR Series, Brillion offers a longer, high-clearance frame for better flow of trash through the machine. Another new feature is the non-rotating tooth bar that holds the teeth in a fixed pre-set position that keeps them at the proper angle, regardless of the working depth of 2" to 6". Other features and options are shown on the reverse side. * Contact Brillion Iron Works for details.

The ML Series of Pulvi-Mulchers features the (a) 20", six-spoke ductile iron notched roller wheel, made of material which is two-and-a-half times stronger than gray cast iron roller wheels. The roller wheels are manufactured in Brillion's own modern ductile iron foundry that utilizes a computer-controlled Disamatic molding machine. The frame is also designed to accommodate (b) the 16¼" notched roller wheel or (c) the 16½" Crowfoot roller wheel for the MR Series. The machine may be ordered with either "C" shaped ribbon teeth or "S" spring tines.

BETTER SEEDBEDS AND BIGGER YIELDS

With some types of tillage the soil is loosely packed with many lumps that allow moisture to evaporate quickly through air pockets. Lost moisture reduces speed of germination and impeeds the spread of small feeder roots in their search for nourishment. The Brillion Pulvi-Mulcher crushes both surface and buried lumps and converts fall and spring plowing into a clod-free seedbed. The firmed, mulched soil locks in moisture, especially at the root level. Soil nutrients become readily available to the young feeder roots, since they can reach out in all directions without struggling against clods. Nutrients then travel through the root system, developing stronger plants, which in turn result in bigger yields.

Case IH Disc Mower Conditioner Cuts Tough Crops

The Model 3309 is the first disc mower conditioner in the Case IH line of hay and forage equipment. The Model 3309 features a shaft-driven cutterbar built with modular components for reduced maintenance and ease of service. Seven rotating discs cut through wet, tangled crops at top speed.

RACINE, WI — Case IH has introduced its first disc mower conditioner, the Model 3309. The Model 3309 features a shaft-driven cutterbar built with modular components and is designed to ensure easy serviceability and reduced maintenance.

The Model 3309 is equipped with seven oval rotating discs that provide a 9-foot, 3-inch wide cut through wet hay, tangled grass, ant hills and gopher mounds with virtually no plugging. The Model 3309 also can slice through heavily fertilized or high-yield crops at top operating speeds.

Each disc on the Model 3309 contains two free-swinging knives that spin at 2,924 rpm. Disc modules can be removed individually for maintenance without having to disassemble the entire bar.

Hay feeds directly into two, 84-inch long, precision-machined intermeshing ticor conditioner rolls. These rolls are made with wear resistant, cord-reinforced rubber for trouble-free conditioning. Adjustable swathing shields allow for windrow or swath widths from 30 to 84 inches.

Field productivity is increased with simple adjustments the operator can make from the tractor seat. When the header is raised, the conditioning rolls separate automatically to power slugs through the machine. Standard hydraulic tongue positioning improves field maneuverability and allows for easy transportation. In addition, a simple turnbuckle adjustment of the header tilt provides a wide range of cutting angles.

The header is suspended from the frame at three points, providing excellent flotation in both vertical and radial directions to deliver uniform cutting on uneven terrain.

A 20-page, full-color catalog describing the entire Case IH mower conditioner line, including the Model 3309 disc mower conditioner and the new Models 8340 and 8360 mower conditioners, is available from Product Public Relations, Case IH, 700 State St., Racine, WI 53404.

Holly Farms-ConAgra Merger Voted Down

MEMPHIS, TN — Holly Farms Corp. stockholders gave a thumbs down to a merger proposed by Holly managers with ConAgra Inc., according to a recent article by Associated Press. The merger was part of an effort by Memphis-based Holly Farms to fight off a $1.5 billion takeover by Tyson Foods Inc. of Springdale, Ark.

A preliminary count showed that only 32.5 percent of stockholders voted in favor of the merger while 47.8 percent were against it. A two-thirds vote was needed to approve the merger.

Ted Bailey, a Holly Farms vice president, said his firm notified Omaha, Neb.-based ConAgra on Monday that the deal was off.

The merger agreement included a provision aimed at allowing ConAgra to purchase key Holly assets in the event the merger failed. This agreement remains in effect, though it has been blocked temporarily by Delaware Chancery Court on a challenge by Tyson. Also blocked was another merger provision that would require Holly Farms to pay ConAgra $15 million plus expenses if the deal failed.

The ConAgra merger, which would have made Holly Farms a ConAgra subsidiary, called for a $1.1 billion stock swap worth about $61 per share.

Through the asset-option agreement, about one-third of Holly's assets could be purchased by ConAgra at prices previously negotiated if Holly Farms is purchased by anyone else within the next nine months.

Tyson contends that the asset agreement was an illegal attempt to make Holly unattractive to other buyers.

Tyson, which offered Holly stockholders $63.50 a share for their 18.1 million shares, is the nation's largest poultry processor.

Lely Offers Wet Bale Wrapper

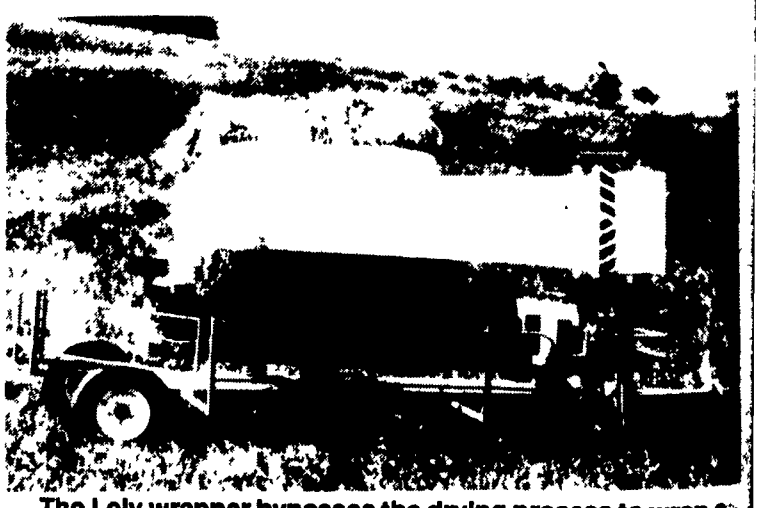
WILSON, NC — The Lely Corp. announces the "Wrap A. Round" wet-bale wrapper. "This baler bypasses the drying process," stated Luke DeLange, president of Lely. Wrap A Round can be operated by one person from two single control valves and wrap a bale at 20 percent to 70 percent moisture levels in only two minutes. Once wrapped in the airtight seal, the bale is safely stored and the haylage process is underway.

Ed Culler, Lely product manager, pointed out that the Lely Wrapper is the only American-manufactured wet-bale wrapper; and once wrapped, the nutritional value of silage is top grade; rot and mold are practically eliminated in this airtight wraparound process.

Lely's Wrap A Round can run off a tractor's hydraulics or an optional power pack. The individually wrapped bales are easily moved and unwrapped for feeding an excellent quality silage. "Our cows love this stuff. It keeps its quality through to spring," stated dairy farmer Joe Kerber. "Within the first week...our pounds of milk increased by 150 pounds, and butterfat and protein went up also."

Culler revealed the Wrap A Round system has wrapped hundreds of thousands of bales in the United Kingdom. Lely will market the Lely Wrap A Round in the U.S. and Canada. Dealer inquiries are welcome. For further information contact Ed Culler.

The Lely Corporation, Box 1060, Wilson, NC 27894-1060. Phone 919/291-7050.



The Lely wrapper bypasses the drying process to wrap a bale at 20 to 70 percent moisture levels in only two minutes. Once wrapped, the haylage process is underway.

Ford New Holland Interlocks Seatbelt With Engine

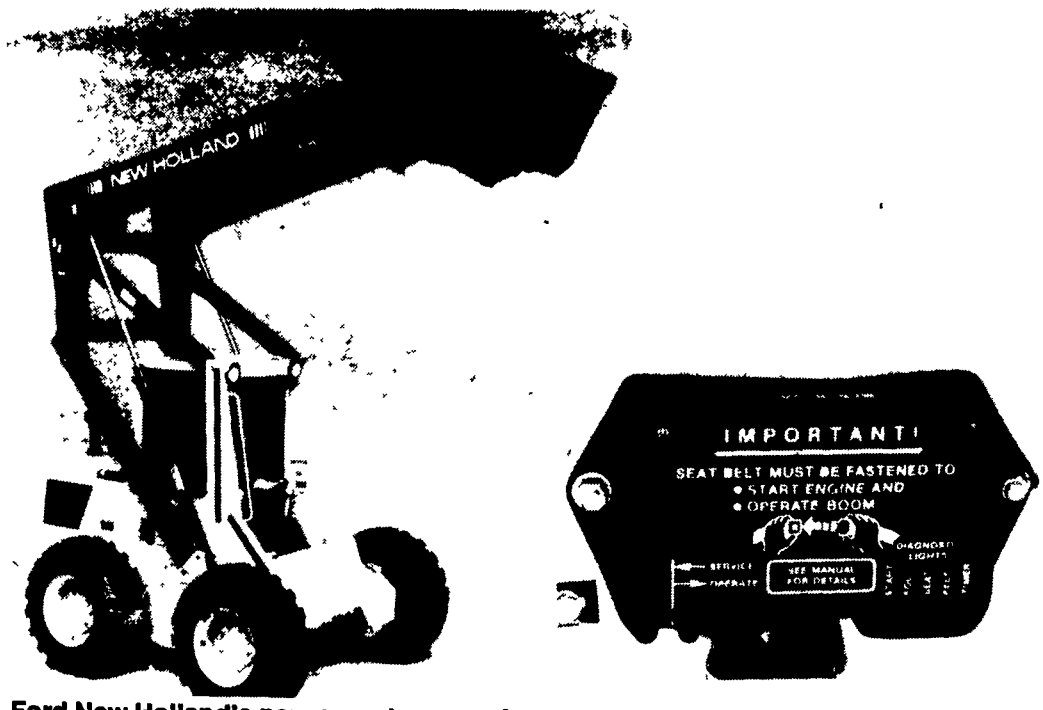
NEW HOLLAND (Lancaster) — Ford New Holland has introduced an exclusive new skid-steer loader feature that promotes proper operating procedures.

The "operator restraint system" is a sequence system to interlock the seat and seatbelt into the engine start circuit and boom and bucket hydraulic circuits. The operator must be in the seat with the seatbelt fastened before the engine will start and the boom and bucket hydraulics will operate. It is standard on all Ford New Holland skid-steer loader models.

According to Bill Sauber, product manager for skid-steers, the system is fast and simple. "There's no hassle for the operator," Sauber says. "You just sit in the seat, buckle up, start the engine and go to work. That's all there is to it."

"That's really the proper mode for operating any skid-steer loader: in the seat with your seatbelt fastened," Sauber says.

With the new operator restraint system, the engine cannot be started unless the operator is in what Sauber calls "the proper mode." Further, if the operator unbuckles the seatbelt while the unit is running, the boom and bucket hydraulic circuits will not operate.



Ford New Holland's new operator restraint system is standard on all its skid-steer loaders. The block box interlocks circuits so the operator must be in the seat with the seatbelt fastened before the engine will start and the boom and bucket hydraulics will operate.

Twelve-Row Planter Hugs Contours, Folds For Easy Transport

MILWAUKEE, WI — The biggest unit in the Deutz-Allis Model 385 planter line now offers a new design for improved tracking of ground contours and folding for transport.

Deutz-Allis first introduced its rugged 12-row planter in 1987, says Tom Stadtmueller, Deutz-Allis implement marketing manager. The planter row features a frame that's hinged in the center to allow six units on either side to pivot and follow the ebb and flow of the land. A 3x4-inch front frame permits fertilizer hoppers and other equipment to be easily bolted on.

A unique folding device also sets it apart from other planters of its size. "The planter is designed to swing from field to transport position without unhitching the tractor," Stadtmueller says. "Transport wheels are positioned so the unit can be towed endwise. Now operation of this folding device has been simplified so that it's even easier to switch the planter from one mode to the other with tractor remote hydraulic valves."

All Model 385 planters, also available in four-, six- and eight-row versions, give the operator the option of applying granular or liquid fertilizer, herbicides and insecticides in one pass over the field, he says. The Model 385s offer a choice of two sophisticated seed monitoring systems and row spacings down to 15 inches.

Then there's the exclusive Quadra-Disk planting system that permits total seed depth control regardless of field conditions. The Quadra-Disk system, available with either air singulation or plate-type metering, adapts to a wide range of tillage practices, he says.

Massey-Ferguson Expands Combine Line

DES MOINES, IA — Massey-Ferguson, the western world's largest tractor manufacturer, is introducing two new combines, the M-F 8450 and M-F 8460, for large-acreage farms in North America.

"These two new conventional combines are designed to be reliable and easy to operate." said Dale Brcka, product marketing manager for combines. "They are equipped with performance features to maximize harvesting efficiency in hard-to-thresh crops.

"Both combines are a proven design," added Brcka, "and parts and service is backed by Massey-Ferguson and its North American dealer organization."

The new M-F 8450 and M-F 8460 combines will be available for delivery in mid-summer. Both have the power and capacity required for large acreage harvesting; the cab is human engineered for operating comfort and visibility; and clean, top quality grain samples are the result of a matched system of threshing and separation.

The M-F 8450 and M-F 8460 combines feature diesel engines that provide lugging power when it's needed — reserve power for hilly fields, soft ground, or unloading on-the-go.

The M-F 8450 has a 346-cubic-inch diesel engine rated at 162 horsepower. The 669-cubic-inch diesel engine in the M-F 8460 delivers 221 horsepower. Cubic capacity and engine speed are synchronized, resulting in reliability, fuel economy and long engine life.

Both combines feature hydrostatic drive. The operator can vary ground speeds in any one of three transmission gears, as well as start, stop or reverse the combine without shifting. The hydrostatic drive saves time, increases efficiency, and is easy to operate.

The 150 bushel (M-F 8450) and 185 bushel (M-F 8460) grain tanks feature a fast, even filling central auger. Large diameter unloading augers empty the tank at rates up to two bushels a second.

Comfort engineered cab

Massey-Ferguson cabs feature the latest machine management systems for operator control in a comfortable, relaxing environment.

By making full use of advanced technology in these large capacity combines, the operator has harvesting functions as well as operational data under his control in a quiet, air-conditioned cab.

The wide-view cab with tinted safety glass gives an unobstructed view of the cutterbar. The comfortable seat can be adjusted to suit the size and weight of the driver. All controls and display instruments are within the operator's reach and field of vision.

M-F 8460 combine, one of the two new Massey-Ferguson conventional combines for large-acreage farms, have a cab is designed for operating comfort and visibility. In addition, a matched system of threshing and separation produces clean, top grain samples.

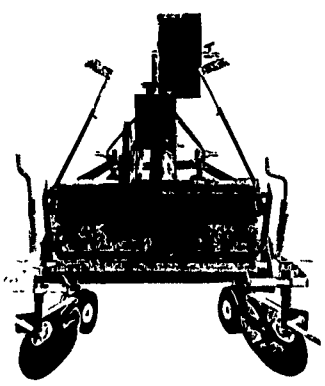
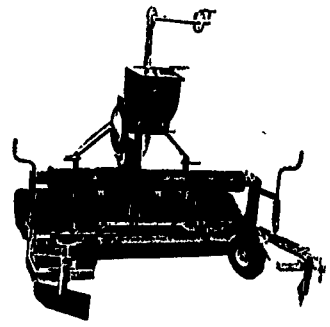
BIG YIELDER MODEL 2500
RAISED BED PLASTIC
MULCH LAYER



Not all mulch layers look and work the same, it's how the mulch is layed that really counts.

Featuring
- Independent, spring loaded cover arms with 6 way disk hillers. No wrench needed for adjustment. Convenient cranks for more or less coverage.
- Independent presswheels that "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over). Machine will carry two 48" x 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller (in back of machine) thus giving a tightly stretched mulch and pressed bed.
- Beds are 4" to 6" high (depending on adjustment). Machine has adjustable row markers.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY", is driven off roll of film plastic. Thus, application rates are uniform regardless of speed mulch layer is driven.
- Drip irrigation attachment (optional) is adjustable side to side and up and down, will handle large or small drip line spools.

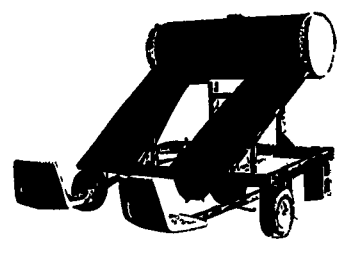
ECONOMICAL MODEL 560
FLAT BED PLASTIC
MULCH LAYER



When it comes to mulch laying, take a close up look at the Model 560. Mulch laying is prior to planting your baby plants, and is more than just rolling out your plastic mulch. Uniform beds and tightly layed plastic mulch is a must for a higher bottom line.

Featuring
- Very uniform beds, the Model 560 eliminates pot holes in seed bed. Heavy ½" steel pan will press bed. Has furrow openers on bottom.
- Independent spring loaded cover arms with convenient cranks for more or less coverage. For maximum control of coverage, this machine has scrapers instead of disk covers.
- Fast reloading! Full open back of machine (no bars to step over).
- Plastic mulch goes under "floating" roller for maximum tightness. Independent press wheels also "float" with angle adjustment, no wrench needed.
- With minor adjustment, machine will lay 4' or 5' plastic. (Adaptor optional.) Carries two 4000' rolls of plastic mulch.
- Insecticide applicator (optional) by "GANDY" is driven off roll of film plastic. Thus, application rates are uniform regardless of speed mulch layer is driven.

WATER WHEEL
PLANT SETTER



Featuring
Planter will plant through plastic mulch with constant depth control for the plants. Plants 1 or 2 rows on one bed. Simple operation, will water as you plant, has water flow control. Also, water off/on controlled by planters or tractor operator. Machine has four tray carrying racks, two are "self feeding" right to the planter seats.

Comes with category 2, 3-point hook up. Economically priced.

We ship UPS same day orders are received.

Lancaster Level-Flo's replacement gooseneck lets you fill your silo faster and easier. It has a 33% larger capacity than original Harvestore® goosenecks and its high-profile shape improves flow. You can actually blow in 3 tons of haylage a minute without plugging the Level-Flo 12" gooseneck. Yet it attaches easily to standard 9" fill-pipe.

Our gooseneck's completely enclosed design keeps silage off the roof of your silo. Not only does this eliminate waste, it extends the life of the silo roof.

With an outer shell of galvanized steel, the Level-Flo 12" gooseneck stays bright and shiny for years. And it contains an inner liner of extremely wear-resistant stainless steel.

- Designed with final section straight and vertical to put silage in the center of your silo.
- And it's almost 50% less expensive than a Harvestore® replacement gooseneck.

Harvestore® is a registered trademark of A. O. Smith, Inc

University Of Delaware Ag Day Festivities Set

NEWARK, DE — Spring means Ag Day at the University of Delaware, and students and faculty in the College of Agricultural Sciences are busy preparing for the festivities.

Scheduled for Saturday, April 29, from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m., the 14th Annual Ag Day will take place rain or shine at the university's Townsend Hall in Newark.

Ag Day is open to everyone, and most events are free. Activities include pony rides, a livestock show, a sheepshearing, milking demonstrations and haywagon tours of the university farm. And children will have a chance to pet farm animals.

In addition, participants can see a tissue-culture display, a beekeeping exhibit and a modern farm machinery display.

Delaware Extension master gardeners are planning a plant propagation display featuring plants they've raised from seed in the university greenhouse, including dianthus, dwarf phlox, geraniums and pansies.

There will be plant sales during the day. Homeowners also can purchase soil testing bags at $4 per bag. Soil test results are returned in about two weeks.

Delaware's Dairy Princess, Shelley Tucker of Greenwood, is scheduled to make a guest appearance for the Ag Day festivities.

Participants can enjoy food provided by two student organizations. Try the barbecue sponsored by the Alpha Zeta honorary fraternity or the hot dogs and soda sold by the FFA. Honey from the university's apiary and home-baked bread also will be on sale, as will balloons and Ag Day T-shirts.

An information booth will be set up for anyone who has questions about the college and careers in agriculture-related fields.

Townsend Hall, the site of the University of Delaware College of Agriculture Sciences, is located on South College Avenue across from the Chrysler plant in Newark.

Mild Winter Could Pave Way For Weevils

COLLEGE PARK, MD — One of the attributes of an alfalfa crop is its palatability. Livestock love alfalfa hay. Unfortunately, so do insects.

The primary pest blocking the path to a profitable alfalfa crop in the mid-Atlantic and Northeast regions is the potato leafhopper. This year may be different, though.

"Unseasonably mild conditions and a general lack of snow cover could contribute to higher populations of alfalfa weevil this spring," reports Dr. Lee Hellman, Extension entomologist at the University of Maryland.

In many years, severe cold, drying winter winds and parasitic control are effective tools for capping weevil populations. Hellman adds that weevil populations generally run in cycles, building as controlling wasps and fungi drop off.

"That's the situation we've seen the past couple of years," he says. "Consequently, weevil populations have been building up. Prime overwintering conditions this past season could contribute to an alfalfa weevil outbreak.

"The net effect," says Hellman, "is that growers will need to monitor their crop closely this season and be prepared for quick action if difficulties develop."

It's important to remember that alfalfa weevils inflict their damage on the first cutting and can reduce yield by as much as 50 percent. Potato leafhoppers attack subsequent crops.

Quality Quotient

Mike Brubaker, an agronomic consultant based in Lititz who has studied the effect of insect damage on hay for the past several seasons, says weevils and leafhoppers can affect alfalfa yield and quality.

"Weevils cut hay yields because they defoliate an alfalfa crop," Brubaker says. "Leafhoppers diminish both yield and quality by injecting a toxin in the leaves. Often, damage goes unnoticed.

"We advocate season-long scouting to stay on top of insect problems before they inflict economic damage," he adds. "Begin looking for weevils shortly after the crop greens up in the spring."

Brubaker says leafhopper scouting should begin shortly after the first cutting and continue the remainder of the summer. He adds that newly-seeded alfalfa stands are at particular risk.

"We've worked with Dow Chemical to study the effect of using a regular spray program with LORSBAN* 4E (insecticide) at various times during the season to stop alfalfa pests before they gain a toe-hold on the crop," Brubaker says. "Both quality and yield can be improved through timely control of threshold-level insect populations.

Determining Threshold Levels

"Using a sweep net to sample weevil and leafhopper populations is essential to calculate the risk of crop damage," Brubaker says. "Insect counts should be weighed against the stand height. The taller the stand, the greater the level of insect pressure which can be withstood. Timely pesticide applications can allow growers to use lower rates and help boost the prospects for success."

Shorter alfalfa crops are most at risk according to Don Baldwin, Dow Chemical technical specialist for the Northeast. If significant leafhopper populations are present in an alfalfa field shortly after cutting he recommends treating at that point rather than waiting for further damage to occur.

"A commonly-accepted threshold for leafhoppers when the crop is less than three inches tall is only 0.2 leafhoppers per sweep or two leafhoppers per 10 sweeps," Baldwin says. "Scout in an M-shaped pattern making 5-10 sweeps in each location.

"If insects are present, decisive alfalfa insect control action is required. Waiting until visual signs of infestation such as a yellowing of the crop is too late. By that point, damage is irreversible. Protein and tonnage levels will have already been slashed," he says.

No-Till Program Offered In Montgomery County

CREAMERY (Montgomery) — The Montgomery County Conservation District is geared up and ready to assist county crop producers through the no-till program.

Since its inception in 1983, the District sponsored program has logged more than 8,400 acres, for a soil savings of approximately 42,015 tons. No-till has become a popular tool for conservation tillage because it reduces the amount of soil lost.

The no-till method may not benefit all farming techniques as conditions and soil type may vary. However, no-till equipment has evolved to a high degree in the past 15 years which has proven to be an asset to many farmers. In addition, time on the field is reduced; fuel and machinery costs are lowered; which reduces the cost of crop production.

The savings are realized by the practice of planting in existing grass or crop residue which eliminates exposing the soil to the impact of rainfall and concentrated water runoff which wash away soil as well as soil nutrients.

As in conventional farming, herbicides are used to control unwanted vegetation; however, once under control, crop rotation and best management practices may reduce the use of herbicide application.

The Conservation District will have the following equipment available to producers for the 1989 planting season: grain drill, 10-feet wide with 7-row spacing for $9 per acre; two cornplanters, 4 row-30" spacing and 4 row-38" spacing, each for $9 per acre.

The program not only encourages the use of the no-till system, but also provides the users with a hands-on experience with the latest refinements on the modern equipment.

For additional information or scheduling the no-till equipment, call Richard Kadwill at the Montgomery County Conservation District office at 489-4506.

This extended warranty covers replacement gutter cleaner chain as well as chain in new installations.

Patz

Proven Performer

Patz hook-and-eye links have proven their value for 39 years. Patz links are forged out of special-formula steel to provide strength and durability. The Patz link design provides chain flexibility that takes sprocket, corners, and elevations smoothly for layout flexibility and minimum wear.

Choose the Model 400 (blue) link with more than 2 pounds of steel, or choose the heavier Model XH-400 (red) link for extremely long pulls.

Progression forgoing builds extra strength into hook-and-eye link contact points. Final heat treating increases hardness, strength and wear resistance. Patz links withstand corrosion for long chain life.

Ask about our 10-year warranty on links and flites.
